One Thing the Matter.
She Did Not Return.
Vivid, Adequate Language.
Again the Perfect Crime.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 25.

Many Americans ask each other daily:

"What is the matter with us?"

W. R. Hearst, in all his newspapers, mentions one thing is "the matter," namely, that "we need more schools and fewer politicians." Political parasites eat up taxes taken from the people's earnings.

In France, where they raise leeches, blood suckers sold in drug stores and used by doctors, old horses are driven into swamps, to feed the leeches, and soon die.

The United States, with all its political leeches, can sympathize with those horses.

NEW YORK state alone has thirteen thousand different local units of government.

Digest that, if you please, one single state with thirteen thousand different kinds of separate government machines that the people pay for.

Michigan, population less than five millions, has forty-three thousand local public officials, while England, with more than thirty-seven million population, has only two thousand public officials.

If England were run on the Michigan-American plan, she would be paying salaries and some graft to more than three hundred thousand public officia's instead of two thousand.

Georgia's people are taxed to support one hundred and fifty-nine county governments that are no longer needed and "should have been consolidated or abolished long ago."

THE PEOPLE ought to do something about that system, which President Roosevelt says was "built up in the days of the ox cart" and hasn't been changed in these days of the automobile.

Yes, the people OUGHT to do something, but they don't know how to go about it. They vote for public officials selected for them, and that ends their little part in government.

THE THIRTY-YEAR-OLD widow of Jacksonville, Fla., "society leader and Junior Leaguer," who decided that she did not want to live when her husband was killed in an automobile accident, and sailed East over the ocean "while the gas lasted," did not come back. No trace of her or the plane.

She left orders to pay $2,000, the value of the plane, not wishing to cause loss, and added that she was going to "see what it's all about, and if it is nothing, that's O. K., also."

What she found and what it is really all about, none of us may know, except by the eyes of faith, until it comes our turn to follow the young Jacksonville widow. If she changed her mind and tried to fly back, when it was too late, how pitiful a tragedy.

IF YOU believe that Gen. Johnson, head of NRA, lacks words to describe those who oppose his Blue Eagle, you do the general an injustice.

He calls NRA "a seventh wonder of the world" in its results, and the critics are "leaders, guides and scouts of the old road to ruin." Also "tom-tom beaters, corporals of disaster, discredited leaders of an old economic system, social Neanderthalers, out to stop the recovery program."

LIKE OTHER "perfect crimes never to be explained," the Chicago "operating table murder" will prove to be only another imperfect crime. Precautions were taken against fingerprints, and chloroform was found in the 23-year-old wife, who was first rendered unconscious on the operating table, then murdered with a bullet.

The police now say they have a confession. The alleged murderer forgot that nerves and resolution give way under long, sleepless questioning. All the precautions and elaborate alibi will probably result in one more execution.

WHERE MURDER has a definite object, this young woman had been heavily insured before she was killed, detection is easy. It is the gangster crime without known motive that is hard to unravel.

THERE IS another young woman in the case, also about twenty-three, and with the reporters' "Titian ringlets."

The wise man contents himself with one set of Titian ringlets.

CHANCELLOR HITLER intends to be thorough, his latest order indicating that good Germans must go to Heaven on Nazi routes. Once each month there must be a "unity service" in all German Protestant churches, the same sermon must be preached, the same songs sung, everywhere.

That might end in abolishing preachers and churches. One broadcasting station could send out sermons leading worshippers in song and prayer, with a "Heil Hitler" at the end.

These efforts, based on one big war, will interest future historians.

UNCLE SAM is still paying $33.76 for an ounce of gold that he used to buy for a few cents over twenty dollars. He is happy, and says he will continue his present money program. People do not know what it is, but are full of hope.

Britain on a paper basis is disgusted with our goings on. Cheaper dollars enable us to sell goods where Britain wants to sell them.

Britain is annoyed that France should put a fifteen per cent additional tax on British importations, due to the cheapness of the paper pound as compared with the gold franc.

SHOTS GREET WELFARE WORKERS

Fired Upon While Soliciting Funds In Brentwood

Greeted by a fusillade of bullets when they rapped on the door of a home in Daily road, Brentwood, two Welfare workers scampered to the street in alarm last night, police reported.

The workers, William Lehner, of 4223 Brownsville road, and E. M. Conlin, of 3019 Glendale avenue, both of Brentwood, told police:

"We knocked on the door and a woman queried from an upper floor:

"'Who's there?"

"Suddenly a shot was fired. As we ran to the street four or five more shots followed. Then a man's voice said: 'Come back here and we'll give you some welfare.' We kept right on going."

Police later arrested Charles Zickas and Charles Argot, of the Daily road address, on suspicious person charges, according to Burgess A. G. Kaufmann.

THUGS KIDNAP TAXI DRIVER

A taxicab driver was kidnaped by four armed assailants early today, hauled to a lonely spot at the end of Spring street on the South Side, robbed, gagged with tape and tied to a tree with a clothes line. The cab was found abandoned at dawn at the foot of Fifteenth street, police said.

The victim, H. Reeves Cranston, of 5624 Jackson street, said he picked up two passengers at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street and drove to Eleventh street, where they were joined by two others. Driving across the Monongahela River, Cranston was forced to the tonneau of the cab.

One of the passengers, taking Cranston's hat, assumed his place at the wheel. At the end of Spring street, once the old Lyman baseball park, the four men ordered the driver from the cab and tied him to the tree.

F. W. Allen, Banker, Dies in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Frederic W. Allen, 56, senior member of the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., bankers, died today.

He had been a member of the banking firm since 1915, and was a director in more than a score of companies. He was a graduate of Yale with the class of 1900 and was captain of the crew in his senior year.

Fire Traps Child at Play

BELLEVERNON, Pa., Nov. 25.—The playroom of 6-year-old Lorna Cadman, of 624 Speers street, today became a roaring furnace, with the child rope-bound, unable to escape.

She was seriously burned before her mother, Mrs. J. E. Cadman, carried her out. The mother also was burned.

Lorna and her 5-year-old neighborhood playmate were in the basement play room. It was Lorna's turn to be bound, police said. In some manner, a fire started in a box of straw. The playmate fled and screamed.

Mrs. Cadman, rushing into the cellar, found her daughter collapsed into the box of blazing straw. Picking her up she beat out the flames, and in doing so was seriously burned.

The little victim could not tell whether her legs had been bound. When she was carried out her arms were still bound. Police withheld the name of the playmate because her mother is in a sanitarium.

QUIZ SOCIETY GIRL IN MISHAP

Miss Lindsay Boyd, 18, of 6373 Stanton avenue, prominent Pittsburgh district woman golfer and society girl, was questioned today by North Side police in connection with the injury of Mrs. Catherine Geth, 59, of 1123 Marvista street, who was struck and injured seriously by an automobile allegedly driven by Miss Boyd.

Mrs. Geth was removed to Presbyterian Hospital, where she was said to be in a critical condition with a fractured skull, fractured collarbone and probably internal injuries.

Police said Mrs. Geth was dragged several yards when, apparently confused, she stepped into the path of the machine driven by Miss Boyd.

Miss Boyd was accompanied by Miss Leageay Stevenson, of Coraopolis Heights, daughter of W. H. Stevenson, president of the Polar Water and the Crystal Water Company, police said. She was driving the Stevenson automobile, according to police.

Richard Dix Passes Pneumonia Crisis

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Suffering from pneumonia for the past several days, Richard Dix, film actor, was said by his physician today to have passed the crisis.

SEEK MOTIVE IN SURGERY SLAYING

Woman Doctor, Son Both Undergo New Quiz

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Refreshed by a night of fitful sleep in a cell, Dr. Alice Wynekoop plunged into a new ordeal of questioning today, but asserted she would stand by her confession, though her son called it "a pack of lies to save me."

The elderly physician, speaking of the document she signed yesterday, admitting she fired a bullet into the heart of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, but asserting the girl was dead of chloroform at the time, said:

"I won't repudiate it."

But Dr. Wynekood, as she was taken to Criminal Court Building to resume her examination, acknowledged there were "many loopholes in the confession."

PACK OF LIES, SON SAYS

Her son, Earle, was undergoing a bombardment of questions in another room nearby. He said:

"The only thing that is true in mother's entire statement is that Rheta used to go downstairs frequently, disrobe and weigh herself. The rest is all a pack of lies, told by mother to save me because she thought I might be in danger."

Dr. Alice was told of her son's skepticism. She said:

"You tell him, if he loves me a scrap, to keep his mouth shut. Why do they keep bothering him?"

She was far more concerned with his well-being and solicitous of his night's rect than of her own plight, accused by a Coroner's jury of murder by gunshot, despite her assertion that Rheta had died of an anesthetic while being examined for relief of a severe pelvic pain.

MYSTERY REMAINS

The tragic death of petite Rheta remained much of a mystery today, despite the confession of Dr. Alice that she shot a bullet into the young woman's body as she lay upon an operating table in the physician's basement surgery.

Frankly dissatisfied with Dr. Wynekoop's formal statement that the bullet was not fired until after Rheta had died by accident of

Benny Rubin Stingy, Suing Wife Avers

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Benny Rubin is a funny man to film fans, but to his wife he is "stingy and miserly," she says in a divorce suit on file here today.

Mrs. Rubin asks division of community property valued at $50,000 and "reasonable alimony," claiming his income is between $50,000 and $100,000 yearly.

Bored Wynekoops Talk Of Books and Chops

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—"Gee, it's monotonous here! I wish I'd brought a book."

So said Dr. Catherine Wynekoop to her brother, Earle, as they sat in the police station after their mother, Dr. Alice Wynekoop, 62, had confessed that it was she who fired a bullet into the body of Rheta, Earle's wife.

The remark, made casually to Earle, just about sums up the reserve of the mother, son and daughter.

Earle was busy clipping newspaper accounts of the case. Occasionally he made comments on an article or a photograph.

The brother and sister were taken to different restaurants for dinner. Upon returning, Dr. Catherine said to Earle:

"I had lamb chops. What did you have?"

In an adjoining room the gray-haired mother was parrying words with police—that although she fired the bullet into her daughter-in-law's back, she had not done so until after the death had occurred accidentally from chloroform.

Somewhat later Dr. Alice met reporters. She was her usual self, cool and collected. She said:

"Rheta was a quiet little mouse of a thing. I loved her as my own daughter, and I am sure she loved me as her own mother. I'm confident of that."

Of her present position she said it was a matter she was unable to discuss at the moment. She declared:

"I did the only thing there was to do—the logical thing. I have taken the only step I can take, and you will understand it is difficult for me to say anything further."

No show of emotion, no hysteria or tears on her part.

SANTA CLAUS AND HIS ROYAL KNIGHTS IN PITTSBURGH'S SANTA CLAUS PARADE TODAY

DUKES, GENEVA CLASH HERE

Pittsburgh's football repast for today is nothing more than a light luncheon compared with the feasts served during October and most of November by the city's three great collegiate teams—Pitt, Tech and the Dukes.

The Dukes are bringing their regular season to a close as they battle Geneva College at Forbes Field.

The Panthers are idle today, but their scouts are sitting in on Tech while the Scots tangle with New York University at New York. The Tartans must tackle the Panthers Thanksgiving Day at the Stadium.

Three big grid fights are stealing the show today. The Army and Navy were fighting it out at Franklin Field, Philadelphia; Notre Dame was making an effort to repel the great Southern California eleven at South Bend, in the big intersectional fight of the day, and Yale was messed up with Harvard at the Harvard Stadium, Cambridge, Mass.

Sleeping Sickness Fatal to Woman, 98

Mrs. Thersa Haunn, 98, said to be the oldest resident of Ontario province, Canada, and well known to many Pittsburgh district sportsmen, died of a sleeping sickness at the home of a daughter at New Hamburg, Ontario, yesterday, according to word received by Max Haunn, of 2423 Jane street, a son.

She was a familiar figure to many local city and county sportsmen who attended hunting camps near her home.

8 Miners Shot From Ambush in Victory Parade

BULLETIN.

UNIONTOWN, Nov. 25.—Dynamite explosions today damaged three homes in the Uniontown district. None was injured.

One bomb, at Colonial No. 3, wrecked the home of John Mihaly, blowing him and his wife out of bed and breaking windows in the vicinity. At Colonial No. 4 a stick of dynamite was tossed between the homes of Thomas Magollate and Edward Griffin.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 25.—Eight men were peppered with buckshot as they marched through the mining town of Smock last night. Part of a procession celebrating Thursday's elections, they were targets for guns that blasted from windows and from behind houses.

Two were injured seriously, requiring medical care. The other six were given first aid.

They were members of a parading group of Independent Brotherhood miners from Grindstone and other towns where the United Mine Workers lost the contest to the so-called company unions Thursday.

In Smock, where the H. C. Frick Coke Company's Colonial No. 1 mine is located, the United Mine Workers won.

A number of boys were in the line of march.

Albert Petacy was hit near the right eye and Joseph Hudock behind the right ear. Both are from Colonial No. 4, of the Frick company.

State police were rushed to the village to halt further outbursts. Feeling has been high in the Frick

PACKER STRIKE WAR FLARES

Store windows were stoned in East Ohio street last night in a flareup of violence in the waning meat workers' strike.

Otherwise there was no disorder and operations at all but two packing houses were reported normal, with virtually 100 per cent of employes back at work.

Police reported that strike sympathizers in an automobile threw stones that shattered windows in the P. H. Butler store, 739 East Ohio street, and the Kroger store, 606 East Ohio street.

Windows were cracked in the Donahoe store, Madison and East Ohio, and the C. A. Limburg store, 870 East Ohio.

J. J. McAleese, president of the Pittsburgh Provision and Packing Company, said employes were back at work and reported they had walked out not because of any grievance but because they feared violence by pickets.

Employes have representation through a conference board of their own choosing, he stated.

MUMMERS IN GALA MARCH

Beautiful Floats and Stirring Music Featured

More children's tiny feet pattered on the pavements and streets of downtown Pittsburgh today than ever followed the Pied Piper of Hamlin.

They occupied, these youngsters with their mothers and fathers, sisters, cousins and aunts, almost every spare inch of downtown sidewalks.

They were watching the Santa Claus parade which, in its fantasy, with tis bizarre characters, beautiful floats and stirring music, turned the Golden Triangle into a land of make-believe.

PRIZES AWARDED

Of course, it wasn't all make believe. The prizes were very real. They were awarded as follows:

Musical organizations—First prize, Greentree Drum and Bugle Corps; second, the Pioneers, fife and drum corps; third, Secketary Hawkins Band.

Costumes—Huckleberry Finn, first prize, $15, Robert A. Limbacher, of 846 Loyal way, Knoxville; Italian peasant, second, $19, Mrs. Catherine Mallinger, of 1215 Wylie avenue; Mae West, third, $1, Anna Frances Becker, of 1015 Bradish street, South Side.

Twenty-four others received 81 prizes.

Heading thousands of marchers in picturesque garb was cheery old St. Nicholas himself, seated in radiant splendor in a tremendous sleigh drawn by six snow-white horses.

MUMMERS MARCH

There were mummers sporting enormous, grotesque heads—bobbing to and fro to the delight of youngsters and adults alike—and a fantastic collection of animals—a huge dragon, lions, tigers roosters, giraffes and bears, a giant frog and a gangly dachshund, 20 feet long.

"Big, Bad Wolf" was there, too, and the three chubby little pigs, as were Old King Cole, with his pipe and his bowl and his Fiddlers Three; the "Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" and her many children; Mickey Mouse and his consort, Minnie Mouse, and Santa's workshop with his gnome

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Chester Probaski, 25, of Cleveland, and Merrill E. Chandler, 22, Columbus Negro, were executed at Ohio Penitentiary last night for the murder of Fred Hanger, a guard, during an attempted escape from the State Reformatory at Mansfield.

Herriot Turns Down French Premiership

Babcock's Son Escapes Injury in Crash

E. V. Babcock, Jr., son of the former County Commissioner, escaped injury early today in an automobile crash near the Pleasant Hills Country Club.

Witnesses said Babcock's automobile overturned.

At Babcock's home today it was stated the car merely had been forced from the road. It was said the machine was not damaged.

Babcock, 28, is secretary and treasurer of the Babcock Lumber Company.

Several months ago young Babcock was committed to a sanitarium by court order sought by his parents because of his insobriety. He was later released.

COUNTY SEEKS $31,000,000 U. S. LOAN FOR PUBLIC WORK

15,000 IDLE MEN COULD BE PUT TO WORK

Four Self-Liquidating Projects Included In New Bill

Legislation enabling Allegheny County to borrow $31,000,000 from the federal government for self-liquidating projects here, will be introduced at Harrisburg next week, following a caucus Monday night of the Allegheny County delegation. Seventeen representatives and senators met with county officials yesterday to hear the bill outlined.

The bill would create a private corporation, composed of three men, to borrow the money, issue bonds, direct the work of the projects and assume full responsibility for collection of tolls and payment of the debt to the government.

OUTLINE OF PROJECTS

Assistant County Solicitor Churchill Mehard outlined the projects thus:

Of the total $31,108,000 to be borrowed, the county would be required to pay back only $24,684,000, the remaining $6,424,000 being the 30 per cent outright grant from the government.

The county would have at least 20 years, and possibly as long as 50 years, to pay the remainder of the debt which would be borrowed at four per cent interest. The minimum annual income from the self-liquidating projects would be $1,264,000.

The loan would enable the county to put to work 15,000 men over a period of 18 to 20 months, or an average of 5,000 men throughout the entire period.

In addition there would be large orders to local concerns for supplying cement, steel, sand, gravel and piling.

DETAILS PROJECTS

County Planning Engineer E. L. Schmidt detailed the projects included in the program, which are in four separate applications to the government:

First—Homestead High Level and the Highland Park or Aspinwall bridges. The Homestead span would cost $2,863,000 and would be a toll bridge. The Highland Park Bridge would cost [illegible]0,000. With it would come a big improvement in the north end connection with the Freeport road.

Second—Wabash and affiliated projects. Wharf improvement improvement along the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers from the Liberty Bridge to Eleventh street. Ramp to the Liberty Bridge from Water street; a grade separation at the south end of the Liberty tubes; widening of Banksville road and the extension of Saw Mill Run boulevard from Banksville road to the West End-North Side Bridge. Project cost, $16,143,000.

Third—North Park swimming pool and lake, cost $892,000.

Fourth—Glenwood, Dravosburg, Youghiogheny and Rankin bridges; widening of Jerome avenue in McKeesport.

M'CLURE'S FALL GRATIFIES U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Gratification over the outcome of the Delaware County (Pennsylvania) liquor conspiracy cases was expressed in a statement from the office of Attorney General Cummings.

Seventy-one persons, including State Senator John J. McClure, were convicted in the trial.

The statement said:

"Commendation is due to special agents, who worked diligently for two years in gathering the great mass of evidence which was necessary to conduct the trial and to the attorneys who so splendidly handled the prosecution."

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Free on bail, the 71 men, convicted yesterday in a liquor conspiracy, pin their hopes on a review of their case next March.

State Senator John J. McClure and his 70 co-defendants were sentenced yesterday. McClure drew the heaviest sentence — 18 months in jail and a fine of $10,000.

Free Press Held Last Stand of Democracy

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The newspaper is the "last proving ground of democracy," Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia University School of Journalism, told the Commercial Club last night.

If this country is to avoid Fascism, the press must not be interfered with by the NRA, he said.

After describing the attitude of NRA toward the press and the clauses he said threaten its freedom, he continued:

"I do not believe that President Roosevelt personally desires to create a Fascist government in the United States. I do not believe that Congress would countenance any such authority or that it would be upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

"But I do know that the power of suggestion, operating unrestrictedly every day upon the conscious and subconscious minds of men, is greater than the intentions, desires or ambitions of any government officials.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt is a type of publicist. His method is to put the people on a propaganda diet, feed them information day by day or week by week as the doctors prescribe.

"It is this power of suggestion, this form of governmental propaganda which threatens our democratic institutions more than NRA or any other law passed by the Seventy-third Congress. And the only effective, immediate and certain method of counteracting it is the freedom of the press."

SEEK SURGERY SLAYING MOTIVE

chloroform administered while she was receiving medical treatment from the woman physician, the authorities pushed their inquiry in the hope of clearing up the points that were mystifying them.

John Stege, supervising captain of police, said:

"The case has just begun."

The possibility of a legal fight loomed today over habeas corpus writs in behalf of both the mother and her son.

DOCTOR'S CONFESSIONS

Dr. Wynekoop in an informal verbal confession was quoted by the police as saying she fired the bullet into the young woman's heart after she had died in order to indicate that she had been slain by a robber, but in her formal statement, made later, she gave no reason why the revolver was used except to declare that she had wondered "what method would ease the situation best to all."

Asserting that the doctor's statement had only served to deepen the bizarre case, one morning newspaper said that some legal authorities were of the opinion that the doctor's admission would not be sufficient to convict her, adding that her statement was in fact a confession of defense. In it she said she had worked for 20 minutes to restore the girl's breathing by artificial means after she noticed that life seemed to have ebbed away.

The Coroner's jury held to the belief that Rheta died of "a gunshot wound, hemorrhage, and shock;" that the wounds were inflicted by Dr. Wynekoop; recommended that she be held on a charge of murder, and that "all who aided and abetted be apprehended." At the same time Police Capt. Stege said that the police "still had many persons connected with this case under suspicion."

READY FOR TRIAL

Meanwhile Capt. Stege held fast to his own belief that it was the pistol bullet and not the chloroform that caused Rheta's death and Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said he was ready to put the 61-year-old gray-haired mistress of a 16-room West Monroe street home, on trial immediately. He said:

"It is my opinion that this was a deliberate murder and I am ready to go to court now, as the case stands.

"I can see the following motives:

"Collection of the insurance money.

"Because Dr. Wynekoop owed a large number of bills and a $3,500 mortgage. Another motive was the marital difficulties of her son.

"I believe she decided to do the slaying after she had that secret conversation with her son when he was in Chicago shortly before his wife's death and without telling his wife of his presence here."

The prosecutor referred to a meeting the police said Dr. Wynekoop had with Earle in his automobile on Chicago's South Side last Sunday night. And he added that he expected to be able to show that Earle "should be charged as an accessory before the fact of murder."

In support of his belief that Rheta was killed by the pistol bullet, Capt. Stege said that a large amount of blood was found soaked in a blanket discovered in the house of death, and that he had medical opinions to bear out his opinion.

SHIELDS MOTHER

The police quoted the accused woman's son of saying he wanted to "confess all" but when he was questioned again last night the investigators asserted their belief that whatever he wished to say was nothing more than an attempt to shield his mother.

Meanwhile an announcement came from Police Capt. Thomas Duffy that an investigation might be made of four other deaths that have occurred in the gloomy mansion where Rheta died. These were:

Dr. Alice's husband, Dr. Frank Wynekoop, who died three years ago, apparently of heart disease.

The father of Miss Enid Hennessey, a high school teacher, who rooms at the Wynekoop mansion.

An adopted daughter of the Wynekoops.

Mrs. Kate Porter, a patient of Dr. Alice, and with whom the police said Dr. Alice had a joint checking account at a bank.

This investigation, if made, he said, would not be begun until after the inquiry into Rheta's death is completed.

COUPLE SEPARATED

Earle Wynekoop was held at one police station and his mother at another today. He said he was unwilling to believe his mother guilty of a crime, and talked freely of his late wife, declaring among other things that his life with her had been unhappy, and that she was mentally deranged. Dr. Frank Chauvet, however, told the police that he had examined Rheta a few months ago and that she was sane.

Earle, the police said, wrote a note yesterday, and contrived to have it come into the hands of the investigators, saying he "expected to burn for the murder," but here again, the authorities said, was another attempt to protect his mother.

DOCTOR CALM

Throughout the long investigation Dr. Wynekoop maintained her professional calm. She retained her poise at the Coroner's inquest and again when the police questioned her further after she had made her formal statement.

At no time did she make any reference to two insurance policies—one for $5,000 in which she was named as the beneficiary and another for $1,000 in which her son, Earle, and her daughter, Dr. Catherine, were to benefit.

Miss Hennessey, regarded by the police as an important witness in the case, was taken from the Wynekoop home early today by Detective Chief William Schoemaker, who said she was removed to the home of friends.

At the same time Stanley Young, andother witness, with whom young Wynekoop had planned a photographic expedition into the far Southwest, was taken from a police station. Schoemaker said Young was "taken home."

Baby Saved Twice In Philadelphia Fires

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Rita De George has had her baptism of fire, although she's only 17 months old.

CHURCH ASSAILS PINCHOT'S RUM LEGISLATION

Retains Worst Evils Of Prohibition, Head Of Institute Says

The worst evils of the prohibition law will be preserved by Gov. Pinchot's liquor legislation, Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, declared in a statement. Church is one of the 15 repeal delegates elected to the Harrisburg convention December 5. His statement read in part:

"The people who through the long years have conducted this hard fight against prohibition are seeing all the fruits of their great victory nullified by Gov. Pinchot, one of the most uncompromising and intolerent dry leaders in the United States, and certainly one of the most astute politicians in Pennsylvania.

"We have all found through a bitter experience that laws will not regulate human conduct, and the enlightened leaders of the country are united in the opinion that it will be best to have as few statutory regulations as may be required for a reasonable control of the situation. But while the prohibition fanatics whipped us with whips, Gov. Pinchot is whipping us with scorpions."

Effort to obtain approval of Gov. Pinchot to an amendment in the liquor control bill that would permit waitresses to serve liquors in restaurents and hotels will be made by Senator William D. Mansfield in Harrisburg, Monday.

While he confers with the Governor, a committee of the Pennsylvania Hotel Association headed by its president, Gerald P. O'Neill, of the Pittsburgher Hotel, will attend a hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee to protest against the objectionable clause.

Pinchot Confers on Plan To Open 300 Liquor Stores

HARRISBURG, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Plans for opening 300 state liquor stores, with more to be added as the demand warrants, were discussed yesterday at conferences between Gov. Pinchot, state officials and two of the three men to be appointed to the Liquor Control Board.

The stores, which would open January 2, 1934, are provided in liquor control bills which legislative leaders have agreed to enact by next Wednesday.

A. Marshall Thompson, Pittsburgh, and Judge Robert S. Gawthrop, West Chester, whom the Governor will name to the control board as soon as the laws are enacted, attended the luncheon at the executive mansion.

Jeannette Receives Works Approval

JEANNETTE, Pa., Nov. 25.—Two projects, the first to be accepted from Westmoreland County, have received the approval of state administrators of the Civil Works Administration, J. R. Daugherty, engineer for the borough, announced yesterday.

Requiring $12,000, the projects will straighten out the kinks and dredge Brush Creek and construct a borough park, two blocks in area, with a lake in the center. E. J. Presby, county head, got the approval from Harrisburg.

MRS. PINCHOT TAKES FIGHT INTO W. VA.

Ohio Meetings Also Scheduled to Aid Workers

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Pinchot, today carries her fight for organization of steel workers into two neighboring states, Ohio and West Virginia. The largest mass meeting of her five-day crusade is expected in Weirton, W. Va., today.

From 15,000 to 18,000 people, many of them workers who will vote December 11 to determine whether their representatives shall be from the company union or the Amalgamated Association of Steel, Iron and Tin Workers, are to hear the First Lady of Pennsylvania pledge herself to their cause and urge them to organize.

Preceding the Weirton meeting, Mrs. Pinchot was to speak in Martins Ferry, O., at 2 p. m. today. From Weirton she will go to West Homestead. Early refusals for permits in Homestead did not deter Mrs. Pinchot from speaking there. West Homestead seemed a better location, she decided.

The windup meeting in the South Side High School auditorium will culminate a series which brought her voice and preachments to more than 50,000 steel workers and townspeople in 11 boroughs and cities in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

In Vandergrift Wednesday night, Mrs. Pinchot spoke to 10,000 listeners from an upstairs window in the Citizens Bank Building, when Burgess William Dick refused her a permit. Denied the same privilege in Duquesne yesterday, Mrs. Pinchot spoke from a balcony above the Amalgamated headquarters on First street. She said:

"Mayor James Crawford said I could never come and speak to you as long as he had a breath in his body. I don't know how many breaths he has left, but here I am!"

In New Kensington, McKeesport, Clairton and Monessen, Mrs. Pinchot was accorded official welcomes, with police escort at the city limits. Mayor Carl Woodward, of Monessen, welcomed Mrs. Pinchot personally and attended her meeting. A loud speaker wiring connection made her voice audible to 1,500 listeners in the Italian Hall, five blocks from the Monessen High School, which was packed to capacity with nearly 1,800 people.

The Rev. Fr. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's in Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Fr. O. J. Kirby, of St. Leonard's in Monessen, also spoke. At McKeesport, Mrs. Pinchot received a corsage of orchids from Burgess Dan Burns' wife and at Monessen a magnificent spray of chrysanthemums.

To more than 10,000 people in four meetings yesterday in Duquesne, McKeesport, Clairton and Monessen, Mrs. Pinchot continued to pound away at the steel trusts, at United States Senator David A. Reed and State Senator James J. Coyne; to plead for organization and to pledge herself to personal intervention in the case of any man who lost his job for union activities.

Murray to Protest Mine Vote in Fayette County

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, will formally protest the elections in the captive mines of Fayette County, he declared today.

The officials tabulations, announced last night by Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, shows that independent union candidates in Thursday's voting won in nine mines, United Mine Workers in five and one tied. Two other were very close.

In Wednesday's election in other parts of the Western Pennsylvania fields, the United Mine Workers won overwhelmingly, the total being United Mine Workers, 6,024, others 309.

Murray said:

"We are now collecting evidence to prove there was intimidation, coercion and offers of bribery."

Senator Wagner expressed his gratification that the elections were conducted without disorder. The tabulation, showing the highest and the lowest candidates of each group follows:

SMITH ATTACK IGNORED BY ROOSEVELT

President Unmoved by Fight on Money Program

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 25.—Surrounded by close advisers, President Roosevelt moved serenely ahead with his monetary policy today, ignoring a concerted attack headed by Alfred E. Smith.

Mr. Roosevelt's only reply to the open letter of the 1928 Democratic standard bearer condemning the Executive's money program, was to make it plainly known he had no intention of changing that policy. Smith's scalding inference that the President was fostering "baloney dollars" drew not a word of comment from Mr. Roosevelt.

SMITH ATTACK

The Smith letter was inevitably the subject of much conversation within "Little White House" walls today. However, Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who sees eye to eye with his chief on every question of policy, was there when news of the slashing attack was received.

Morgenthau joined the President in smiling silence, when questioned concerning his reaction. There appeared a slight possibility he might comment later.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S Johnson and Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady were here, too, in time to get first news of the Smith letter.

Later in the day, William Bullitt, this nation's first Ambassador to Russia for 16 years, arrived for a 24-hour stay.

RASKOB ARRIVES

Still later, there was another arrival—John J. Raskob, who managed Smith's presidential campaign in 1928.

Raskob was, prior to 1928 and for some time afterwards, perhaps the closest man to Smith in Democratic circles. The President announced at his 4 p. m. press conference that Raskob was coming, several hours before the former Democratic National Committee chairman arrived.

The former Smith campaign manager came here, it was explained, to attend ceremonies marking the dedication of the newest building of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, Georgia Hall. He was to leave today. Raskob was a visitor at the White House in Washington about 10 days ago when Smith called briefly.

None of the "Little White House" guests but Johnson would comment on the Smith letter. The NRA chief made one brief observation. He said:

"I don't know where Mr. Smith got his knowledge of finance."

CRIPPLES HEAR ROOSEVELT

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 25.—President Roosevelt, who is trying to bring to reality a vision of a better world, spoke feelingly last night of the happiness attendant upon accomplishment of the heart's aspirations.

The occasion of his remarks was the dedication of Georgia Hall, the new administration building presented by the people of Georgia to this settlement for crippled children founded by the President. He said:

"Most people have visions of things they would like to see accomplished; fortunate are those who with their own eyes see the accomplishment becoming a fact."

The President's audience, aside from high state officials and several members of his recovery staff, was composed largely of the child patients of the foundation.

2 CLOSED BANKS TO PAY CASH

The closed Bank of Secured Savings of Pittsburgh will make a payment of 10 per cent, amounting to $133,283, December 15, to 7, 669 depositors, it was announced today by the State Department of Banking. Two payments, one of 15 per cent and another of 10 per cent, have already been made.

The closed People's State Bank of East Pittsburgh will make a payment of 5 per cent, amounting to $12,739, to its 2,500 depositors on December 8, the department revealed. The first payment to depositors amounted to 10 per cent. The board also made a dividend payment of 50 per cent on December 14, 1931.

Dancer, Whose Auto Hit Two Workmen, Paroled

Tears came into the eyes of pretty Betty Benson, 24, night club dancer, when a Criminal Court jury pronounced her guilty of aggravated assault and battery, but they were brushed aside for a bright smile when Judge James H. Gray a moment later placed her on probation instead of sentencing her to prison.

Clad in an evening gown and riding alone, Betty, it had been testified, drove through a red light at Federal and Ohio streets at 4:30 a. m., February 4, into two employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, picked them up on the bumper of her roadster and came to a stop almost at the stone steps leading to the North Side Police Station. Both were injured.

The men were Steve Safranko, of Howard street, and Mike Summo, of Forest way, Homewood.

M'CREADY ENTERS HOSPITAL 59TH TIME FOR ALCOHOLISM

'SOBERING UP' AFTER SCENE IN COURT

Invites Corridor Crowd to 'Go on Good Toot'

Harrison R. McCready is sobering up in St. Francis Hospital today—the playboy's fifty-ninth admission for alcoholism in four years.

He was taken to the hospital late yesterday by his ex-bodyguard, Robert Kennedy, after being ejected by a tipstaff from his $150,000 trust fund case, and after an afternoon nap in the mental health clinic in the City-County Building.

Hurry-up Harry," as his friends call him, was a little late in arriving at Common Pleas Court yesterday to hear the testimony in his suit to get back the money given his first wife and child. The doors were locked to keep out the crowd, but he couldn't wait—he started to kick his way in.

BOTTLE IN POCKET

When finally admitted, bottle in pocket and interrupting the proceedings, Judge Frank P. Patterson ordered him put out.

While he slept downstairs in the clinic, Dr. Louis G. Ignelzi and Dr. C. C. Wholey, members of the West Penn Hospital staff—where McCready has been treated eight times for drunkenness—testified that he has dementia praecox—a form of insanity.

Dr. Ignelzi, under questioning by Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, who is representing the 27-year-old playboy, said McCready has been "crazy since childhood," suffers from delusions and has an egocentric complex.

'SUFFERS DELUSIONS'

Dr. Wholey, psychiatrist, who has examined the plaintiff on various occasions, said:

"I believe he is suffering from a mental imbalance; the weakening is due to something other than alcohol. Nothing short of one year in an institution would make any change in him."

The doctor explained that McCready had told him he did not know what he was doing when he made the trust agreement in 1930 and that he was glad to sign it in order to avoid having a guardian appointed. He continued:

"He felt it was a sense of injustice to support other than his baby (Margaret Luella), believing that he is having to support the husband of his second wife."

FORMER WIVES IN COURT

Mrs. F. H. Welfer, the first Mrs. McCready, sat near her counsel, Oliver K. Eaton, listening attentively to the proceedings. After McCready was ousted she said:

"I didn't think he would get drunk during the case."

Wife No. 2, the former Maguerite Heasley, sat among the spectators, who included attorneys, doctors, witnesses, young law students and others.

"Snooted up," as he called it, McCready was taken from the clinic to the elevator in a wheel chair. As he was led from the building, his tie out of place and his derby nearly off his head, many persons watched in the corridor. His favorite expression was:

"Let's go on a good toot."

Margiotti said that more doctors are to testify Monday when the case resumes.

The drive-it-yourself automobile hired Thursday night by McCready was found last night at Third avenue and Smithfield street. McCready parked the car and then couldn't remember where, he said.

GIRL RUN DOWN, DRIVER CAUGHT

A young man who, police say, fled after his automobile struck and injured Miss Santa Bonbara, 20, of 5215 Kincaid street, at Penn and Atlantic avenues last night, faced arraignment in Traffic Court today.

He was captured by Walter E. Reineman, president of the Fried & Reineman Packing Company, and Abe Fine, of 6317 Glenview place. At the Forty-third Street Police Station where he was held on a suspicious person charge, he gave his name as William Putz, 20, of 314 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Reineman and Fine pursued Putz more than a block. His path blocked by the Reineman car, Putz leaped out and was seized, according to police. Miss Bonbara, suffering a probable skull fracture, was taken to West Penn Hospital.

Volpe Blonde Shielded, Spinelli Return Near

Witness Protected In Fear of Gang Reprisal

After issuing orders that the blonde mystery girl who saw a two-gun killer wipe out "Prince Johnny" Volpe be held virtually incommunicado, Frank Ferris, homicide squad head, today planned to confer with District Attorney Andrew T. Park about going to Italy for Giuseppe Spinelli.

For it was "Big Mike" Spinelli's picture that the blonde girl picked out of a score or more in the rogues gallery. And she is the only known witness to the massacre of John, Arthur and James Volpe at their Wylie avenue rendezvous July 29, 1932.

Ferris lacked official notification that Spinelli was to be released for trial here, but press dispatches from Washington which said the State Department had been so informed were taken as authoritative.

The alleged gunman had appealed to Italian courts to prevent extradition for nearly a year.

The blonde girl, detectives said, is confined to a home where she was taken a month after the killing. They fear that gunmen may try to "snatch" her, in the event Spinelli goes on trial here.

Bogus Revenue Man Gets Mercy

J. Irving Buck, alias J. B. Burton, 46, of Washington, convicted yesterday in Federal Court of posing as an internal revenue agent, was placed on probation for two years. The jury recommended extreme mercy.

Mrs. Chaney Leaves $25,000 to Fiance

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A specific bequest of $10,000 with provisions that he be given an additional $15,000 from the residue of the estate after other bequests are paid was willed by Mrs. Hazel Chaney, widow of the late Lon Chaney, film actor, to John Jeske, the man whom she was engaged to marry.

For many years Jeske was Chaney's trusted companion and makeup man.

POLICE SEEKING VANISHED GIRL

Supt. of Police Franklin T. McQuaide today ordered a city-wide search for Miss Rita Rich, 17, of 3948 Woolslayer way, missing from her home for three days.

Miss Rich was last seen, according to a report to the Missing Persons Bureau, leaving a black sedan of expensive make with two men in front of a hotel at St. Clair and Penn avenues in East Liberty.

FORMER PITT HERO TO WED

The romance of a former University of Pittsburgh star which did not "bud" on the gridiron came to light today when a marriage license was issued to William P. "Whitey" Walinchus, a Pitt star of 1929-30, and Miss Shirley E. H. Hill, a graduate nurse, of 305 Atwood street. Walinchus is now a dentist in Mahanoy City, Pa.

Speeding Gang's Attempt To Free Prisoners Fails

Sleuth Auto Forced To Wall, But Guns Foil Attack

An automobile load of Baltimore and Ohio Railroad detectives reported they were crowded against a retaining wall on Second avenue early today by three men in another machine in an attempt to liberate two prisoners the detectives had arrested in connection with the alleged theft of 1,200 pounds of copper wire from a freight car.

City detectives, following in another machine with drawn guns, frustrated the attempted liberation and arrested Patrick Hydeck, 31, of 30 Rutherglen street; George Mitchell, 27, of 4 Kansas street, and James Murphy, 32, of Forward avenue, on charges of interfering with an officer, they said.

The detectives were uninjured.

The suspects in the railroad detective machine were Steve Mitchell, 19, of 4 Kansas street, brother of George, and Stanley Kiashinski, 27, of 22 Composite street. They were arrested by the railroad police after an investigation of the thefts from a B. & O. freight car in the railroad yards last Monday night.

Others involved in the alleged thefts and arrested early today are Andy Habriuyok, 19, of 13 Composite street, and Joseph Vargo, Jr., 18. All were charged with being suspicious persons.

Charged with receiving stolen goods, Benny Fibus, 45, of 406 Atwood street, was arrested in his home early today.

Man May Lose Arm Hurt in Street Row

William Easton, 23, of 1090 Edgebrook avenue, may lose his right arm as the result of a street fight last night at Elm and Whitcomb street, involving Easton's brother, Richard, 22, and Fred and Abe Owens, of Castle Shannon, brothers of the younger Easton's wife.

Police broke up the battle, said to have followed a family argument, and arrested Fred Owens and Richard Easton. The injured man was taken to Mercy Hospital.

James A. Farrell, Jr., Engaged to Marry

DARIEN, Conn., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. William Bogarth Hill, of Oxridge, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emilie Hill, to James A. Farrell, Jr., of Norwalk and New York, youngest son of the former chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation.

Hill is president of the American Radiator Company.

M'DADE MAY WED GIRL

The plea of Edward J. McDade, 23, of 2136 Charles street, former movie theater proprietor, that he be permitted to wed Mary Danahey, 17, of Hope Hollow road, Carnegie, will be answered next week by Judge James H. Gray, if McDade obtains the consent of the girl's parents.

McDade made his plea after he had been exonerated of complicity in connection with the death of his wife, Grace, who died of injuries following her leap from his automobile October 19 by a Coroner's jury yesterday.

McDade and his wife were quarreling over the Danahey girl when she jumped to her death. Miss Danahey was recently committed to Morganza on a charge of incorrigibility. She was released yesterday to testify at the inquest. When she left the stand she fainted. Upon being revived she ran into McDade's arms.

GOLLMAR 683 VOTES AHEAD

Sheriff Frank I Gollmar today appeared to have won his re-election barring unforseen developments in recounts or contests.

With only 122 districts remaining to be tabulated by the Return Board, Gollmar led John Heinz, Democrat, with 153,362 votes to 152,679 for Heinz.

Democrats, however, continued to assert their confidence. Attorney B. B. McGinnis predicted that a number of districts would be thrown out before litigation was over, making Heinz victor.

In Braddock, a recount of three districts upset the slight lead of Burgess James H. Rose, and indicated the election of Fred Seim, Democrat, to that office by six votes, according to Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay.

Variety Club Ward Her Daughter, Woman Says

A Duluth, Minn., woman who claims to be the mother of Catherine Variety Sheridan, ward of the Variety Club, has written John H. Harris, former president of the club, for her return.

The handwriting of the letter is to be checked with the handwriting upon the note, if it can be found, attached to Catherine when she was abandoned in the Sheridan Square Theater, December 27, 1928.

The writer of the letter also asked Mr. Harris to find her husband.

Catherine, in Roselia Foundling Asylum, will celebrate her fifth birthday, this month.

Cartoon of 'Solitude' In Tub Wins Onions

Miss Marcella Comes' cartoon of Felice Carena's "Solitude" was awarded first prize last night at the Architectural Club of Pittsburgh's exhibit of cartoons of the paintings at the Thirty-first International exhibit.

The cartoon was adjudged the "strongest" cartoon of the many entered. Miss Comes "undressed" the trio in the original and placed them in a bathtub. She won a sack of onions.

Of the three cartoons of John Carroll's "Cowboy Dream" Caroline H. Oliver's was judged the best—or something.

Miss Oliver removed the nude lady from the steer, where she was reclining in the original picture, draped her over a soda fountain and renamed the picture "A Drug Store Cowboy's Dream."

The burlesque was not without the Mae West influence. The third prize, a take-off of Umberto Romano's "The American Venus in Furs" (said furs hiding very little of Venus) was renamed "Come Up Some Time."

assistants busy making Christmas toys.

PIRATES AND KNIGHTS

Also included in the line of march were Joan of Arc, Humpty Dumpty, pirates, cowboys, knights in armor, clowns, Chinese mandarins and coolies and other characters of story book fame.

Interspersing the array were drum and bugle corps of the Swift Mission Brigade, Brentwood, McKeesport and Greentree; the Pittsburgh police and firemen's drum and bugle corps, a German band accompanied by Dutch boys and girls and half a dozen other bands. Heralds were 12 trumpeters in medieval costumes.

Director Edward G. Lang greeted the marchers in the absence of Mayor John S. Herron.

COMICS SHARE HONORS

Following the parade, thousands of youngsters headed for the toy departments, there to be greeted personally by Santa Claus and characters of the Sun-Telegraph comic pages, who stepped from the "funnies" to hold court for a day.

Sharing honors with Santa, they were located as follows throughout the day:

Barney Google, Boggs and Buhl; Tillie the Toiler, Frank and Seder's; Polly, of Polly and Her Pals, Friends; Maggie and Jiggs, Gimbels; Inspector Day, Hahn's, 809 Federal street; Popeye, Horne's; Mickey Mouse, Kaufmann's; the Captain, of the Katzenjammer Kids, McCreery's; Felix the Cat, May-Stern's; Toots and Casper, Rosenbaum's; Skippy, Spear's; Boob McNutt, Sears-Roebuck; Orphan Annie, Harris', and Quin Hall's Junior Patrol, Boyd's.

But regardless of rain or shine outside, the toy departments inside the city's department stores have their Christmas opening, and special exhibits are on display to entertain the children.

ROUTE OF PARADE

Police reserves were on duty to handle traffic and crowds, and extra street cars were put into service to accommodate the parade-goers. The route of the parade was as follows:

Ridge and Irwin avenues, North Side, to Ohio street, West Diamond and South Diamond, Federal street, Sixth Street Bridge, Penn avenue, Stanwix street, Liberty avenue, Sixth avenue, Smithfield street, Fourth avenue and Grant street, to the City-County Building, where the reviewing stand was located.

Judges were George Seibel, of the Sun-Telegraph; Kaspar Monahan, of the Pittsburgh Press, and Harvey Gaul, of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

OPENS BUYING DRIVE

The event served as the opening signal for Christmas buying in Pittsburgh following an intensive campaign urging inauguration of Yuletide shopping before Thanksgiving due to the lateness of the latter holiday, which falls only 25 days before Christmas this year.

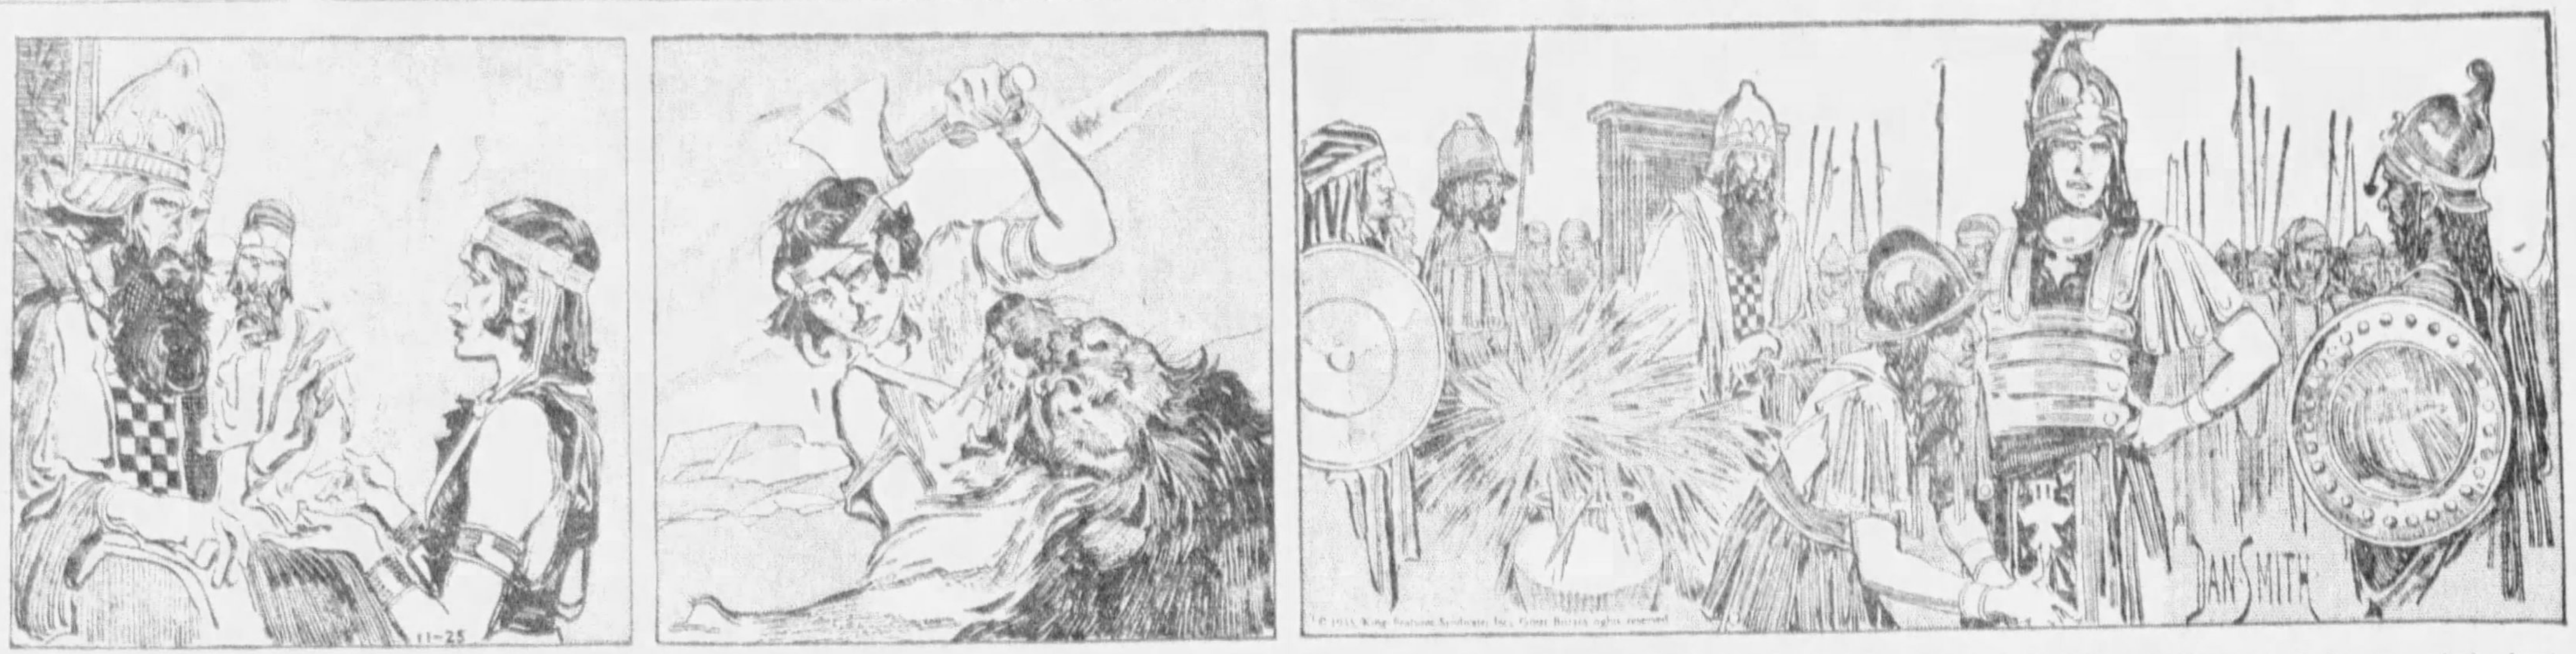
THANKSGIVING TO BE SERMON THEME TOMORROW

The Story of David -:- CHAPTER IV -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith



And when they saw the giant, Goliath of Gath, all the men of Israel were sore afraid except David, who said to Saul: "Let no man's heart fail because of him; thy servant will go out and fight with this Philistine."

Then Saul feared for David because of his youth. But David told Saul how he slew a bear that had seized a lamb, and that when a lion rose up against him he caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him.

Thus David assured Saul, and told him the Lord that had delivered him out of the paw of the bear, and out of the paw of the lion, would deliver him also out of the hand of Goliath of Gath, who had defied the armies of Israel to send out a man against him. Then Saul said: "Go, and the Lord be with thee." And Saul armed David with his armor, and put an helmet of brass upon his head; also he armed him with a coat of mail.

BOWMAN TALKS ON MANNERS

A student may eat pie with his fingers or leave his spoon in his coffee cup, but if he has good manners in the essentials people won't care, according to Chancellor John G. Bowman of the University of Pittsburgh, addressing the twelfth annual reception to parents of freshmen last night in Memorial Hall, Oakland.

The Chancellor continued:

"If you have sent your child here so he will make more money later in life, take him out now; our purpose is merely to teach him to enjoy a fuller meaning of the things in life."

More than 1,000 persons attended. A reception followed.

NEW RAMP PLAN INDORSED

The committee appointed by Mayor John S. Herron to study plans for the new Federal Building vehicular ramp will submit another plan to the Mayor.

The new porposal, agreed upon late yesterday by the committee at a meeting in Council chambers, is very simlar to plan "A" adopted several weeks ago by the committee, but disapproved by federal engineers who said it involved too much property damage.

The latest proposal would have the ramp overhead Seventh avenue, go through the old P. and A. Telephone building and end at Tunnel street. It would connect with the proposed Liberty-Crosstown thoroughfare.

Lithuanian Flier Due to Arrive Here

James R. James, Lithuanian airman, who intends to fly the Atlantic next summer, was expected to arrive in Pittsburgh today. He will give an exhibition of flying at Bettis Field tomorrow. James, expected to arrive yesterday, was forced down at Altoona by bad weather.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Santa Claus is going to visit the McNair household, all right. The Mayor-elect told Reporter William Pfarr that above all else he would rather have for Christmas an old-fashioned dish of Schnitz and Knepp. That's Pennsylvania Dutch for apples and dough. He said he never had a good dish of it in this town.

That's all going to be changed now, because, after the noon broadcast, Mrs. Sara Rohrbacher, of Cedarhurst street, an artist when it comes to preparing this difficult dish, is going to make some for Mr. McNair.

Mrs. Albert C. Stark, of Carrick, who also knows how to make it as it should be made, wants to be among the first to offer the new Mayor her version of it.

It does my heart good to see some of these globe trotters suffer over that last mathematical problem. They will taunt me and say the problems are too easy, will they?

William J. Miller, Apollo, is so worn out he is seeing circles and so, he tells me, are several teachers of algebra.

William F. Uniontown writes me in French thusly:

Cher ami:—Vous etes slightly off n'est ce pas?

That probably means that he almost has the answer.

Ripley's Great Exhibit Set for Opening Here

'Amazing Facts Found in This District Win Tickets

Contradicted more often than believed, Robert L. Ripley always proves his "unbelievable" facts and in the presentation of his Century of Progress Exposition's ODDITORIUM here next week, the public will actually see the original of hundreds of oddities and curiosities.

Further evidence that such oddities do exist is daily being proved by Sun-Telegraph readers who are finding new amazing and puzzling facts right in the Tri-State district.

These facts are being submitted in the paper's contest that offers 200 free tickets to the ODDITORIUM here.

HERE THROUGH WEEK

The interesting and educational attraction that was viewed by more than one and a half million persons at Chicago's World Fair, will be presented here by the Sun-Telegraph all next week.

The 300 inanimate curiosities and some 25 human oddities, including subjects found by Ripley since the fair closed, will be presented in the spacious storeroom of the former Campbell department store at 333 Fifth avenue, transformed into a block-long ODDITORIUM extending through to Oliver avenue, in the heart of the downtown.

Here will be seen interest-commanding exhibits not alone found in this country, but gathered from 151 lands through which Ripley has traveled 600,000 miles in search of "Believe It Or Not" puzzlers.

Many will be the originals of facts illustrated in Ripley's daily and Sunday feature cartoons in the Sun-Telegraph. Incidentally, these cartoons are read by 30,000,000 newspaper subscribers in this country, Canada and 23 foreign nations.

OPENS MONDAY NIGHT

This colossal world-wide collection will be formally opened at 7 o'clock Monday night. Continuous performances will be given daily the remainder of the week, opening at 11:45 a. m., except on Thanksgiving Day and Saturday when the doors will open at 10 a. m.

The admission for adults will be the small price of 40 cents at all times. Children of 12 years and under will be admitted for 15 cents with special 10-cent matinees Thanksgiving and Saturday between 10 a. m. and noon. The Sun-Telegraph share of proceeds will be given to Christmas charity.

And the Monday night opening will mark the end of the contest. All entries must be received—addressed to Ripley Contest, care Sun-Telegraph, before midnight Monday.

ODDITORIUM TICKETS TO CONTESTANTS

For the best "BELIEVE IT OR NOTS" submitted in the Sun-Telegraph contest, 200 FREE TICKETS will be awarded for Ripley's ODDITORIUM, opening Monday and continuing through Saturday, at 333 Fifth avenue. All entries must be received by Monday midnight.

One hundred tickets will be mailed for the strangest facts submitted by adults. Another 100 will go to boys and girls.

Read Ripley cartoons in the Sun-Telegraph. Follow his ideas. Address your entry to the Ripley Contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Seek Higher Type Radio Dramas

By AIRCASTER

The glorification of gag and pun which has lent a doubtful distinction to radio for nearly two years, seems at last to have lost its velocity.

One judges so from the fact that farther-sighted showmen of the broadcasting business are surveying the legitimate theater preparatory to evolving a substitute for the primitive plays heard to date.

What have passed for dramatics up to now, fall unhappily into the category of infantile theater—crude eposides of adventure and mystery, thrillers and mawkish love stories.

* * *

Lowbrow?

The failure of the production men to lift themselves above this level, except in isolated instances, probably is linked to a theory that the radio audience is immature and unprepared for the O'Neills, Galsworthys, Cowards, Kellys, etc.

The answer to that one, of course, is the current and enthusiastic appreciation of the customers, of the symphonies and other melodic classics.

If they can digest such ponderous music, legitimate drama should come as nectar. If an audience isn't prepared, after 11 years, the situation would appear indeed to be rather discouraging.

* * *

Experimenters

Drama hasn't thrived on the air, mainly because it hasn't been drama; because it has remained at the mercy of studio experimenters rather than tendered to the patricians of the theater, and because it has been hindered by script rather than helped by skill.

An awakening seems to be near at hand.

Somewhat shamefacedly, both major networks are casting ogling eyes at all available and established thespians and accepted playwrights.

The portents say the legitimized play is coming to replace the comics, even though the belated improvement will not materialize until the new year.

* * *

How Come

What lent impetus to this decision was the manner in which groups of old-timers from the stage put to shame the studio regulars, on the occasion of the recent broadcasts during NBC's dedication of its New York home.

The thrillers live on, however, and continue to be gaudy and haphazard.

Mawkish love eposides are even less favored than wild adventure, a sample of which we are shown in the "lives at stake" eposides, and the espionage skits by K-7.

* * *

Periscope Ho!

And even more thrillers are on the way—hair-raisers, based on truth. The newest of these is "Submarine Thrills," which debuts Sunday on WCAE, and which will leave the listener breathless or in a faint, with dramatizations of undersea exploits during wartime.

To add to the set-up, the program will be preceded, at 3:30 p. m. Sunday, by salty chanties, designed to put you in the mood. And, of course, there are ghost tales, which begin with "The Black Veil," on December 3, on KDKA.

Mark Shields Gives Political Review

Mark Shields, Political Editor of the Sun-Telegraph, reviews the week in politics over WCAE tonight at 6.

The Globe Trotter, voice of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, airs the day's news over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 p. m., and over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Army-Navy Football Game

The colorful spectacle of an Army-Navy football game—the gay throngs in the Blue and Gray sections of the stands, military bands, Cadet and Midshipmen parades, uniformed cheering sections—and the hardest-fought gridiron battles of the year, is described over two nationwide networks this afternoon.

Columbia-WJAS, with Bill Slater at the sideline microphone, broadcasts the game at 12:35 p. m. NBC-KDKA joins the broadcast at 1:45, with Don Wilson announcing.

* * *

Yale-Harvard

WCAE brings its listeners a play-by-play description of the annual Yale-Harvard contest at 1:45.

A telegraphic re-creation of the Tech-N. Y. U. game is heard over WWSW at 2.

And at the close of the Army-Navy clash, WJAS switches to South Bend, for Ted Husing's description of the Notre Dame-Southern California game.

* * *

Pa Pitt

A tabloid review of Pittsburgh's 175 years of progress in industry, art and commerce is heard over WCAE in dramatic form at 8:30.

Musical works of Pittsburgh composers—Ethelbert Nevin, Stephen Foster, Victor Herbert and Richard Kountz—will be featured on the program by Cliff Marshall's orchestra.

Frank Harper, Chamber of Commerce official, will make a brief address.

* * *

Bert Nevin

Sewickley goes on the network, coast-to-coast, tonight at 6:15, with a sketch of Ethelbert Nevin's life and a selection of his most famous compositions.

Today is "Bert" Nevin's birthday, and KDKA has made it possible for the entire nation to join the great composer's intimate friends and relatives in Sewickley in a pleasant drawing room recital such as Nevin, often gave in the Valley.

The program, heard over an NBC-KDKA network, will consist of organ and vocal numbers and a story of Nevin's life. The artists will be Lois Miller, Helen Bell Rush, Arthur Davis and the Fireflies trio.

Dick Byrd

The second short-wave program from the Byrd South Pole expedition will (weather permitting) bring the voices of Byrd and his shipmates of the SS. Jacob Ruppert across thousands of miles of sea and land to Columbia-WJAS listeners at 10.

* * *

Seymour Simmons, composer of "Honey," "Breezing Along With the Breeze," "Tie a Little String Around Your Finger" and many other popular songs, conducts his orchestra in a new series of programs beginning over CBS-WJAS at 8:30.

"HONEYSUCKLE" Is a Gorgeous Doll

Dear Little Girls:

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forgot to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes, you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?

Before Analana Beeson's debut dance in the Fox Chapel Golf Club Thanksgiving night, Mary Childs will entertain in her home with a small dinner for Harriet Ramsburg. Harriet's marriage to Putnam Goldsbury will take place December 7.

To Give Dinner

The Maurice Trimbles and the Hartley Walkers will entertain for them with a supper December 4 in the Walker home; and Margaret McCready, who'll be maid of honor, will give a breakfast for the bride-elect on the same day.

Women Sponsor Program for Industries

The Women's Auxiliary to the Goodwill Industries will sponsor a program tomorrow afternoon in the Goodwill Settlement Building, at Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street. Members of the Goodwill Mothers' Club and children belonging to the Goodwill Settlement will be the guests.

Mrs. J. Charles Wilson will give readings and Jean Lewis, 10-year-old violinist, will play, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Harry G. Lewis.

There will be a big time for young and old of the various Goodwill activities, on December 20, when, under auspices of the Auxiliary, a special Christmas program will be given. It will feature Bill McKechnie, baseball manager, and his son, Bill McKechnie, Jr., in a series of "father and son" songs.

Mrs. Graham to Entertain Turtle Creek Juniors

Mrs. Paul Graham, senior patroness for the Junior Woman's Club of Turtle Creek, will entertain the members on Monday evening, and Mrs. E. R. Davis, district chairman of juniors in the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, will address the meeting.

At the performances of "Make Believe" this afternoon and evening by the Dramatic Club of Pennsylvania College for Women the ushers are Virginia Hall, Dorothy Campbell, Helen McCreery, Caroline Peirce, Eleanor Jane McClimans, Betty Graham, Sara Ochiltree and Louise Metzgar.

The production is being sponsored by the Alumnae Association of the college and this afternoon children from the Industrial Home for Crippled Children are guests.

Phi Sigma Sigma Dance To Be Held December 1

Phi Sigma Sigma alumnae are planning a Thanksgiving dance for December 1, in honor of the active members. Madelyn Safyan is chairman and members of her committee are Dorothy Slone, Rhea Robin and Syd Saul.

Epsilon Chapter at Adelphi College, Long Island, will be hostess at the annual convention of Phi Sigma Sigma at the Park Lane Hotel, New York City, December 29-31. Helen Bart is to be the delegate from Iota Chapter at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. J. F. Guy to Address Linden P.T.A. Monday

Dr. J. Freeman Guy, assistant superintendent of schools, will address the first meeting of Linden Parent-Teacher Association on Monday evening. A reception will supplement the program hour.

Louise Neely Married to K.R. Johns

Announcements are made of two marriages today, one that was solemnized last month, and another to take place in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Neely, of Beaver street, Sewickley, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Louise Neely, to Kermit R. Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Johns, of Hill street, Sewickley. The ceremony took place October 21.

Sunday, December 24, is the date named by Miss Cele L. Leff for her marriage to Jack H. Feingold. Miss Neff is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Leff, of Pittsburgh, and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Feingold, of Wheeling, W. Va.

Council Adds 130 Members This Fall

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, has added 130 new members to itself since the current season began. And it's all due to the efforts of the new personnel committee, of which Mrs. Sigmund Arnold is chairman.

A series of teas is being given to which prospective members are invited and the president, Mrs. Charles B. Buerger explains the advantages of "belonging." At one of these 18 of the 20 prospects joined Council.

Mrs. Louis M. Alpern, Squirrel Hill avenue, is hostess today and next Saturday Mrs. Leon Wertheimer, of Northumberland street, will entertain at another in the series. Mrs. Morris Balter and Mrs. Leo Half were recent hostesses, Mrs. Half entertaining all the brides who are prospects.

A questionnaire is given each new member and by means of this she is immediately placed in a congenially active post in council work. Mrs. Benjamin Steinberg is membership extension chairman and Mrs. Fannie Weinhaus is still membership chairman, a position which she has filled ever since the section was organized.

Sorority Alumnae Bridge Reservations Announced

Tables for the benefit bridge being given by the Pittsburgh Alumnae of Zeta Tau Alpha at McCreery's today, have been reserved by Miss Florence Bailey, Miss Virginia Beck, Mrs. Anne Couch Hardesty, Miss Ruth Edwards, Miss Thelma Heesom, Miss Jane Howard, Mrs. Lottie Lohstoetter, Miss Katherine Maneval, Mrs. Betty Duff Riggs, Miss Diana Vujnovic, Miss Louise B. Wright, Miss Charlotte and Miss Harriet Bailey.

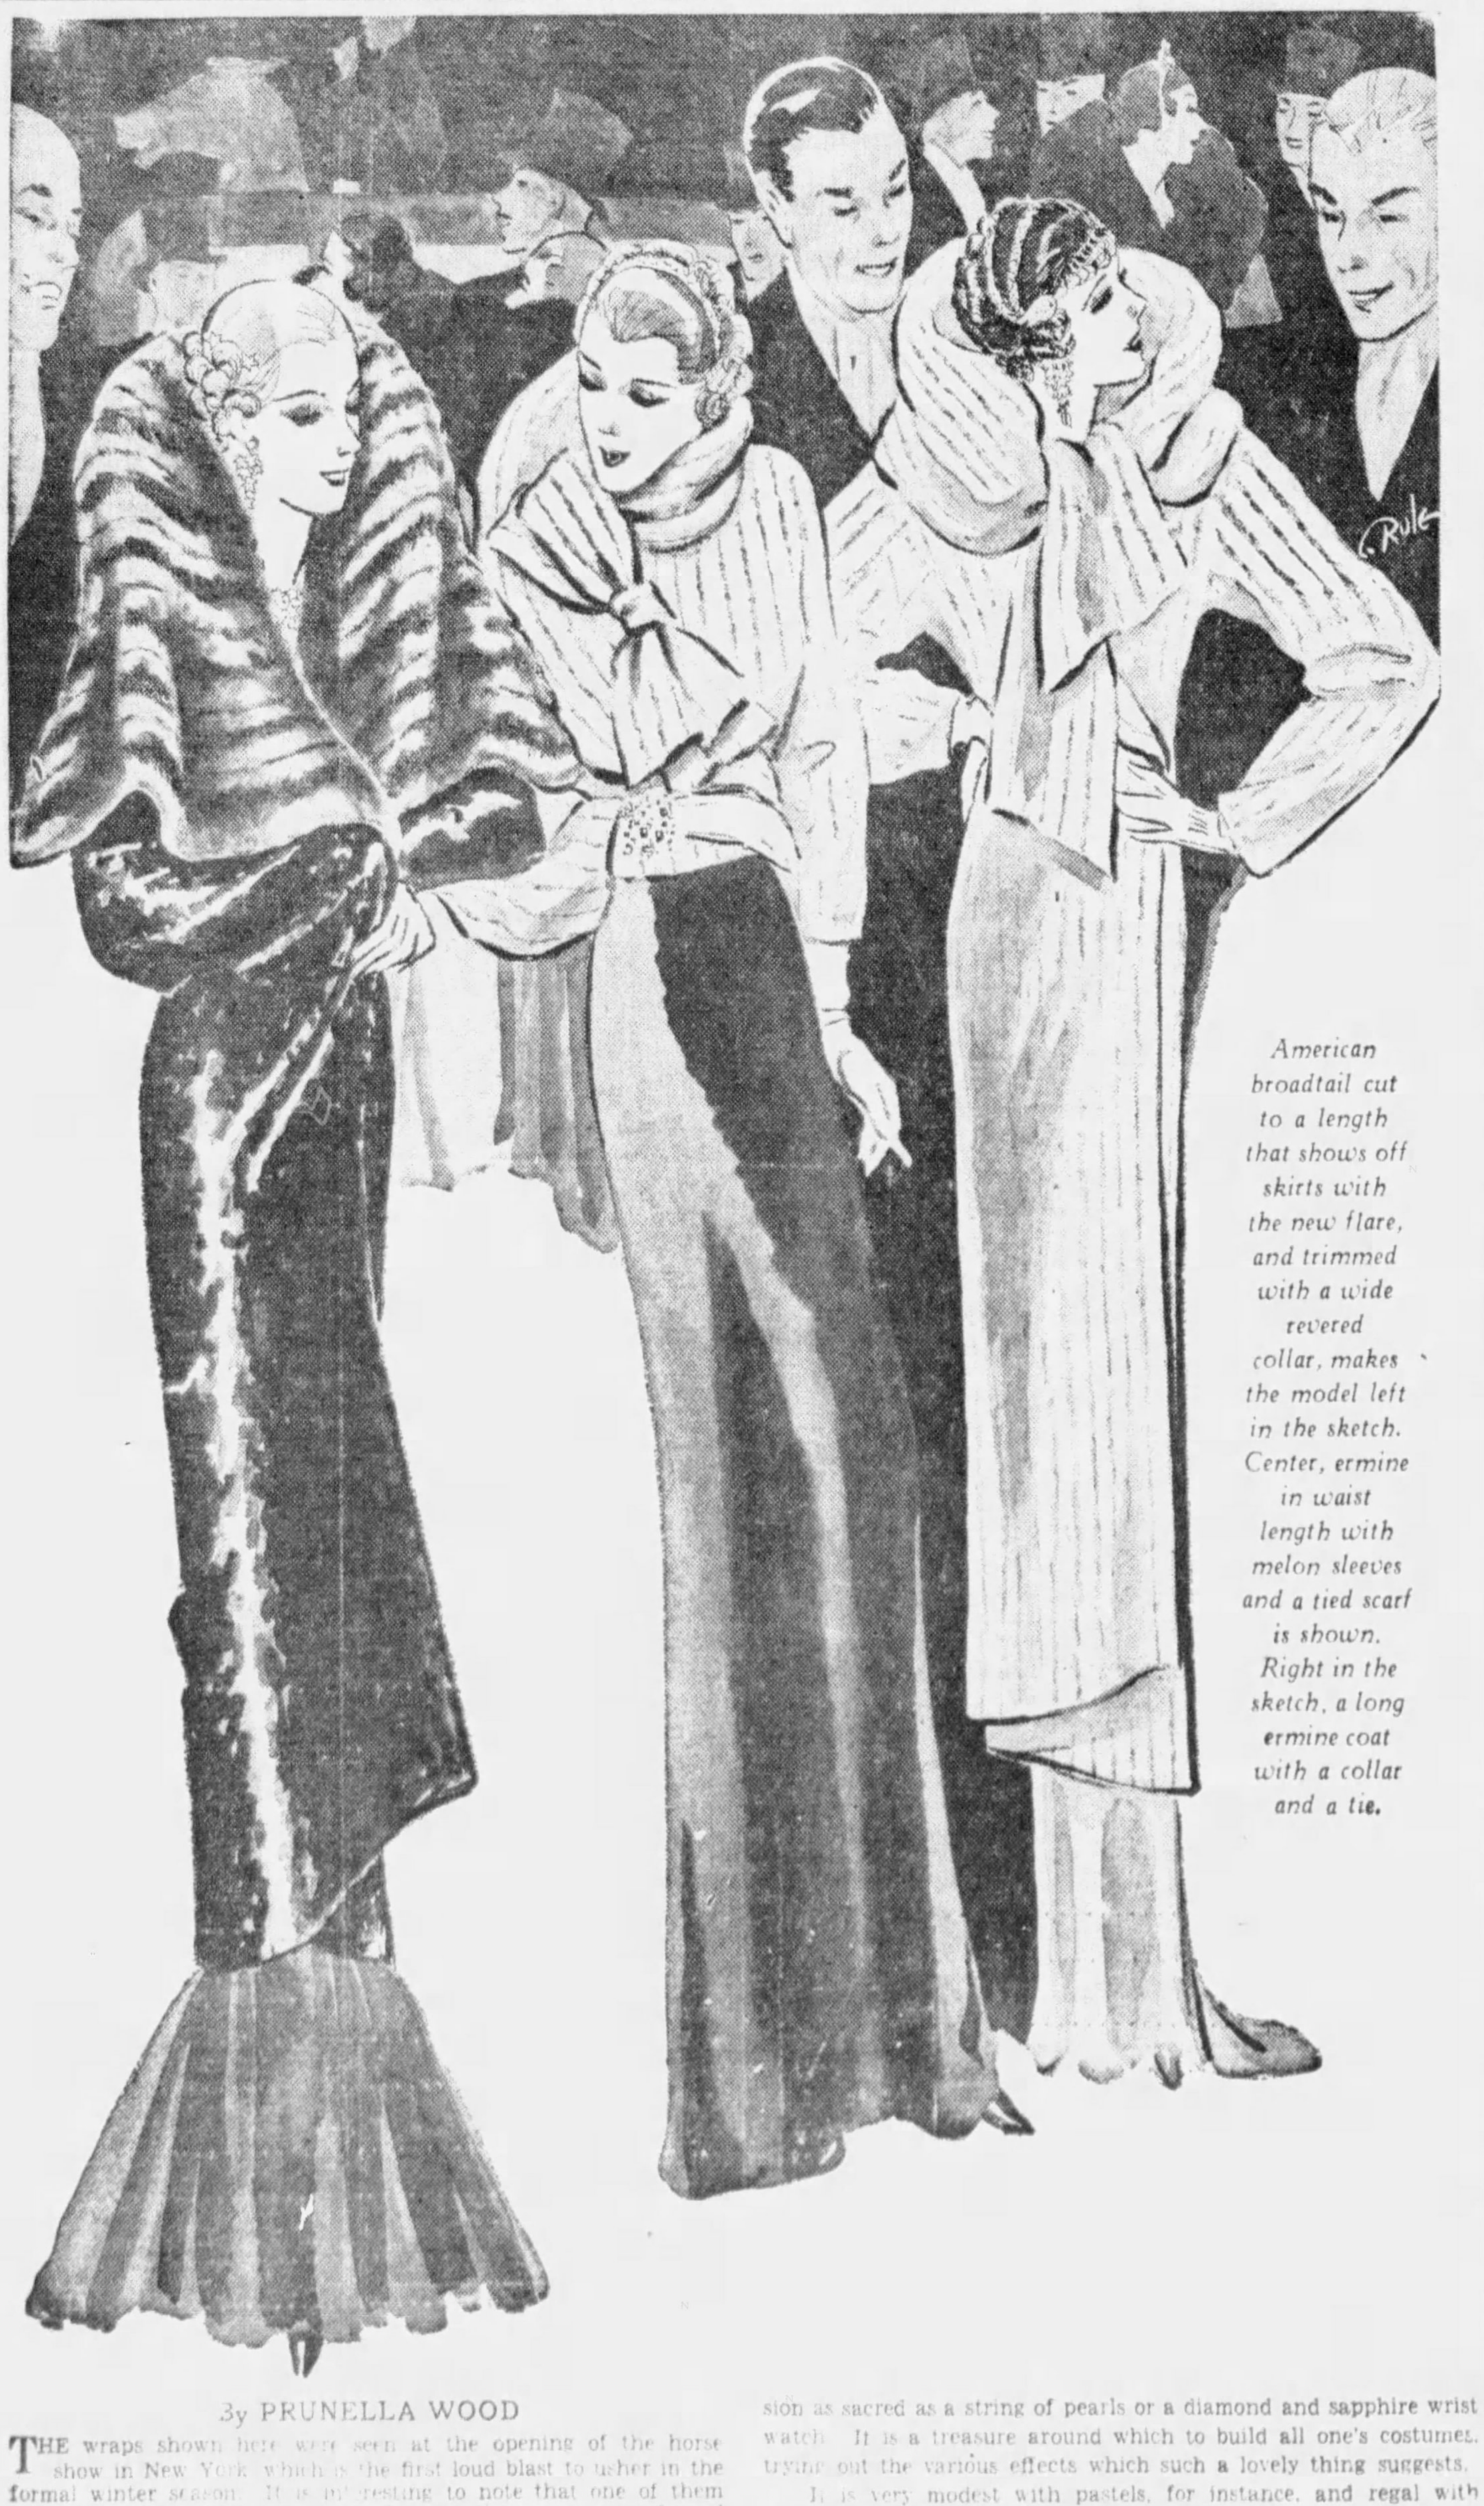
Female College Group To Hear Pastor Speak

"America in the Light of Hitlerism and Communism" will be discussed by the Rev. Harold Ockenga before the Pittsburgh Female College Association Monday afternoon. At the meeting, which will be held in the Woman's City Club, Mrs. Walter E. Close will sing and read, accompanied by Mrs. W. D. James and the customary social hour will follow.

Bellevue Council, K. of C., Giving Turkey Party

Bellevue Council No. 1400, K. of C., will give a turkey party tonight in the council house, Bellevue.

FINE FURS MAKE LUXURIOUS WRAPS



American broadtail cut to a length that shows off skirts with the new flare, and trimmed with a wide revered collar, makes the model left in the sketch. Center, ermine in waist length with melon sleeves and a tied scarf is shown. Right in the sketch, a long ermine coat with a collar and a tie.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE wraps shown here were seen at the opening of the horse show in New York which is the first loud blast to usher in the formal winter season. It is interesting to note that one of them at least, the broadtail, is not too showy to wear with very formal afternoon gowns, say to governmental receptions or high hat weddings, when a hat is an important part of the toilette.

The short ermine wrap shown has all the impudence of the bunny wrap, but with its own lush, snowy difference. This is the sort of garment which is worth its purchase price many times over, for it is perfect for the limousine trade in the North, and also for open car wear in Palm Beach.

* * *

ANY woman who ever owned one (and those who are planning to eventually) knows that a full length ermine coat is a possession as sacred as a string of pearls or a diamond and sapphire wrist watch. It is a treasure around which to build all one's costumes, trying out the various effects which such a lovely thing suggests.

It is very modest with pastels, for instance, and regal with jewel colors. With black it can be very, very young; with lace it is feminine as a Viennese waltz.

* * *

THERE is a tip to all women who have elegant fur evening wraps concealed in this sketch. Not a corsage appears on one! They just don't sit well on a high cut wrap, and they stain ermine, anyway. With the very showy earrings and bracelets of the moment so much in evidence, no one misses "outside" orchids at all, and they can be preserved for the gown instead.

Mrs. J. E. Winner Will Speak in P.T.A. Series

Through the courtesy of Evelyn Gardner, director of the Home Forum hour of KDKA, the southwest district of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers has had the privilege of a radio hour on Monday afternoons during November.

Mrs. Joseph H. Grandey, president of the district, has asked Mrs. John E. Winner, president of the Allegheny County Council P. T. A., to conclude the series on Monday at 2:30. Mrs. Winner will discuss "Adolescence from a Parent's Standpoint."

International Events Topic of Crafton Club

International events will be discussed at the meeting of the educational department of the Crafton Woman's Club on Monday and Miss Effie L. Walker, of the faculty of the Pennsylvania College for Women, will be the guest speaker.

The meeting will be held in the Mrs. Val E. Schott's home, South Linwood avenue.

Mrs. Neff's Poem Widely Distributed in Europe

Mrs. May T. Neff's poem "There Shall Be No More War" has been published and distributed largely in many European countries. This was made known yesterday at the Poetry Society's breakfast and poetry contest in which the poem won second award. Mrs. Galen C. Hartman and Mrs. Mary McKibben, the latter of Miamia, Fla., won the other awards.

Rebekah Lodge, No. 365, To Give Dance Monday

A dance and card party will be held Monday evening at Malta Hall, Frankstown avenue, by Mary Magdalene Rebekah Lodge, No. 365. The affair is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Gertrude Leslie.

Legal Bonds Do Not Cause Marital Unhappiness

Should marriage be abolished?

Is it just a trap that kills romance, and would modern humans be happier without it?

One Mrs. Anita Block told the world that the answer to those questions was "yes." According to her, Really Smart People were going to do away with all weddings, in the interest of Bigger and Better Human Happiness.

Which made us wonder just what Miss and Mister Twentieth Century did think of marriage—and why.

So we asked 'em.

Answers? We'll let Mrs. Hazel Jones file hers.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

Do away with marriage? What nonsense! Maybe it would be easier for selfish, shallow people to walk out on a difficult partner—but just what would that buy anyone, in the end?

Mrs. Block doesn't answer that question when she so airily abolishes marriages. The answer is, of course—walking out on responsibility never buys anyone anything.

If you're a selfish, shallow person in marriage, you're going to be a selfish, shallow person without marriage, and you'll still carry the cause of all your misery right with you, in your own weak nature.

And if you aren't a selfish, shallow person, you'll stick to your responsibilities until you've done your very best to solve them, whether the law forces you to do so or not.

PEOPLE'S FAULT

It isn't the legal bond that makes people unhappy in marriage; it's their own cussedness. And dispensing with the legal bond wouldn't do away with that cussedness. It would just give them a chance to make more misery—for themselves and for everyone else.

Wedding ceremonies and legal ties can't mess up marriage for people who are willing to play fair, who are understanding, sympathetic, generous and good-natured. Such people will willingly conform to any convention that helps civilization, and will do their best under any conditions.

As for the other people—the selfish, ruthless egotists who think of their own gratification first—I believe in controlling such people in every way possible for the sake of the common good, just as I believe in controlling potential murderers or robbers or kidnapers.

It's just silly, smarty talk to say that "most of us can dispense with laws." We can't. We're not sufficiently civilized yet. The great majority of human beings are still selfish savages at heart.

PROTECTS HELPLESSNESS

That's why marriage was invented—to protect helplessness; to make us stand steady during the inevitable times of boredom and discontent. Those times come to even the best of us. We need then to have some pressure on us that will make us realize the gravity of the steps we've taken and the seriousness of the other fellow's need.

Free Love—there's no such thing. Life is never free. We can't have anything worth while without paying for it. And love, which is worth more than anything else, also costs more than anything else. And if we really love, we'll be willing to pay the price.

That's my answer to Mrs. Anita Block. And, with all her smart talk about free love, I notice that she has protected Anita with a perfectly good title of "Mrs." and all the other legal fixings!

MRS. HAZEL JONES.

Some answer, isn't it! Now what's yours? Suppose you were given the chance to make this old world over—fix things according to your pet notions—what would you do about marriage? Wipe out the laws, or make stricter ones? Let's hear.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Squeeze on the Sixth Trick

The squeeze play is one of the recognized tools of an expert by means of which tricks not visible to the naked eye are realized in actual play through forcing one or both adversaries to give up defense at some critical point in the play. It is unusual for squeezes to develop in mid-play. Usually the crucial play develops at the eleventh trick.

The hand below, played by an expert, is an example of a squeeze play which the Declarer, through proper card reading, developed on the sixth trick, and which permitted the fulfillment of a doubled Slam contract with an extra trick.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠8753 ♡KQ975 ◇A6 ♣A5
♠62 ♡84 ◇J109842 ♣762	North West East South	♠KJ4 ♡J1063 ◇K7 ♣J1083
	♠AQ109 ♡A2 ◇Q53 ♣KQ94

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♠	Pass	3♡ (1)	Pass
3NT (2)	Pass	4NT (3)	Pass
5NT	Pass	6♠	Pass
6NT (4)	Pass	Pass	Double (5)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—While the hand contains only 3 honor-tricks, the Forcing Takeout is justified because of the splendid fit with partner's bid suit.

2—South has more than a minimum but he wishes to disclose the balanced nature of his hand by the game bid in no-trump.

3—A forcing bid, requiring a further response.

4—South's choice of notrump in preference to spades is questionable.

5—While East is unwilling to double six spades, apparently the fact that he has both clubs and hearts stopped and a probable diamond trick is the basis of the Double of this contract.

West made the natural Opening lead of the Knave of diamonds, and the Ace was played from Dummy, East's Double apparently marking him with the diamond King. South now led a spade from Dummy and took the double finesse against the King-Knave, which, in view of what South knew about the other suits, seemed to be marked in the East hand. The Dummy was re-entered by the lead of a low club, and another finesse in spades taken. The remaining spades were now run, and on the sixth trick, which was the last spade, East was in difficulties as to a discard. To discard either a club or a heart would, establish these suits either in the Declarer's or Dummy hand. The discard of the diamond King would be equally ineffective as the squeeze would then be repeated on the next trick. In actual play East chose to discard a club, but defense of any sort was impossible.

TODAY'S QUESTION

First Hand bid two hearts originally and Third Hand, holding bid five hearts. Was this the correct bid or should Third Hand have bid three diamonds?

Answer—With such a strong hand an immediate five-no-trump response is possible. This shows three honor-tricks including an Ace, when it is made following partner's Forcing two-bid. It would be possible to bid three diamonds on the hand, but the bid is really unessential since it is difficult to picture any holding partner might have for a two-bid which would not allow a Grand Slam to be made with ease.

Play for Boys

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Give a boy a few good tools and some nails and he's happy. He himself will find the crates and discarded wooden boxes necessary to creating a surprising array of attractive and useful novelties.

But the values of the boy's woodworking will lie even more in the training and self-discipline than it will in the tangible products themselves. No boy should be allowed to grow up without knowing what it is to own a tool chest of his very own.

It is important that the tools be good quality. Better a few good implements than a vast array of cheap ones which only give way when subjected to strenuous use and discourage the young craftsman from continuing his ambitious efforts to create. It is equally important that the boy be given a place in which to work to his heart's content without fear of upsetting his elders and having to listen to a chorus of "don'ts" and "be carefuls".

A spare room, a corner of the barn or garage, or even a corner of the basement if it is dry and well lighted, will make the embryo carpenter feel that he has a real shop of his own. Give him an occasional (but not too frequent) word of advice or encouragement and then leave his natural creative instinct to assert itself.

For the very small boy, lessons in driving nails straight and without painful consequences to the fingers are an essential preliminary. Then show him how a couple of orange crates can be nailed together to form a perfect four-room doll house, entirely open on one side. More complicated features, such as a roof, basement, or veranda can be added, insofar as the age and ability of the young builder permit.

Empty soap and starch boxes are indispensible to the embryo carpenter. The former, with the addition of four small wheels taken from an abandoned cart or sawed from wood, can be made into a serviceable vehicle for pleasure or strictly utilitarian purposes.

Perhaps more permanent objects to be created from the boxes are book shelves for the boy's room or nursery cupboards and cabinets for storing little sister's doll dishes and other playtime treasures. The more shallow boxes may be mounted on poles to serve as food trays and perches for the birds who are grateful for additional crumbs and suet during the lean winter months.

Remember that the little fellow can perform woodworking marvels as well as can his older brother, even though his achievements necessarily must be on a smaller scale. Let him experience the thrill of evolving a chef d'oeuvre from a cigar box!

'HEAR THEM BELLS' -o- -o-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"Rumor is a pipe," and on that pipe the voice of Christmas is beginning to be faintly heard. Santa Claus' bellowing laugh! Taxi horns frantic with frustration. Anxious mutterings of voices counting their cash. The roaring speech of the Winter Wind. The shuffle and tramp and tap of hurrying feet like the rapids of a dry river. The rasp of horns. The sonorous roll of the organs from churches, and the violin tones of singing children choruses. The whisper of snow ("oh, please, God send snow to play in this winter" pray the children of the temperate zone). The voice of the business street, which is light and color and display. And the silver, thinly sweet, never forgotten jingle of the BELLS ON THE LITTLE RED SLEIGH OF THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT. Christmas is round the corner, faint but exciting, and portentous, like the parade that a little child can hear down street out of sight.

"Comin' up!" So Jill is already taking a peek into her bank-book to see if it is going to stand the strain of her list. The list never lessens. It grows. There are the same old beloveds; but a new name and face takes a place in her album of loves. And there's another gift to feed the Buy-Now slogan!

What a lot of effort and THINKING goes into the buying of the gifts for the ones we love. There's Gram. Something she will LOVE, will use and not put away for her children and gran' children to enjoy. Something quiet enough to please her, and something modern enough to make Gram feel like she is getting younger. For Dad, something that will say a million-dollars' worth of love. For Jimmy and Sue—something that no child could resist. For Mother—Mom—something gorgeous, useful, and different. Something that the rest of the family won't use. For Uncle John, something to make him say, "Nobody but my little Jill would have ever thought of me wanting THAT!" For the best girl friend—something gay, giddy, priceless, and cheap. For the one young man. Something wonderful, big enough to please him, and little enough to be in good taste.

Some order for a young girl with a little bit of money, a big lot of love, and only Santa Claus to help her! —NELL BRINKLEY.

Edith Fairfax No Longer a Rival in Love

I shot a whimsical look at Dicky as he told me not to try to placate Edith Fairfax on his account. Did he imagine, I wondered, that I was taking the trouble to humiliate myself to Edith—for that was practically what I would have to do—for any other reason than because he wished it. With a little shrug I reflected that Dicky was no more obtuse where feminine reactions were concerned than the generality of men, and I made my voice as conciliatory as possible when I answered him.

"Don't be silly!" I adjured him in the most approved conjugal style. "I'm not doing it for you. I'm doing it for what you might call 'the general welfare'."

"You sound like the preamble to the constitution," Dicky said with a grin.

"I feel like three amendments," I told him, with an answering smile. "I'll feel like a telephone switchboard tomorrow, and Lillian will join me in the sentiment. Between us we have to phone Avis Arlen, Phil Veritzen, Helena Brixton and the dressmaking shop from one to three times apiece, to say nothing of all the local calls the final wedding preparations will entail."

"I feel like a criminal," Dicky said remorsefully, "piling another burden on your shoulders just at this time."

The remorseful note in his voice took away the sting of what he had asked me to do. After all this was no new problem—this of Edith Fairfax—and my distaste for it was tempered by the knowledge that I need never fear Edith as a rival for my husband's love.

HUSBAND GRATEFUL

"Please don't bother any more about it," I said. "I'll do my very best to placate her. But suppose I shouldn't be able to bring her into a better mood?"

Dicky promptly consigned Edith to a place which the old Victorians did not mention, and then, lounging over to me, kissed me tenderly.

"You're a good little scout," he said a bit huskily. "You deserve a better husband. Thanks a lot for this particular stunt, old dear. I won't forget it."

He turned abruptly on the words and went hastily out of the room, leaving me in a distinctly softened mood instead of the irritated one which I knew most wives would feel at a request such as Dicky had made of me.

It was long before I slept, and while my thoughts were troubled ones, they were not concerned at all with any problems of the wedding or anything concerning Edith Fairfax. All my thoughts were centered upon the girl whose name had not even been mentioned between Dicky and me, the mysterious "Floss" against whom Edith had warned me.

LILLIAN BUSY

I had banished from my heart the mean little suspicion of a few minutes before, that Dicky had been caressing and complimentary because he wished to get me in a complaisant mood before broaching his request to try to placate Edith Fairfax. Dicky, whatever else his faults, is not deceitful, and I finally soothed myself to slumber with the argument that he could not have been so dear as he had been in the last few minutes, if there was anything in the "Floss" episode which really was inimical to me.

I slept but fitfully, however, and wakened early; but when I went downstairs I found Lillian there before me, feverishly skimming the pages of a note book of addresses.

"I'm following a hunch," she said, as I came into the door. "If I can get hold of one of those women at the dress shop before she leaves home, it will save us time. She probably will have to put on some extra help, and the sooner she knows about the job the better. But I can't find her name anywhere. It's different, you know, from the firm name."

"I know," I said, smiling. "Suppose you look for Smithers, Anna."

She wrinkled her nose at me.

"That cussed memory of yours!" she said. "Or I suppose I should call it blessed. Stick around till I get her, will you?"

I "stuck around," although Lillian did not need me, as I soon found out during the telephone conversation. Mrs. Smithers was delighted to have the order, and promised to have the dresses finished by night, provided the girls came into the shop in time to be fitted. When Lillian put down the receiver, it was with a sign of satisfaction.

"Do you suppose it is too early to get hold of Avis Arlen?" she asked.

Household Hints

To make potatoes fluffy and light heat butter and milk together and beat into the mashed potatoes.

The breast or shoulder of veal is an inexpensive cut, but one which is very nutritious. It makes delicious stews, meat loaves or fricasseed dishes.

Salted almonds are somewhat of a luxury, especially if you buy them already salted. They are a little cheaper if you do them yourself. They should be blanched, fried in butter, drained and salted while still warm.

Every child of 4 or more likes to use scissors. He should have a pair of his own with blunt ends so that he cannot hurt himself. They should hang on a particular hook in his room where he knows he can always find them. Where there are two children, each should have his own pair, kept each on a hook and identified with a bit of wool tied in the handle in a different color for each child.

DOG PATTERN 601

Droll Dog Makes Gay Gift

Here is a Christmas gift that would please many people. This droll dog, which might be a Pekinese or a Poodle, will meet with loud approval as a toy for a little tot or as a mascot for the college girl or her somewhat younger sister. It can be made in some startlingly gay material or just in a cotton print. He is a nice size to cuddle, being about 14 inches when finished. He is easy to make and has floppy ears, as such a dog should have, and a tail that stands up stiffly, as in the picture.

Pattern 601 come to you with a pattern for the dog and full directions and yardages for making it.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

Psoriasis, Chronic Skin Disease, Not Contagious

"My neighbor who suffers from a skin disease called 'psoriasis' is very fond of my small son. I am concerned about my child catching the disease. Is there any danger?"

Dr. Copeland

I was glad to answer this letter and advise the worried parent that there is no need for anxiety. Psoriasis is a chronic inflammation of the skin. It is not contagious and cannot be transmitted from one individual to another. Nor is it a sign of general ill health, for strange as it may seem, the condition is frequently found in robust and otherwise perfectly healthy persons.

This baffling disease is frequently confused with eczema. Unlike eczema, psoriasis does not itch. It is dry, and is usually found on the unexposed surfaces of the body.

Eczema itches. It is moist, and may be found anywhere on the body, especially the hands and face. One thing eczema has in common with psoriasis is that it is not contagious.

At one time psoriasis was believed to be caused by an infection. This theory has long been discarded. Certainly, no germ has been isolated that is capable of causing this disease. No evidence has been advanced to confirm the belief that it is infectious.

Recent investigation tends to show that this disorder is a result of some disturbance in the digestive tract. It is possible it may be the result of some vitamin deficiency, the exact nature of which has not yet been discovered.

A recent report states that sufferers from this skin affliction are benefited by a diet that is low in protein. These authorities claim that when the diet is exceedingly low in protein foods, the skin clears and only faint traces can be detected. Sufficient protein is included in the diet to make up for "wear and tear" of the body without increasing the protein content. It is advised that foods, such as meat, fish, fowl, meat soups, eggs, liver and kidneys, which are high in protein content, be omitted from the diet. Of course, a diet as severe as this should only be continued under the personal supervision of a physician.

Since psoriasis is a chronic disturbance, and requires prolonged treatment, the victim becomes discouraged and sometimes resorts to patent medicines. The number of salves and ointments that have been recommended for this disorder is legion. In desperation, the sufferer will try anything once, and in many instances the "remedy" irritates his skin rather than benefits it.

May I warn you against the use of any ointment that has not been prescribed by a physician who has first examined the eruption and studied your skin. I say this because not all skins are alike; an ointment that may be beneficial to one individual may be harmful to another.

In applying an ointment, it is advisable first to get rid of the scales and rough layer of skin. These scales which are characteristic of psoriasis are best removed by taking a warm bath. Use a stiff brush and plenty of soap. After thoroughly drying, apply the prescribed ointment. Do not become discouraged, for by persistence you may overcome the affliction.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

After the Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What is the proper thing for a girl to say when a young man thanks her for dancing with him? I have never been able to find the right words to say, when my partner says, "Thank you for this dance" and "Thank you for dancing with me" and so forth.

2—When a young girl enters a room where there is a young man, is it correct for the girl to extend her hand first in greeting him, and if so, is this right if there are other girls in the room, too?

3—If you are in the young man's home, is it up to the young man to extend his hand first, or doesn't this make any difference.

C.

1—When a man thanks a girl for a dance, she graciously says something that indicates that she has enjoyed the dance. She doesn't thank him, but she is cordial in her response. And she doesn't say, ever, "You're welcome," indicating that the pleasure of the dance was only his, and that she granted the dance as a queenly favor! "It was a delightful dance," or "I thoroughly enjoyed that dance, Bob" . . . something like this is appropriate.

2—Yes, the girl extends her hand first, if she wishes to accompany her greeting with a handshake. The man who knows what's what awaits for a girl or woman to indicate that she wishes to shake hands.

3—Probably in this case, the extending of the hands would be simultaneous, for the girl would greet her host with a handshake, and the host would extend hospitality by this form of greeting, too.

Bachelor Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon and I would like to know who gives the bachelor dinner. Does the groom-to-be ask his friends and arrange the place, or should a friend get the boys together and ask the groom whom would like? I know that it is a Dutch treat affair, and the boys all chip in. Do they pay for the groom too?

STAUNCH FOLLOWER.

It is the custom for the groom-to-be to give the bachelor dinner, to plan every detail of it, and to pay for it. However, if instead of this usual plan, a friend of the groom's wishes to arrange to give this dinner, I see no reason why it shouldn't be done this way, provided, of course, that the groom approves of this plan. As a general rule it is such a personal affair, and the groom wishes so definitely to invite just whom he wishes to invite, that he prefers to follow the conventional way of doing it.

The "Dutch Treat" idea of this bachelor dinner is a new idea to me, but, in these informal and "different days" I see no reason why this shouldn't be done. But the groom-to-be should be definitely consulted first!

If the friends of the groom plan to do this party in this way, I should think that it would be more gracious for them to divide among themselves the amount of the groom's part of the dinner expense. In other words, this dinner might be considered more a dinner in compliment to the groom with the groom as the guest of honor, than the groom's bachelor dinner.

Effective Disguise Helps Gail Reach Woman Enemy

Read This First

Gail Loveless, experienced actress at 20, was sent into the Confederate lines as a Union Spy. Disguised as a quadroon laundress, she deceived everybody, including Capt. Jack Gailliard, gallant spy in the Confederate service, who was ashamed to find himself deeply stirred by her saffron loveliness. Vespasian Chancellor, chief of Confederate spies, presently exposed her and she fled for her life. She stole the clothing of a farm boy to make herself appear to be a Negro stable boy.

Outwitting the pursuing Chancellor and Gailliard, she captured them, one at a time, and led them toward the Federal lines. On the way they stumbled upon the dreadful spectacle of a Union Army hanging a Confederate spy, and Operator 13, sickened, freed her prisoners. Before he rode away, Gailliard kissed her. Then she rode into Emmitsburg, Maryland, at dusk.

Exhausted, she met a young man who spoke the pass phrase of the Northern secret service and, at his advice, lay down under a tree to sleep. The man, a Southern spy, betrayed Operator 13 to the beautiful Lady Greensleeves, Confederate spy, who was living in Emmitsburg. Lady Greensleeves promised to "take care of the young Yankee actress" until the Confederate cavalry should arrive to hang her.

Finding Gen. Stuart's horses hidden in Lady Greensleeves' stable, Operator 13 took them and hid them in an orchard. Just before dawn, determined to capture the beautiful Southern spy, she tried every window and door of the house in which the other woman slept. Then, on a sudden inspiration, she gathered an armful of lilies and set off down the road toward St. Joseph's School.

Now Go On With the Story

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

As she came near she could hear very faintly the nuns singing in their chapel; and she hurried through the open postern, where an unexpected lantern still glimmered, and made her way along the cloisters toward the refectory, where a candle burned and two novices moved like gray ghosts among the shadows. The room was fragrant with the odor of hot bread.

"Are the lilies for us?" asked one of them, a little startled, as the ragged Negro lad came panting to the open door.

"Yass'm, lady—sister, ma'am. Mis' Morris done send 'em. Ax yuh kindly ef de sodgers done scare yuh-all."

The other novice laughed. "Thank Mrs. Morris and say that no nun is afraid of Jeb Stuart."

Gail loveless rolled her lovely dark eyes at the plate of hot bread. "Yaas'm, lady-sister. Lawzee me, how dem beaten biscuits du smell!"

"If you want some breakfast," said the other novice, "go into the laundry." She pointed to the door and Operator 13 opened it and entered. No candle burned there, but a gray light came in through the open gallery.

Almost immediately the novice came in with a plate full of beaten biscuits, molasses and bacon, and a cup of fresh milk. "Was Mrs. Morris frightened by the shooting last night?" she inquired.

"Yaas'm, lady," replied the girl, munching the bacon and hot bread which she sopped in the blackstrap and devoured in ecstasy, her eyes rolling heavenward.

"I wonder if you know whether Mrs. Howe has re-returned?" inquired the novice cautiously.

"Yaas'm," replied Lucille.

"Is she going away again?"

"Dunno, ma'am."

Left Alone

A bell tinkled from somewhere within; the little novice folded her hands a moment, then crossed herself, turned and went into the refectory, her white veil closing like a cobweb in the wind from the closing door.

Instantly Operator 13 ran to the great wicker hampers filled with soiled garments. Here were the habits, wimples, collarettes, coiffes and veils of the order, destined for the laundry or for dry cleaning. And among them was the habit of a Sister of Sainte Chryseis, evidently a visitor at Saint Josephs'. The habit of this order seemed to be cream-white and brown, and hooded over the wimple like the capuchin of a Trappist, or of a missionary Carmelite father.

The girl hesitated, then seized this unfamiliar dress, the wimple and collarette, and white wool stockings.

Rows and rows of coarse, low-cut shoes belonging to the nuns stood along the gallery, awaiting cleaning. She found a pair to fit her, unhooked a rosary from the bunch that dangled from a hook under the laundry clock, and, rolling everything into a hasty bundle, crept out into the gray light of daybreak.

Nobody in the street was yet astir; arrived in the orchard once more, breathless, and fell to putting on the garments over her rags of a Negro boy—the coarse white stockings, clumsy shoes, white wool habit, starched collarette, bonnet, wimple, coiffe; and over all she flung the thin, nut-brown overcloak with its peaked capuchin which left her face in shadow.

Then, under this, she buckled her belt around her with the knife in its sheath behind and out of sight, and hung the rosary with its brass crucifix from the soft leather girdle about her right thigh.

Gorgeous Drama

Never had this young actress dreamed of playing so magnificent a role in any drama ever written. Never had she known such alarm as now penetrated her with a terror so utterly delicious that the combination of pleasure and fear seemed almost unendurable.

She knew that the end already was very near—that the final curtain already was twitching to descend. But what might be the impending finale no longer worried her, and she gave no thought to it in the glory of her overwhelming exaltation. She realized only that hers was the leading role; that this was her drama; this her greatest moment, and she meant, by God's grace, to make the most of it though death sat watching her across the footlights.

She had been knocking for nearly 10 minutes at the front door of the Morris house when a sleepy, half-dressed Negro maid opened the door and stood rubbing her drowsy eyes.

"I have a message for Mrs. Howe," whispered Operator 13.

"Mis' Howe in baid, lady," whined the black maid.

"Wake her and say a messenger from Mr. Gaston is here," murmured the girl.

"Lady, ma'am, I dassant wake up Mis' Howe——"

The girl pushed her aside and stepped into the hallway. There was a coat-and-hat closet with a key in the door which stood open just behind the Negro maid. With abrupt violence Operator 13 pushed the maid into it and turned the key on her. She listened a moment, but the Negress appeared to be dumb with terror, for no African howl came from within the locked closet.

Through the open front door the sickly pallor of daybreak illuminated the carpeted hallway. Operator 13 did not entirely close the door; a little morning light still came through the crack. She walked forward to the foot of the sairs, and stood still listening intently.

She could see nobody on the dusky landing above, but there certainly was a noise of something stirring up there. Then a bedroom door opened; candlelight flickered over wall and ceiling.

Instantly Operator 13 started to ascend the carpeted stairs. As she arrived on the landing, Lady Greensleeves confronted her.

There was a startled silence; then Lady Greensleeves calmly inquired where the strange nun came from.

"Your maid admitted me," said Operator 13. "I came from St. Joseph's."

"You are not a nun of St. Joseph's."

"No, madam, a visitor. I am Sister Aethra of St. Chryseis."

Lady Greensleeves evidently knew that there was a visiting nun from another order at St. Joseph's, for she inclined her beautiful head and seemed to await further enlightenment concerning this strange daybreak intrusion.

Gives Message

She was in her nightdress and barefoot; the wheat-gold hair framing her lovely face fell almost to her waist.

"I bring you a message by grapevine," said Operator 13 in a low voice.

"From whom, sister?"

"From Mr. Gaston."

"Give it, then."

"Are you truly Mrs. Rosalie Howe, Secret Service agent for Gen. Beauregard?"

"This, then, is the grapevine message, madam: The blockade runner, Miranda, lies off False Cape. You are to signal her by waving a handkerchief in each hand."

"I understand," said Lady Greensleeves quietly. "Is that all?"

"That is the grapevine telegram sent to you from Mr. Gaston in Richmond. There is another message from Vespasian Chancellor."

"Give it," said Lady Greensleeves.

"On October 10," whispered Operator 13, "Col. Williams and Lieut. Dunlap, Secret Service agents of the Confederate government, were taken inside the Yankee lines, tried by court-martial and hanged as spies. You are to inform Miriam C., Rachel Lyons and Mrs. Phillips."

Lady Greensleeves passed her white hand across her cloudy golden hair. "This will kill Rachel," she said, staring at the supposed nun. For a moment she stood mute, twisting agonized fingers. Then she went to one of the bedroom doors, knocked, opened it and said to the querulous inquiry of Mrs. Morris: "They've caught Dunlap and Williams and hanged them. You'll have to notify Rachel Lyons by grapevine. I have to dress and leave immediately."

"Oh, Rosalie, how awful!" But Lady Greensleeves silenced her with a warning not to awaken the sleeping child.

"Our cavalry have gone on to New Market," she whispered. "This town is full of Yankee spies and sympathizers; and Pleasanton's horsemen will be here on Jeb Stuart's heels before sunrise. I leave my baby in your charge."

"Where are you going, Rosalie?" whimpered Mrs. Morris.

"To False Cape. The Miranda is waiting. A nun brought this news. Give her some breakfast while I dress."

She closed the door, nodded to Operator 13, pointed to a chair in the corridor and went into her bedroom.

The moment she disappeared Operator 13 rose and softly locked the door of the bedroom where Mrs. Morris was now moving distractedly about.

There was one more bedroom. Operator 13 took the burning candle, opened the door and peeped in. A lovely little girl of 10 lay sound asleep in bed.

Now, with infinite care, Operator 13 removed the door key, which was inside and locked this door, also, from the outside. Only the door of Lady Greensleeves' bedroom remained unlocked now.

Surprised

"Mrs. Howe?" she called cautiously.

As Lady Greensleeves, half dressed, came out in the corridor Operator 13 snatched the key from the inside keyhole and had slammed and locked the door and flung the key down the dark stair wall before the other understood what was happening.

She stared, astounded, at the nun, who stood with her long knife in her hand barring her way. Then her beautiful, incredulous gaze changed and a tempest of fury swept her features.

"You are prisoner to the United States!" whispered Operator 13 dramatically. "I am an agent of the Federal Secret Service, and I am here to arrest you. Come with me quietly, Mrs. Howe."

Lady Greensleeves was like some exquisite angelic shape cast out of Paradise and cringing to the curse. "On what charge am I arrested?"

"You are a Confederate spy in Maryland."

"Where is your warrant?" Her lips moved as though frozen.

"No warrant is necessary."

"Do you understand that I shall hang if you arrest me?"

"No. You'll remain in Fort McHenry. Come, Mrs. Howe. Walk down those stairs ahead of me!"

A silence, unstirring. Then: May I speak to my little daughter?"

"I dare not risk it. If you trick me, I hang . . . No; turn and start downstairs!"

"At least let me look at her."

"If you don't obey and move forward I'll prick your neck with my knife point."

Surprise Attack

In a flash Lady Greensleeves sprang on her and caught her right wrist; the knife fell clattering downstairs; but the girl, as slim as a whip, and as supple and springy, clung to her prisoner, and they swayed together on the stair landing, tightlocked, wrestling, throttling, striving to hurl each other headlong down the dusky staircase.

"I know you!" panted Lady Greensleeves. "You are Operator 13! And now, you young murderess, I'll see to it that you are destroyed!"

The flying mass of her flashing golden hair was blinding the younger girl, who redoubled her blows at random. A bright spot of blood welled up on Lady Greensleeves' mouth. She bared her teeth and ripped the nun's habit from the girl.

Twisting and doubling like fighting serpents murderously encoiled they struck and dodged and swayed and slithered to the edge of the stairs, fell a step or two downward, recoiled, clutching at each other, then slipped again and tumbled halfway down the stairs.

ROADEXTENSION ACTION URGED

Congressman Twing Brooks, James C. Chaplin, president of Sewickley Borough Council, and representatives of five boroughs on the north bank of the Ohio River have petitioned County Commissioners for action on extension of the Ohio River boulevard from Haysville to the Beaver County line.

County Planning Engineer E. L. Schmidt told the group the work was barred from the Civil Works Administration program by its provision that its appropriations must all be used by February. He said the only prospect of federal financing was to obtain its inclusion in Gov. Pinchot's program of government cash projects.

Schmidt said, however, it might be possible to have the survey made with Civil Works Administration funds, or the county would pay for it.

Congressman Brooks said he believed the CWA did not insist on all money being spent by February 15, deeming it almost impossible. His opinion was that the government would extend work that could be started immediately.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

NO. 278.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing the Mayor and the City Controller to negotiate and make on behalf of the City of Pittsburgh an emergency loan in an amount not to exceed $750,000.00 which shall be payable out of the income of the City of Pittsburgh for the year 1933 and if not so paid shall be included in the estimate of liabilities of the city to be met out of receipts for the year 1934 before ordinary appropriation may be made therefrom.

WHEREAS, The act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania approved June 23, 1931, P. L. 922, pertaining to cities of the second class, provides that "if through emergency it shall become necessary for the Council to obtain additional appropriating power, it shall be lawful for the Council to authorize the creation of one or more emergency loans not exceeding in the aggregate $750,000.00 at any one time, which unless paid within the year in which they are created, shall be included by the City Controller in his estimate of liabilities which must be met out of receipts of the ensuing year before ordinary appropriations may be made therefrom;" and

WHEREAS, It is necessary for the City of Pittsburgh to obtain funds for its immediate requirements in advance of the receipt of income in order that it may meet its maturing obligations, and the Mayor and the Controller have signed and delivered to Council, as provided by Section 13 of the Act of Assembly, approved May 31, 1911, P. L. 461, a certificate that an emergency exists, and by reason of said emergency it is necessary that Council obtain additional appropriating power, and no emergency loans as authorized by said acts of Assembly are now outstanding; Now, therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That under the powers conferred by the aforesaid acts of Assembly and to enable the City of Pittsburgh to obtain funds to meet its maturing obligations, the Mayor and the City Controller be and they are hereby authorized and directed to negotiate and make on behalf of the City of Pittsburgh a temporary emergency loan not exceeding $750,000.00, to be evidenced by a note or notes of the City of Pittsburgh, payable February 15, 1934, and bearing interest at the rate of four and one-half (4½%) per centum per annum.

SECTION 2. That for the purpose of providing the funds for the payment of said note or notes at maturity, all receipts of income by the City of Pittsburgh during the balance of the year 1933, exclusive of sinking fund, interest and [illegible] charges of the city, are hereby appropriated, and to the extent that said loan or loans are not paid by the city out of income for the balance of the year [illegible] the unpaid portion of said loan or loans shall be included by the City Controller in his estimate of liabilities which must be met out of the receipts for the year [illegible] before ordinary appropriations may be made therefrom.

SECTION 3. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council November 23, 1933.
Approved November 24, 1933.

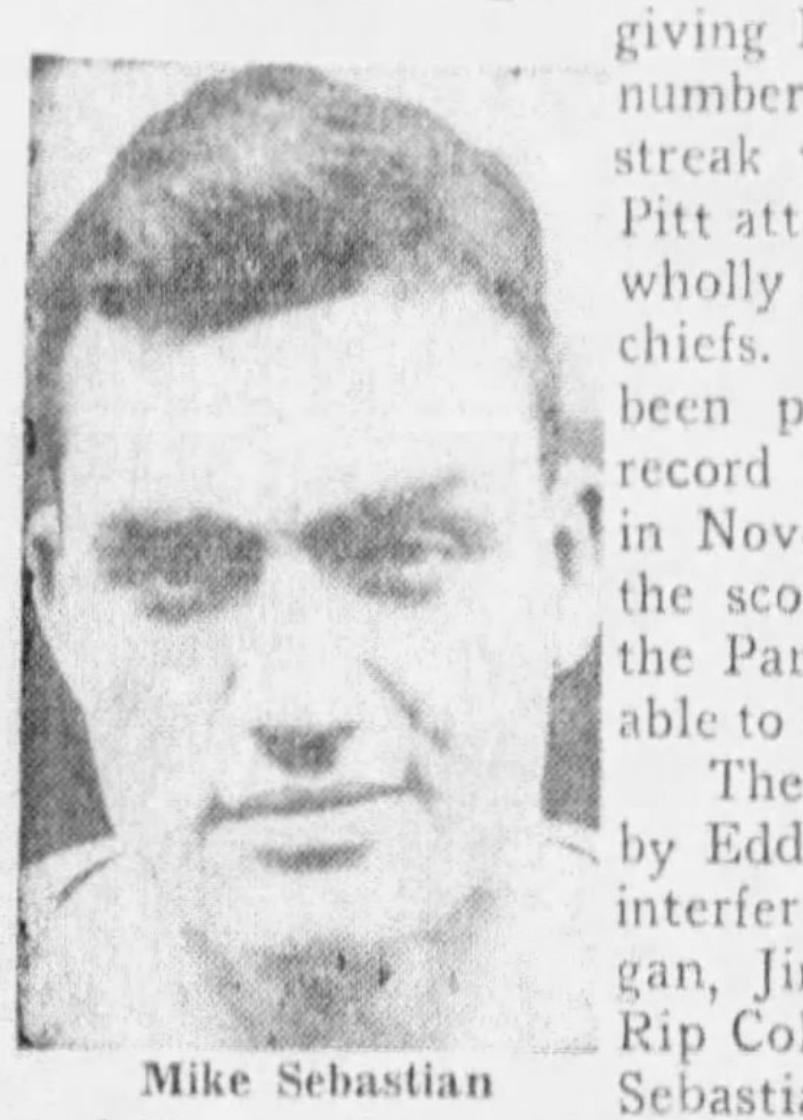
DUKES BOW ADIEU TODAY; TECH BATTLES N. Y. U.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Panthers Need Sebastian. Offensive Not Producing. Chocolate's Course Run. • Old Rivals in New Roles. Hockey Lines May Pass. Backstops in Shakeup.

PITT'S NOVEMBER SCORING SHOWS SLUMP



Mike Sebastian

Jock Sutherland and his Panthers are very anxious to have Mike Sebastian back in the lineup and going in his best stride when Carnegie Tech is faced at the Stadium on Thanksgiving Day in the closing local football number, as they figure that the Sharon streak will be needed urgently in the Pitt attack. The offensive has not been wholly satisfactory to the Blue and Gold chiefs. While a lot of attention has been paid to the excellent defensive record made by Sutherland's gridders in November of each year, a check on the scores for two seasons shows that the Panthers themselves have not been able to do a lot of scoring in that month.

The great Pitt machine of 1931, led by Eddie Hirshberg, and with such fine interferers as Hart Morris, Mike Milligan, Jim MacMurdo, Jess Quatse and Rip Collins running ahead of backs like Sebastian, Warren Heller, Paul Reider and Jimmy Clark, had no trouble piling up impressive scoring totals, its November high mark being 76 points, made against Carnegie, Army and Nebraska.

Last year, however, the Pitt attack bogged down. After a strong November opening against Penn, in which they chalked up 19 points, the Panthers were held scoreless the following week by Nebraska, were lucky to score six points against Carnegie, and earned only seven against Stanford. This season, after rushing into November with 37 points against Centre, Pitt was held to seven points by Duquesne, and to six by Nebraska. Little wonder that Dr. Sutherland is concerned about the attack, when such a strong defensive line as the Carnegie wall must be faced in the closing game.

FIRST KAYO INDICATES FADING OF KEED

That he was knocked out in two rounds last night by Tony Canzoneri, who was hard pressed to win a decision over him in 15 frames in 1931, when Tony was a better fighter than at present, would appear to indicate that Kid Chocolate has gone back a far greater distance than was generally figured.

You can't take anything away from Canzoneri, who at his peak was the best fighter of recent years in any class, but his success, in his declining days and after losing three out of four consecutive bouts, in making such short work of Chocolate, the first knockout and only the fifth defeat of the latter's career, can only mean that the Ked is close to the fade-out stage.

The little Negro did not lose his featherweight title, as it was an over-the-weight match, but the time when he will do so probably will not extent beyond his next defense of it against Freddie Miller or any other first-class opponent.

Another topliner apparently on the way out is Lou Brouillard, who, after losing the welterweight and middleweight championships in less than two years, was defeated last night by Tony Shucco in Boston in an attempt to start a drive for the light-heavyweight crown.

Earlier reverses at the hands of Andy Callahan and Vince Dundee were said to have been due to the weakening effects of weight-making, but Brouillard's latest failure in a heavier class gives the impression that he just isn't there any longer.

OLD RIVALRIES RENEWED IN SERVICE GAME

The meeting of Army and Navy at Philadelphia today in the annual service football classic marked a renewal of old gridiron rivalries on the coaching side, rivalries that started years ago during the playing days of the present opposing mentors. Lieut. Garrison H. Davidson, head coach; E. H. Blank, backfield coach; H. O. Ellinger, line coach, and Lieut. W. H. Wood, kicking coach, all of Army, played against Rip Miller, Navy's head coach, when Rip was one of the Seven Mules in front of the famous Four Horsemen of Notre Dame. Miller, a tackle, played against Davidson on defense, and against Ellinger on offense.

Gar Davidson

Miller and his Navy coaching assistants, Christy Flanagan and Johnny O'Brien, wrecked Army's hopes while they were members of the late Knute Rockne's teams. Flanagan, who ran 70 yards to beat the Cadets in 1926, faced not only Blaik and Ellinger, but also Lieut. M. F. Daley, West Point's present center coach, and Lieut. R. P. Reeder, Jr., the West Point end coach. O'Brien, dubbed "One Play" O'Brien, because of sensational plays at crucial points in several games, beat Army in 1928 by catching a 40-yard pass from Neimic to score in the last few minutes of the game.

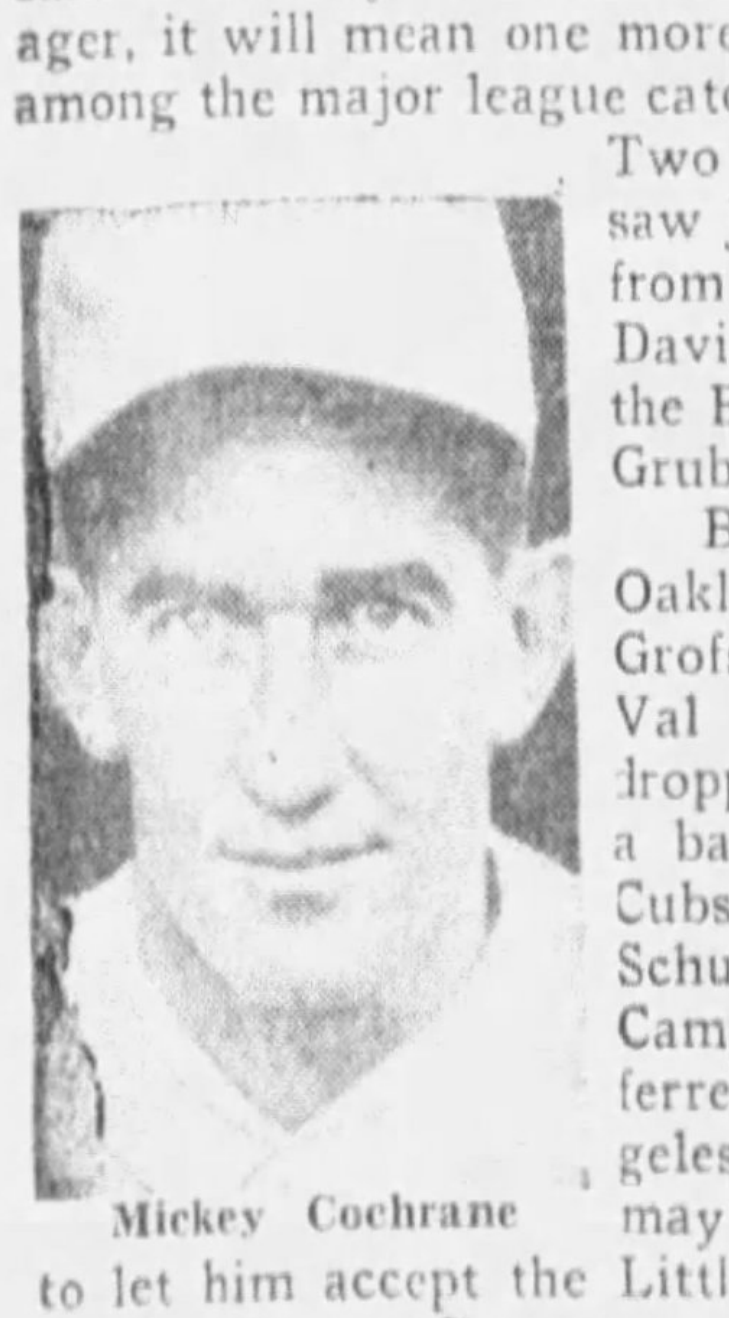
WOULD ELIMINATE HOCKEY BLUE LINES

Still another change in the hockey system is being urged. President Joseph Cattarinich, of Les Canadiens, will ask the board of governors of the National League to do away with the two blue lines in favor of one line across center ice, leaving only two zones in which to play instead of the three now in use. Cattarinich declares such a change would reduce whistle-blowing to a minimum, lengthen the scope of the forward pass and open up the game to greater scoring, with a free range allowed each team in either zone.

Before the blue lines forward passing was not permitted. The puck had to be passed laterally or backward. As the game stands now, forward passing is allowed in each area, but the 60-foot zone does not give much leeway, since the players cannot pass the puck over a line.

MANY SHIFTS IN MAJOR CATCHING RANKS

When and if Connie Mack announces the long expected sale of Mickey Cochrane to Detroit as the Tigers' new manager, it will mean one more addition to a record list of shifts among the major league catchers during the present off-season.



Mickey Cochrane

Two trades of backstops in the big show saw Jimmy Wilson going to the Phillies from the Cards in exchange for Virgil Davis, and Mervin Shea passing from the Browns to the White Sox for Frank Grube.

Besides drafting Art Veltman from Oakland and purchasing Walter Van Grofski from York, the Pirates released Val Picinich unconditionally, and also dropped Coach Grover Hartley, who was a backstop in his playing days. The Cubs gave Zack Taylor and John Schulte their freedom, released Billy Campbell to Los Angeles and transferred Hugh McMullen from Los Angeles to San Francisco. The Red Sox may turn ex-Pirate Johnny Gooch loose to let him accept the Little Rock managership, Roy Spencer another former Buccaneer, may be disposed of by the Indians, and the Dodgers have taken on a new man by drafting Ray Berres from Birmingham.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Carnegie Tech's football clan makes its sixth assault on the New York University gridiron ramparts in the Yankee Stadium this afternoon, taking on the Violet-clad home huskies for the eighth consecutive year. If the Tartans win, it will be only the second time they've been able to beat the New Yorkers. The Scots ruled 10-to-8 choices to accomplish that very thing.

Five times Carnegie elevens have battled the Violets here in New York. They won once, lacing Chick Meehan's 1929 team, 20 to 0, the bitter cold Thanksgiving afternoon that Harry McCurdy rose to brilliant heights.

The first time the Techs came to New York, back in good old '26 they lost, 6 and 0, when Ken Strong booted himself a pair of field goals. In 1927, New York won, 20 to 6; in '29 it was 20-0, Tech; in '31 it was 7-6, N. Y. U., and last year it went to New York, 13 to 6.

HARPSTER IS VICTIM

New York played in Pittsburgh in 1928, and beat the powerful Tartan eleven of that year, led by Howdy Harpster, now coach of the Plaid, 27 to 13, with Strong once again being an entire tree of thorns in the side of the Plaid. The Violets visited Pittsburgh again in 1930 and won, 20 to 6.

Well, today's game, aside from its interest to the immediate followers of the Violets and Skibos, isn't of much importance. But if you think the rival elevens are not "hot" for the game, you'd best take another guess. Neither eleven expected to go far this year. The New Yorkers haven't. Tech, however, under the canny tutelage of Harpster and Don Lovewell, started off by passing Pop Warner's Temple eleven, added Notre Dame, Xavier and Georgetown to the string, played scoreless ties with Wash-Jeff and Michigan State and took it on the lug from Purdue.

SCOTS IN PRACTICE

The Tartans had a brisk workout in the Stadium yesterday, after gents as inquisitive as Butch Vorderburg, Bunny Burzio and Jerry O'Toole had been shown the spot Babe Ruth prefers to park his home runs.

When Coach Harpster lined up his first eleven, the one he's going to start today, he occasioned no small amount of surprise with the makeup of his backfield. He announced he had predicted to use Charley Spisak at quarterback (which wasn't so much of a shock, at that), but when he announced Owen Bowser and Bill Carlson at the halves, the wise guys gasped. They'd been expecting Steve Terebus and Butch Vorderburg. Joe Mihm will get the call at full.

The line, led by Tech's all-America candidate, who expects to show New York critics how a guard should conduct himself, will have Capt. Colin Stewart and Lib Lewis at the ends; Croft and Doloway at the tackles; Burzio

COAST GAME ATTRACTIVE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Before a crowd of nearly 90,000 persons, with the Far West's most colorful football tradition at stake, University of California's Bears and Stanford University's Cardinals join issues today in the big Stanford Stadium in the thirty-ninth revival of a contest originating in 1892.

KID CHOCOLATE KAYOED BY CANZONERI

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Back in the big time clambered Tony Canzoneri today and by the same token Kid Chocolate seemed headed for fistic oblivion.

Relieved of his lightweight championship by Barney Ross and beaten in a return bout by same Chicago youngster, Canzoneri came back in Madison Square Garden last night to flash the same powerful right hand that had carried him to the heights, knocked out Chocolate in two rounds and thus hurdled the first of two obstacles that blocked his path to another meeting with Ross.

SEEKS TITLE MATCH

Now the Garden expects to match Tony with Cleto Locatelli, Italian holder of the European lightweight championship, perhaps on Friday, December 15, with the winner to meet Ross for the world title if present plans mature.

One of the really great fighters of all time, Canzoneri has fought many a sensational battle during a career that has carried him to world's championships in both the featherweight and lightweight divisions. But he saved his masterpiece for last night. He had beaten Chocolate in 15 rounds two years ago in a lightweight title defense and was favored again but none expected him to topple the fast, skillful Cuban Negro, recognized in this state as world's featherweight king.

TONY IN RARE FORM

Although Chocolate had never been knocked out, and had been floored only once in his career, Canzoneri was aiming at a knockout from the opening. He rushed the Cuban at the start and cracked him with a stunning right that had Chocolate staggering.

At the bell for the second round, Canzoneri, more confident than ever, drove home two powerful punches to the body. Chocolate's hands dropped and Canzoneri ripped his right to the chin. The Cuban staggered back into a neutral corner, then fought back blindly although he was badly hurt. Coolly, Tony measured him and another crashing right to the chin sent the "keed" toppling to the floor, face foremost. Chocolate rolled over on his back at "seven," struggled instinctively to regain his feet but fell back again at "nine" and the count was completed two minutes and 30 seconds after the round had opened.

JOHN HALEY . . . . IN ACTION AGAINST YALE FOE TODAY

M'PHAIL NAMED RED OFFICIAL

CINCINNATI, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Larry MacPhail today became vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds in a reorganization of the baseball club. No action was taken, however, toward electing a president.

MacPhail, former president of Columbus of the American Association, acquired an interest in the Reds recently when Sidney Weil retired as president, and has been acting as executive head since.

Thomas Conroy, vice president of the Central Trust Company, which owns a large block of the club stock, was elected treasurer by the directors, and Joseph Meakher was named secretary. Meagher represents the estate of the late Louis C. Widrig, who owned an interest in the club.

Meyer Uhlfelder, traveling secretary of the club for four years, resigned today to re-enter private business and was replaced by Frank C. Lane, football and basketball official.

Meanwhile, M. J. Kelley, president of the Minneapolis American Association club, said in Minneapolis that Donie Bush, now manager of the Reds, has been offered the managership of the Millers. Bush has let it be known that he is open to offers elsewhere and is seeking another major league connection, Kelley said.

High School Clash Ends in Big Brawl

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 25.—A riot, in which spectators and players participated freely halted the Midway-Robinson Township High game at Midway yesterday, with seven minutes remaining to play. Midway was leading, 19 to 0. Milnac, Midway left guard, is said to have struck an unidentified Robinson player, whom he charged with slugging and kneeing. Other players joined the fray and spectators rushed on the field. After several minutes of milling about, with players continuing the fight, coaches called their teams from the field and the game was left unfinished. No one was reported seriously injured.

ELI, CRIMSON SET FOR SCRAP

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—So closely matched on paper, at least, that the betting was 4 to 5 and take your choice, the football forces of Yale and Harvard collided for the fifty-second time today.

Although the Elis' record has been slightly better, it seemed more than likely that the game would be decided on the breaks. Yale entered the game with major victories over Brown and Dartmouth to her credit while Harvard's lone big-game triumph came at Brown's expense. The Crimson was tied by Dartmouth and beaten by Holy Cross and Army. Yale lost to Army and Georgia.

LOCAL SKATERS REGAIN LEAD

After yielding the lead to the Detroit team of Delphier and Hatfield during the night, the Pittsburgh combination of Cleveland and Ake spurted during the morning hours and was back in front in the seven-day ice skating marthon at Duquesne Garden at 10 o'clock this morning. The race is to end at 9:30 tonight.

Pittsburgh, credited with 8,371 laps, led Detroit by two laps and Boston by three laps. New York continued to lead in points. The 10 o'clock standings:

TEAM	Laps.	Miles.	Points.
PITTSBURGH	8371	832 2-5	1070
Detroit	8369	832	1065
Boston	8368	832	1050
New York	8367	832	1670
Syracuse	8364	832	790
Windsor	8364	832	500
Montreal	8364	832	115
Chicago	8350	831	330

POLO GAME AT ARMORY

The McKeesport Polo Club, flaunting a victorious summer campaign, will be attempting a task tonight which Chartiers Heights and North Hills, on successive excursions to Hunt Armory, were unable to perform—that of stopping the revamped Artillery trio. With the opening toss-in scheduled for 8:30 o'clock, the game will mark the windup of pre-season battles, the official opening of the indoor polo season being set for next Saturday.

Duquesne University's best football team waves farewell to the local fans in a homecoming game at Forbes Field this afternoon.

It is the tenth and last game of the season on the schedule of Coach Elmer Layden's masterpiece of team construction of which only one—that with Pitt two weeks ago—has been lost, and then only by a 7-0 score before 60,000 pairs of eyes in the Stadium.

Nine of the regular members the dauntless Dukes will be playing their last scheduled game only Art Strutt and George Rado remaining as the nucleus around which next year's eleven will be built.

FLORIDA TILT REMAINS

The contest today will not draw the curtain entirely for the Blue stars, for they still have that post-season game with the University of Miami at Coral Gables, Fla., on New Year's Day to look forward to, but it will be their final appearance before a home crowd.

Geneva College is the Tri-State Conference champion and cannot be held lightly, despite the loss of Cliff Aultman, whose great teaming with Art Grahame, the quarterback, has been missed in recent games. Aultman suffered a broken leg, which ended his collegiate playing career.

Grahame will have to be closely watched by the Dukes. He is a great passer and kicker. Capt. Shorty Troiano, Dick Jones and Robbins are good running backs who also will have to be curbed.

PITT TO LOOK ON

The Dukes plan to start their regular lineup except that Skarada will be at left guard in place of Rado and Nussbaum will start at right half in place of Strutt.

A good-sized crowd is assured with the Pitt team idle and sitting in as spectators, while Carnegie Tech is battling New York University in New York.

Many Pittsburgh fans will go to Greensburg to see the high-scoring Davis and Elkins team play St. Vincent College at Offutt Field today. W. & J. meets Bucknell at Lewisburg, Pa.; West Virginia takes on Georgetown at Washington, D. C.; Thiel meets Grove City at Grove City, and West Virginia Wesleyan opposes Glenville at Buckhannon.

MAY TRADE DERRINGER

BENTON, Ill., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Paul Derringer, pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds who has been hunting with friends here the past few days, said yesterday he had been asked to report at Cincinnati Monday for a conference with the Reds' officials. Derringer said he believed he was to be traded either to the Chicago Cubs or the St. Louis Cardinals.

BOBBY JONES DENIES 'DEAL' FOR COMEBACK

FORMER CHAMP SAYS RUMORS UNFOUNDED

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer to Win United States and British Amateur and Open Titles in Same Year

I try as much as possible to devote these columns to material which I hope will be of assistance to the average golfer in his struggle with the game. I try to keep them entirely free from matters of personal concern to myself. But during the past several months I have had to deny several stories to the effect that I had made a "trade" with the United States Golf Association whereby I had agreed to play in the Open championship in exchange for certain privileges in connection with the selection of the course upon which the championship was to be held. In some cases the authors of these stories have not seen fit to consult either the Golf Association or me before allowing them to appear in print. In the circumstances, I feel that I am entitled to make use of this space in order to set such rumors at rest.

Bobby Jones

I do not mind so much the bruiting of a rumor that I am to enter the Open championship. If such an occurrence is of interest to anyone, then by all means he has a right to speculate concerning the likelihood of its coming to pass. The only inconvenience to which I am put is the trouble of denying that my present intentions or inclinations run in that direction. Against this inconvenience, I suppose I should set the flattering thought that someone at least cares a whoop whether I enter or not.

MAY CHANGE MIND LATER

In commenting on a story of this kind, I am careful not to make any extravagant statements. Certainly I have no present intention of ever again entering the American Open or any other championship. I do not "long for the smell of battle-smoke in my nostrils." Just now I have as definitely had enough as I had in the fall of 1930. But I am not going to say that I will never change my mind. I doubt if anyone, however gifted with foresight he might be, would be able to say what he would or would not be doing five, three or even two years into the future. I suspect that I shall not rob a bank nor commit a murder within that time, for I do not believe that I am even moderately well equipped for such activities. But a little thing like playing in a golf tournament involves a much simpler decision.

The other angle of the stories or rumors, to the effect that I had made a "trade" with the United States Golf Association, I regard as somewhat more serious. The implications are decidedly not to the credit of the association or myself. The first one had it that I had agreed to play in the Open provided it should be held at the Augusta National Golf Club in Augusta, Ga., a course which I helped design and in which I am, of course, interested. The latest "news" is that I have agreed to play in consideration of having been allowed to nominate the Merion Cricket Club of Philadelphia, I assume, because it is a course over which I have won two championships and hence think I can play well.

DENIES 'TRADE' TALK

The suggestion that the United States Golf Association, which most certainly is an honorable, capable and fair-minded governing body, would stoop to "trade" with any player, no matter how great his attraction at the gate might be, is unthinkable. Equally so is the idea that the presence of any player could be so important that he should be allowed to name the course and thus be awarded an advantage over the rest of the field.

I have had some conversation with the U. S. G. A. referring to the feasibility of holding the Open championship in Augusta. Inasmuch as the course there is not in play at the usual time for holding the championship, the proposition presents some difficulties. But the possibility of my playing in the event the tournament were held there was not even discussed. Indeed since, if the tournament were played there, a certain amount of responsibility for necessary arrangements would devolve upon me, this would be the one occasion above all others when I should least like to be a competitor.

As I have said, the time may come when I shall feel like sending in my entry for the Open. But I can give every assurance that when and if that time arrives my entry and fee will go forward just like [illegible] of every other competi[illegible]without any favors asked or [illegible] attached. And I might [illegible] just now I can feel no [illegible] send them in.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE STRAIGHT AND NARROW—The 20 miles long furrow was plowed by a Mexican peon with a span of mules, using an ancient wooden plough in less than two days, in 1925. The engineers of an American company building a dam at the Santiaguillo Lakes in the Guimape valley afterward checked the furrow with a transit. They found it to run in a perfectly straight line, except for a deviation of about one foot for a very short distance. The furrow, which still is in existence, since has been used as a base for surveys in the region.

MATMEN'S WAR LOOMS HERE

A wrestling "war" is imminent in Pittsburgh as a result of the invasion of the field by the reorganized Arena Club, of the North Side, to stage weekly Friday night shows.

The sport was revived here following a long suspension at Motor Square Garden last Thursday night and drew a surprising large crowd for the maiden effort of Promoter Dave Thompson, and yesterday announcement was made that the Arena has succeeded in obtaining a license to conduct boxing on Tuesdays and wrestling on Fridays in its quarters. Jules Beck is the promoter and Lew Raymond the matchmaker of the new club.

Matchmaker Raymond has a contract with Jack Curley, of New York, through whom his wrestling attractions will be supplied. Promoter Thompson deals through Ray Fabiani in Philadelphia. Thompson's lease at the Garden calls for him to stage weekly shows, but he is foregoing a card next week because of Thanksgiving Day. He has announced that his second show will be staged one week from next Wednesday night and that Wednesday will be his night hereafter.

A program of five bouts has been arranged by the Arena, featuring Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star, against Jim Clinstock in the main event. Emil Dusek will engage Sam Cordovano. Eli Fisher will tangle with Bill Middlekauf, Joe Malciewicz will oppose Sid Nabors and Bert Rubi will meet Bruno Gorresini in the other numbers.

The card is complete for the boxing show in the Moose Temple Monday night with the signing of Tony Di Piero, local light-heavyweight, to meet Mike Bazzone, of McKeesport, in the six-round opening bout.

Joey Bazzone, brother of Mike, boxes Jackie Holt, of Akron, brother of Billy Holt, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, hooks up with Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, in the two 10-rounders. Elmer Wilson, of the East End, and Dominick Mancini, of the North Side, are in the second bout.

Brouillard Loses Decision to Shucco

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Lou Brouillard's drive for his third championship got off to an unfortunate start last night when he took the short end of a divided decision in his bruising 10-round Boston Garden battle with Tony Shucco, clever Boston light-heavyweight. The verdict was unkindly received by the slim crowd of 6,500. Shucco weighed 170 and Brouillard 167½.

Chillysauce

By Chilly Doyle

Having reached his thirty-fourth birthday this month, Pirate Capt. Pie Traynor is taking no chances with his physical future. A letter to Carl Ehni, a banker friend, reveals that Pie already is cloistered in the deep snows of Wisconsin. Traynor has said his endurance was better in the years wherein he spent the off season in cold climates.

So Pie has taken himself to the sub-zero forests of the Badger State, and whether she likes it or not, his helpmate had to follow, although Mrs. Traynor says she loves to rough it. Pie puts up at a hunting lodge and is up ahead of the sun in the mornings.

The baseball stars who make a dash for the land below the Mason-Dixon line as quickly as Jack Frost blows his icy breath are generally those who cannot "take it" in the grind of the long campaign. Even that veteran campaigner of the links, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., put off his annual pilgrimage to Florida until he gets a few blasts of winter under his belt. It was only a day or two ago that John D. was winning a decision over an attack of grip. His method of judging the various climates probably has walloped many a disease germ.

The Pirates, it developed, might have negotiated successfully for Chuck Klein, who has been sold out of Quaker bondage to the rich Wrigley estate. Bill Benswanger, head man of the Buccos, states that President Gerry Nugent, of the Phillies, invited bids from the Pittsburgh sector, but he made it positive that the sometimes kicked-around dollar would have to be the motivating force. In other words, the Phillies wanted plenty of "lettuce leaves" before Klein changed suits.

Benswanger thinks the Bruin bosses parted with "one hundred grand," as the smart money boys might state it. During the world series I was informed by one very close to Nugent that the Quaker exchequer was empty and something had to be done to replenish the larder.

There is the important matter of Burt Shotton's managerial stipend for the coming two seasons. Nugent would like to change skippers and he would not be deterred by any mid-stream proverbs were it not for the fact that Burt has the Philly owners hooked financially for the duration of the period mentioned.

HANDBALL STARS OPEN LEAGUE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Inaugural hostilities of the City Inter-Club Handball League loom this afternoon as stars of the bi-divisional circuit engage in four tussles. Having written off their false start of three weeks ago, the glovesters stand better primed than ever to begin quest of the crowns defended by the Y. M. H. A. luminaries.

The titled Bellefielders get under way by taking on the crack Downtown Y arrays, the Class A fracas being slated for the champions' home courts and the Class B affair gracing the Wood street bill. Meanwhile Coach Hyatt's P. A. A. contenders and the Keystone A. C. tangle, the first flighters jousting at the Winged Head, and the secondary performers battling at the Keystone. Westinghouse Club, the lone new entry, stands idle.

McCook Reed, home club ace and city premier, carried off honors of yesterday's one-day invitation squash racquets tourney at the Keystone. Ed Seifert furnished the final opposition and went under at 15-8, 18-15.

Reed registered over Bill Bickel, K. A. C. flash, 15-13, 7-15, 15-11, in the lid-lifter and over Charley Faban, also a Keystoner, 15-7, 17-18, 15-7, in the semi-finals.

The summary:

First round—W. McCook Reed defeated William D. Bickel, 15-13, 7-15, 15-11; Charles A. Faban Jr. defeated J. K. Ebbert, 11-15, 15-10, 18-16; Dr. David O'Loughlin defeated A. W. Schmidt, 15-12, 15-8; Edward Seifert defeated Joseph Oliver, 15-11, 10-15, 15-5.

Semi-final round—Reed defeated Faban, 15-7, 17-18, 15-7; Seifert defeated O'Loughlin, 12-15, 15-5, 15-13.

Final round—Reed defeated Seifert, 15-8, 18-15.

HOGAN WINS CUE MATCH

Louis Hogan staged a comeback to triumph over Tony Monarchy in their pocket billiard match last night at the Roosevelt parlors. Hogan was 35 behind in the nineteenth inning, but his run of 39 at the close brought victory. Monarchy had a high run of 31.

CLASS B SCHOOLS IN BIG SCRAP

By JULIUS LEVIN

The battle between Mt. Pleasant and East Huntingdon, both undefeated and untied in their race for the class B championship of the W. P. I. A. L., scheduled this afternoon at Mt. Pleasant, heads an abbreviated program of scholastic football contests.

The two schools, along with East Pittsburgh High School, coached by Johnny Coleman, are the survivors in the race for the class B crown. The winner probably will meet East Pittsburgh for the title on December 2 on a field yet to be chosen. Greensburg may be chosen for the championship game.

The game originally was scheduled to be played on Thanksgiving Day, but was moved up to make possible an early date for the championship contest.

Mt. Pleasant High School, coached by Ned Culler, besides winning all of its class B games, played a tie with Greensburg, a class AA school, and was defeated by Canonsburg, a class A member.

East Huntingdon, coached by J. Owen Huntsman, has not suffered a defeat or tie this season.

Thanksgiving Day will see the class AA championship clarified considerably when Greensburg and Jeannette tangle. These two teams, along with New Castle, which has completed its class AA campaign undefeated and untied, are the championship contenders. The winner of the Greensburg-Jeannette game likely will meet New Castle for the title.

Only one class AA game is scheduled today, Turtle Creek Union invading Norwin High School field.

Hurst plays at Burgettstown, Pitcairn at Donora, Midland at Monaca, Leechburg at Ford City and Masontown All-Saints at St. Veronica's in other contests.

Carnegie High School defeated St. Luke High yesterday, 12 to 6. St. Peter's landed a 14-7 triumph over St. Mary's.

Perfect Bowlers Open Match Series

George Stocker, who recently rolled a 300 score in duckpins on the Elba alleys, and Eddie Miller, who duplicated the stunt on the Enright alleys, will meet in the first six games of a match series on the Enright alleys in East Liberty at 8 o'clock tonight.

They will conclude the match on the Elba alleys, downtown, next Wednesday night.

DON SMITH ON TEAM

Don Smith, Pitt basketball captain last year, will be seen in the uniform of the West View Civics this season. Another candidate for a regular berth on the West View outfit is Peck Thorn, formerly a Sharpsburg Y player.

PITT AND TECH HEARST SHOOT ENTRANTS

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER,
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—With more than 300 teams entered, and double that number in prospect, the twelfth year of national competition in the William Randolph Hearst rifle marksmanship competition today gives promise of being the largest in history.

Within a week after Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, the new commander of the Sixth Corps Area, Chicago, following instructions from the Secretary of War, sent out invitations for the matches, teams from universities, colleges, military academies and high schools throughout the United States and possessions began pouring in their official entries. Machinery for handling the shoot already has been set up, and officers designated to have charge of the scoring.

PITT, TECH ENTERED

Some of the institutions that already have entered teams are: Drexel Institute, of Philadelphia, University of Alabama, University of Pennsylvania, University of Missouri, North Texas Agricultural College, University of New Hampshire, Fordham University, State College of Washington, University of Idaho, University of Wyoming, Georgia School of Technology, Cornell University, Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C., University of Michigan, Depaw University, University of Minnesota, Pennsylvania State College, University of Akron, Indiana University, University of Wisconsin, University of Illinois, University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute of Technology, University of Cincinnati, University of South Dakota, North Dakota Agricultural College, Iowa State College, Pennsylvania Military College, Michigan College of Mining and Technology, Connecticut State College, Mississippi State College, Lafayette College, Massachusetts State College, College of the City of New York, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, South Dakota State College, Johns Hopkins University, New York University, University of Vermont, Kansas State College, University of Tennessee, Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, University of California, Los Angeles, Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanican College, Lehigh University, University of Washington, University of Arizona, Washington University of St. Louis, University of Nevada, Creighton University of Omaha, Western Maryland College, University of Maryland, University of Maine, and Davidson College.

SCHOOLS REPRESENTED

Among the first military academies and high schools to enter teams are: Peekskill Military Academy, St. John's Military Academy of Delafield, Wis., Northwestern Military and Naval Academy of Geneva Lake, Wis., Robert E. Lee Institute of Georgia, the high schools of Atlanta, Kemper Military School of Missouri, Roosevelt Military Academy, Oklahoma Military Academy, New Mexico Military Institute, Porter Military Academy, Staunton Military Academy, Augusta Military Academy, Oak Ridge Military Academy, Texas Military Institute, Georgia Military Academy, Bordentown Military Academy, Hargrave Military Academy, Campion College of Prairie Duchine, Wis., Bailey Military Academy of South Carolina, Missouri Military Academy, Cretin High School of St. Paul, Minn., the Manlius Schools of Manlius, N. Y., and the following high schools of Kansas City, Mo.: Central, East, Lathrop, Polytechnic, Manual Training, Northeast, Paseo, Southwest, Westport.

Chicago, with 15 high schools entered, leads the number competing in the junior division. New York is second and Los Angeles third.

The time limit for accepting entries does not expire for several weeks.

and Heinser at the guards and Steve Trobovich at center.

FOE'S ARRAY IMPRESSIVE

The Violets will stick to the lineup that threw that man-sized scare into the Fordham Rams. That array will have White and Klein at the flanks; Scheuer and Zaremba at the tackles; Barber and Kohler at the guards, and the stellar Marchi at center.

In the backfield will be Charley Seigel at quarter, Nate Machlowitz and Eddie Smith at the halves and Bill Abee, the acting captain for the day, at fullback.

Smith is the lad who's passing, kicking and running kept Fordham on the hot spot for three periods. He is an expert passer, and in Seigel, has a swell receiver. Abee, by the way, is a Pittsburgh district lad, as is Pete Zeremba, the Olympic games weight star and National A. A. U. hammer champion. Both hail from Aliquippa and both attended Bellefonte Academy prior to enrolling at N. Y. U.

As assistant coach, the Violets have Albert (Luby) Dimeolo, former Pitt guard luminary and captain of the 1929 eleven, which won the Eastern championship.

The game will get under way at 2 o'clock.

BIG GAMES ON AIR

Play-by-play accounts of the Yale-Harvard and Michigan-Northwestern football games this afternoon will be broadcast over WCAE. The Yale-Harvard broadcast is to begin at 1:45, and the Michigan-Northwestern battle will be on the air at 4:30.

Linemen Get All-America Ratings

By CHRISTY WALSH

Member, All America Board of Football (Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.)

After this week there remain only two more listings of players whose names will be considered by the All-America Board of Football for a place on the 1933 team. For this reason the following ratings are devoted to linemen exclusively—those unselfish players on every team who work quietly and diligently but seldom receive the recognition they deserve.

Warburton, Southern California; Lund, Minnesota; Franklin, Oregon State, and Sauer, Nebraska, lead the list of last Saturday's backfield stars and failure to include them in this week's ratings does not indicate that their magnificent playing went unrecorded—but the name of each already has appeared in the weekly ratings. At the coming meeting of the All-America Board it is expected that a rule will be passed restricting a player to a single All-America mention during any one season.

CONTEST

Follow these weekly ratings two more weeks and then enter the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's All-America Team contest. You may be one of the lucky winners of a beautiful All-America football blanket.

See tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for additional details.

1—BARTON, Denver University. A 190-pound guard who deserves All-America rating for his unusual line play in Denver's victory over Utah. He stopped every thrust at center and was a power on offense. (Parsons, Denver Post.)

2—KOENIG, Wisconsin. A 178-pound center and outstanding lineman in a hard game against Ohio State. Koenig tackled viciously behind the line of scrimmage, was down fast under punts and diagnosed plays with uncanny skill. (McIntyre, Milwaukee Sentinel.)

3—STEVENS, Southern California. This fast-stepping guard cut down several long runs, including one tagged for a touchdown, and was the all-around line star in the victory over undefeated Oregon. (Ziff, Los Angeles Herald-Express.)

4—ROGERS, Duke. A versatile Southern star who not only did outstanding blocking and defensive work as an end, but doubled at quarterback and halfback with equal effect.

5—OEN, Minnesota. Playing center, this Gopher captain figured prominently in Minnesota's two best thrusts against undefeated Michigan. His blocking helped the 39-yard dash by Lund and his interception of a pass started Minnesota's final drive. (McKenna, St. Paul Pioneer Press.)

6—SCHAMMEL, Iowa. Here is a guard who weighs 215 pounds, but is fast enough to be a back—as he proved by cutting down Purvis, fleet halfback, from behind. Schammel led all of Iowa's interference against Purdue and starred at tackling and blocking.

7—ARIAIL, Auburn. He showed remarkable intelligence in every play against undefeated Georgia and deserves much personal credit for the unexpected victory. Ariail stands 6 foot 1 inch, weighs 188 and does 100 yards in close to 10 seconds. (Newman, Birmingham News).

8—BERNARD, Michigan. This Wolverine center was the defensive leader against Minnesota. He made a large percentage of the tackles at the line of scrimmage, his passing was faultless in support of many important punts and he was a power in the secondary wall of defense. (Shaver, Detroit Times).

9—KOPANS, Harvard. The blocking and smashing all-round play of this 200-pound tackle was the spearhead in Harvard's defense and victory over Brown. His defensive play throughout the game was flawless and inspiring. (Hahoney, Boston Record).

10—UZDAVINIS, Fordham. Here was a smashing tackle against Oregon State. His blocking was deadly and on defense he was quick to sense the play and smash it up.

40,000 to Witness Irish-Trojan Game

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Always hopeful — but scarcely confident—Notre Dame football followers made their way to the stadium today to see if the Irish could do the unexpected and turn back the invading horde of Southern California Trojans in the annual intersectional football game.

Notre Dame's hopes were based on the improvement shown in Coach Hunk Anderson's team last week, when Northwestern was defeated 7 to 0, but the lack of confidence came from the four tilts lost already this season.

Meanwhile, the boys at the box-office were doing a brisk business and predicted that 40,000 or more fans would be present at 1:30 o'clock for the kickoff.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Amid all the glamour and enthusiasm characteristic of the best and most prosperous days of this great gridiron rivalry, Army's undefeated team faced the robust challenge of the Navy today, hopeful of outfooting the jinx that has been pursuing the nation's football leaders and favored to win by a margin of at least two touchdowns.

Despite some pessimism in their own camp, designed to suggest that Old Man Upset was hot on their trail, the hard-charging Cadets ruled 3-to-1 favorites. Army hasn't lost a game to the Navy since 1921 and their remarkable record so far this year, one of the best in West Point history, furnished no grounds for suspicion that the current winning streak of the soldiers would be interrupted this afternoon.

BANNER CROWD ASSURED

Franklin Field, with its host of memories historic in Army-Navy rivalry, was expected to be jammed to its capacity of 79,000, with Secretaries Dern and Swanson heading a delegation of notables and the cheers of the cadets and midshipmen providing a reverberating background. There were less than 2,000 tickets left this morning and a quick public sale of these was anticipated. At $4.40 per head, the crowd and the "gate," exceeding $300,000, topped anything in the East so far this season.

Good weather, fair and cool, favored the most colorful of all football spectacles. The corps in gray from West Point and the brigade in blue from Annapolis, due around 11 a. m., in special trains, were scheduled to parade onto the field by noon. The kick-off was set for 1:30 o'clock.

CADETS OWN ADVANTAGE

Although not under-estimating the Navy's strength and incentive to break a long spell of reverses, Army unquestionably entered the service battle with a decided edge, both offensively and defensively.

If the Cadets feel the pressure of their drive to achieve an unbeaten season, with Notre Dame still to be played next Saturday in New York, they have not manifest it. The team appears back at the peak after a let down a week ago against Penn Military.

Navy's chief casualty is Gordon Chung Hoon, speedy Hawaiian back. Chung Hoon has a bad shoulder and may not be able to play, although he worked out yesterday with the midshipmen.

SOCCER ACES IN CUP TILT

By TOM BIRKS

Ambridge and the Union Switch and Signal elevens clash in the first round of the national amateur soccer cup championship at Dixon Field, Swissvale, this afternoon, with the kickoff scheduled for 2:30.

In the Central District League three games will be played. Two of them are carded in Lawrenceville, where the Dunwick Rovers meet the Arsenal eleven at the High School Stadium. The Rovers hook up with Clan Douglas at Leslie Park.

The third game finds the Beltzhoover team traveling to Beadling to meet the Old Carnegie team.

HARRIERS RUN TODAY

More than 30 harriers and four teams will compete in the senior A. M. A. cross country run to be staged over the Schenley Park course at one o'clock this afternoon. The start and finish of the race will be at the foot of Flagstaff Hill. Four teams of University of Pittsburgh runners make up the team competition.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell returns next week.)

A Columnist, Who Can't Find a Sec'y Who Will Also Do His Laundry, Jots a Few Notes to Himself!

Dear P. Y.: It remained for the Rochester Journal to splash the ink on your tip concerning the wedding plans of Mae West's sister, Beverly, and Wladimir Baikoff, the former Russian dancer . . . Ralph P. Young, managing ed. of the Rochester daily, flashed this via air mail: "It may interest you to know that your paragraph about Miss West bore fruit in our news columns. Beverly admitted the story and I am enclosing a clipping which gives you credit for the tip." . . . The actual altar-stop is scheduled to celebrate Max's return to N. Y., but special information reveals that Mae will finish another screemie before departure from Hollywood and will then beat her way slowly East in a one-night concert tour of the country . . . The Wm. Morris office expects the tour will yield her at least $35,000 a week . . . Which is big time money, reflation or no!

Charles Moscowitz, the Loew chieftain, called . . He wants you to correct the general impression that the reason David Loew and his Mrs. did not accompany the newly-wedded Arthur Loews on their round-the-world honeymoon was because the latter intended to fly contrary to Mrs. Marcus Loew's wishes . . . The truth is that Mrs. Dave Loew is ailing and was advised against the jaunt by her medicos . . . Olin Miller suggests that we query our foreign debtors thus: "Why don't you come across some time?"

The office boy called today and wanted to know whether we've missed him the past few days . . . I told him that we hadn't because some riveters had begun a job next door to the office . . . He said he was glad he phoned, because he had planned to come in for a short while, but the riveting would interfere with any rest he might want to take . . . I hung up on him, but he called back and when I said, "Hello!" he yelled back, "Now I'm hanging up on you!." . . There's a cable from Bob Briggs in Paris: "I am interested in knowing what Evelyn Hoey is doing here. She is seen in all the best places, but refuses to admit her identity." . . . It seems Baby Rose Marie opened in a Rochester picture house Monday and the local Gerry Society immediately stepped in to prevent her from performing . . . So the management outwitted them by letting her step on the stage and stand there while a phonograph played her records . . . Baby Marie went through all the motions and gestures but didn't utter a word—and that satisfied the local ordinances!

"Prince" Mike Romanoff dropped in to say, "Ha-low!" . . . He told a story on himself which proves he had a complete sense of proportion . . . At a Park Ave. party recently the host asked him if he'd like to be introduced to the Princess Nina who is the niece of the late Czar Nicholas . . . To which Mike, who himself has come against a few good doubters in his time, asked: "Are you sure she is the real thing?" . . . Incidentally, Mike speaks Russian fluently which is contrary to the general canards which have been built around his career . . . I. J. Fox, he furrier, called. He said the prophets predict a cold Winter and many local males are ordering fur headgear. He is eager to make one for you and wants to know whether you wear your ears inside or out . . . He also wants to know if he should leave a hole in the top as he heard one of your contemporaries say that you "talked through your hat" . . . I told him to make a good-sized hole and to attach a megaphone on top so that you could be heard . . . He laughed at the idea but said he would prepare it, megaphone and all . . . Now you will be able to go to the plumbers' ball dressed as the Spirit of Indirect Lighting.

You can't praise too much the performances of Polly Walters and Harold P. Flick in "She Loves Me Not," the smash hit at the 46th St. Theater . . . The interesting thing about Flick (who changed his name from "Patsy" to "Harold P." when he received his Equity card) is that he is the lad who taught George Givot his now-famous Greek dialect . . . Patsy also perfected Leo Carrillo's dialect for him when the picture star appeared in "Moonlight and Pretzels." Bill Rowland, the producer, hired him for the tutoring and expected the job to last four weeks, but Carrillo was an apt pupil and learned in a week, thus throwing Patsy out of three additional week's pay . . . Several others have got their Greek accents from this talented lad, but the irony is that his overnight recognition came as the result of an East Side dialect which is entirely new to him... Mike Porter relays an interesting note on kidnaping insurance. It seems that insurance against snatching is growing in the U. S., but paradoxically no American company is permitted to issue it. So most of the policies are going to English companies in whose country kidnaping for ransom is almost unheard of! . . . They rushed the ailing Richy Craig, Jr., to Saranac . . . Pete Wynne, the Adonis, of the police force, and Jean Moran will be married... Micky Alpert goes into the new "Greenwich Village Follies."

Walter Annenberg, the NY publisher who is touring the Midwest, sent you a clipping from the Rochester, Minn., Post-Bulletin in which a Mr. Chester inserted this adv.: "Trade — 35 chickens and a velour day bed for anything I can use" . . . Did Mr. Chester make his bed and expect the chickens to lay in it . . . A laughable tale came from Uncle Don Carney over the phone. A young urchin sneaked into the museum on Forty-second street and edged his way into the front row where the snake charmer was performing. Anxious to get the lad, who was proving himself a nuisance, out of the way, the snake-charmer shoved a dangerous looking cobra right under the boy's nose . . . "Say," flipped the impertinent youngster, "give me a quarter and I'll kiss it." . . . If this is a true story, then I know where that boy of ours has been hanging out.

Your severest critic,
PAUL YAWITZ.

40 Hours Is Now Lengthy Tenure In Federal Job

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

Old line Jeffersonians are squawking that this administration is treating Democrats like Republicans.

Well, the boys come and go. Railroads are running three-day round trips for master minds.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Will Rogers

Big headlines in papers say that the big bankers, to show Roosevelt his financial scheme don't suit them, are unloading government bonds and securities by the bushel.

He won't play their way so they are going to sell their ball and bat and get out. I can't just recall, but as well as I remember, wasn't they the fellows that the government was helping so much not long ago?

They ought to pray every night, "God bless mama and papa, and all my family, and interests, and Roosevelt. Yours, WILL.

P. S. I want to apologize to the President for putting interest ahead of him, but interest has been helping 'em out longer than he has.

Dead Artist Film Hero In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

Nowadays any idea that has any interest gets to Hollywood sooner or later. A Frenchman wrote a play that was successful, and was successfully transferred into English as "The Late Christopher Bean."

Now it has been turned into a picture for Lionel Barrymore and Marie Dressler — "the late" being left out of the title so the audience might not think "Christopher Bean" is a dead one — and now that picture is on view at the Penn.

It's a very fine piece of work, from the idea itself to the acting and the photography. Lionel is again a country doctor—he will soon be an entire medical society!

Marie Dressler is the hired help in this New England home, where for 19 years she has been a slave under the domination of petty greed and meanness. When, through an art auction, the fame of Christopher Bean is widely advertised, art dealers come to rake up unknown masterpieces of the man who died obscure and hungry.

Most of the dramatic action revolves around the portrait of Marie Dressler, painted by the artist before he died. The mad greed of the family leads them to attempt the sale at a high price—the mean spirit of the doctor's wife causes them to lose also the 17 other pictures for which the trifle of $200,000 has been offered. The last view of Marie is in a Pullman upper berth, sleeping with her art gallery after some slapstick comedy with a hotwater bottle.

But for exhilarating slapstick comedy Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly take the prize. Their trip back to nature, in which they have adopted the uproarious technique of Laurel and Hardy, is a scream from first to last.

Connie, Hank Love Birds

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25.—Let the gossips make of it what they will, but Constance Bennett and the Marquis Henri de la Falaise celebrated their second wedding anniversary like a pair of lovers.

The Marquis filled La Bennett's room with white flowers—roses, chrysanthemums, sweet pears and gardenias. He presented her with a valuable porcelain miniature that he brought from Europe.

Among Connie's gifts to "Hank" was a radio for his car.

The pair will give a big party tonight for the Baron Jaunez, their house guest, who will return shortly to Paris. Many of Hollywood's elite will be attending.

Meanwhile La Bennett is reading a half dozen stories submitted to her by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. She wants to get her picture done, so she can go to New York after the first of the year for the premiere of "Moulin Rouge." By that time, the Marquis Bali idyl, "Lelong," also will be ready for release.

Hollywood's grapevine is buzzing with conjecture.

Is the sudden cooling of interest between Sally Blane and Russ Columbo due to the arrival here of Dorothy Dell, "Miss Universe" of 1930, who was engaged to the crooner back East?

Miss Dell is to make pictures for Paramount. In case you've forgotten, she was a Zeigfeld "Follies" hit singing the crazy tune of a few season's ago, "Was I Drunk, Was He Handsome and Did My Mother Give Me H——."

The reason back of Pat De Cicco's fast trip to Sacramento was to offer Max Baer the lead in RKO's forthcoming "You Won't Sing, Eh!" He carried with him a copy of the script, because the cocky heavyweight's manager, Ancil Hoffman, won't let Max make another movie unless he okays the story.

Report has it that the tall fighter was offered the staggering sum of $3,500 a week for a 40-week contract with MGM. And that he can get as much as $5,000 a week for the one picture at RKO.

Close friends of the couple insist that Douglas Fairbanks will be coming back to Hollywood before long, but that he and Mary Pickford will maintain separate establishments. Also that Mary will retain Pickfair for her home.

If you can believe Charlie Ruggles, a little nurse in a Hollywood hospital gave the squelch elegant to one of the gay blades of the film colony.

A bit woozy from ether, the actor addressed the nurse as "darling."

She gave him a level look, replied:

"Nurse to you."

Woman Slain With Knife, Man Hunted

Police today sought Maize Settles, 30, Negro, of 24 Granville street, whom they accuse of stabbing to death Alberta Jenkins, 22, a Negro, of 1907 Beamer street, during an argument in the latter's home last night.

The wounded woman died in Passavant Hospital.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"DEAR MARK:" writes M. Sheade, of Chicago. "Very often in the course of my daily occupation—reporting divorce cases for the records of the attorney—incidents take place during the proceedings that are extremely humorous. Here's one that actually happened only a short time ago in the court of a distinguished judge.

"A colored couple, married some three years, suddenly realized that they could no longer live together. They had come to blows many times during their married life.

"Gus—the man in the case—had many scars to show for those engagements. But Minnie, the wife, seemed to have come out of them nicely. The reason for this, I assumed, was that Minnie topped Gus by a head and a half in height, and weighed approximately eighty pounds more.

"Minnie claimed that Gus was no good. He caused her many an unhappy hour, she stated, by his running around with other women—and his unhappy hour only began after he arrived home after a spree.

"But, Minnie went on, she had gotten so that she derived absolutely no satisfaction from beating him up. She wouldn't live with that no good man another day. She wanted a divorce—and alimony.

"His Honor looked down at Gus, who seemed to have but a very faint idea of what was going on.

" 'You have heard your wife's story,' said His Honor. 'What have you to say for yourself?"

"Gus rubbed the back of his neck with a nervous hand.

" 'W-w-well, Jedge,' he stammered, 'ah dunno. Ad just—, well, ah dunno. Ah——'

The judge knew immediately that he could expect nothing more from Gus. So he nodded briefly.

" 'Gus,' he stated, 'I believe I am going to give your wife the divorce she wants. I believe it would be for the best. So I am granting her the divorce, and giving her the sum of $10 a month.'

"For the first time since he had stepped into the court, Gus seemed to be awake. He actually beamed.

" 'Jedge,' he cried happily, 'Ah'm sho' glad yo' gonna give Minnie dat ten dollahs a month, 'cause dat's whut botha'd me. Ah coulden do it!' "

"IN A nudist camp not far from here," reports Alvin Hamburg, of the same city, "a cult member was almost embarrassed to death the other day. Seems strange for a nudist to become embarrassed, but this time it happened. A stick-up man nudged up to him and said hoarsely:

" 'Don't move, buddy. I've got you covered!' " . . .

* * *

"SAW your piece about Tim Mara the other day," writes B. F., "and agree most heartily with you about the guy's sweet nature. But the purpose of this note is to give you Tim's pet story, which he evidently neglected to spill to you.

"This summer, Mara was standing with C. C. Pyle at the latter's freak carnival at the World's Fair. The sword swallower, a mug who can shove down his throat anything from a penknife to a hatchet, leaned over to Pyle and complained of a severe headache.

" 'We'll fix that,' said Pyle. 'I'll just send out for a couple of aspirin tablets for you.

"The sword swallower shook his head.

" 'Nothing doing, he replied. 'I cant take aspirin. It always gives me indigestion.' . . .

"I ACTUALLY saw it happen," writes Clayton Hobbs, in a downtown restaurant the other evening. The place is a large one, and is justly famous for its food and drinks.

"A stew, extremely nasty to all those who encountered him, entered this spot and was immediately placed at a rear table by the head waiter. He didn't like it there, and insisted upon a front table. They wouldn't give it to him. Whereupon the fighting stew wandered to the ringside and seated himself at a table that had already been assigned to a couple who were dancing.

"The proprietor walked over immediately and told him to leave. The stew doubled his fists and said they'd have to put him out. The proprietor looked down at him and nodded sadly.

" 'Brother,' he murmured tiredly, 'before I decide to hit you on the chin, I'm going to tell you something. You're anxious for a fight, and we've had plenty like you in the thirty years we've been operating.

" 'But I must tell you, too, that we've never lost a decision. If you fight with me, you'll have to fight with sixteen waiters, six bus boys, three chefs and three captains. If you get by them, you'll have to fight the band on your way out. If you do get out, you'll have to fight the twelve cab drivers who are standing outside the door.

" 'Lots of fools have tried, but they never succeed. Would you like to try—or do you want to get your coat and hat, and walk out standing up?'

"The stew walked out. And, Mark, you never saw such a peaceful exit in all your life."

"DEAR Hellinger," writes Jasper Collins. "While you probably write more about prisons and rackets than any other columnist, you have evidently missed a very hilarious episode that took place in a western penitentiary only a few weeks ago.

"A notorious gambler, doing five years on a blackmail conviction, was suddenly transferred to another spot still further west. The local papers printed a few lines about the transfer, but none of them learned the actual inside of the case.

"The gambler was sent to the new spot because—in the jail itself—he had been running a crap game with phony dice and had clipped five of the keepers!"

Newmans to Present 'The Rivals'

The first play of a series, Sheridan's "The Rivals," will be presented Sunday and Monday evenings in St. Paul's High School, North Craig street, by the Newman Players. The Sunday evening performance is private. Members of the Newman Club and their friends will form the audience. Monday evening's performance will be public. The production is under the direction of Madeleine Skelly Foust. Margaret Kelly is stage manager.

The series will include "The Dragon's Tooth" and "The man Who Washed His Hands." It is the plan of the Newman Players to develop a repertory.

Flight Shots On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Final scenes of the remarkable flight into the stratosphere by Lieut. Commander Settle of the Navy, and Maj. Fordney of the Army, enacted in a marsh near Bridgeton, N. J., are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The Globe Trotter gives a description of the trip.

"Wets" in California very appropriately celebrate the passing of prohibition with a swimming meet at Palm Springs.

Glimpses of Russia as it is today show the remarkable progress made by the Soviet in recent years.

Uncle Sam's newest submarine, Cuttlefish, is launched at New London, Conn.

Poland's crack cavalrymen, using their sabres, engage in remarkable maneuvers while riding at full speed at Krakau.

New York sees its most ludicrous wrestling bout when Jumping Joe Savoldi pests Man Mountain Dean, who weighs 302 pounds.

Happy days have come to Dixie where exports of cotton have increased 40 per cent. Hundreds of bales are seen being loaded on a German steamer by laughing, joyous Negroes who, at lunch hour, join in singing spirituals and clog dances.

Gene Sarazen, at the Miami Biltmore course in Florida, places a bunch of caddies on a knoll and agrees to hire the lad who catches his speedily driven golf balls. None of them qualifies.

President Zamora, of Spain, visits the Spanish protectorate at Tetuan, Morocco, and is given a tremendous reception by the 23-year-old Caliph.

(Note—Because of the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater)

'Rigoletto' Well Sung By San Carlo Cast

Verdi's "Rigoletto," based on "The Fool's Revenge," was the opera at the Nixon last night, and was sung with spirit by Fortune Gallo's valiant host. With Nina Quartin as Gilda, Dimitri Onofrei as the Duke, and Mario Valle as Rigoletto, it was a fine singing and acting cast.

Leon Rothier gave gruesome emphasis to Sparafucile, while Marion Selee made a very acceptable Maddalena. The popular quartet and "La donna e mobile" roused most enthusiasm in the audience, which is increasing as the week draws to a close.

This afternoon Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and tonight Verdi's "Trovatore" will end the engagement.

Gayety, Tunes Combine in Pitt Bill

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Gayety swings through the acts comprising the stage show at the Pitt this week, a gayety of song, dance and humor.

Princess Yvonne, heralded as the mental marvel and psychic worker, reads the minds of members of a highly sceptical audience in the manner of the theme song of the NRA—everything's going to be all right. Four $50 bills (real money) are offered to anyone who stumps the glib princess, but the money, of course, is still safely in the hands of the would-be donor at the close of the act.

Ray Hughes bears out his name of "The Fall Guy" when with Pam, the blonde appeal, he cleans up the stage and gets the audience to "fall" for him.

Impersonations, well done, are the field of Kitty Doner, imbued with an amusing quality of pep. Johnny Elliott and his All-American Girls, with Irene Clayton popping in and out, feature dancing of the revue type.

Character bits make Violet Carlson, formerly of the musical comedy stage, popular with the audience. Lightning changes, impudent wisecracks are her forte.

In the Seven Avalons you'll find a dancing thrill quite out of the usual. Dancing, itself, no matter how clever, has become more or less an accepted part of every stage program, but when the dancing is done on the narrow ground of a tight rope, you're more likely to sit up and take notice.

Warner, Lyons and Margie introduce a dancing dog in their act and he, in his lacy ruffles, evokes some admiring laughs.

On the screen Helen Twelvetrees, Victor Jory and Wallace Ford do some rather heavy acting in a drama concerning the ups and downs of a radio star, titled "My Woman."

Woman, 70, Badly Injured by Car

Struck by a street car as she crossed Fifth avenue near Marion street last night, Mrs. Anna Lewis, 70, of 37 Marion street, was in Mercy Hospital today in serious condition, suffering from a skull facture.

STOCK MARKET TRENDLESS AND DULL

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The stock market was trendless in the early part of today's short session. Quotations were narrowly mixed and trading dull. Numerous industrial leaders ruled unchanged. Utilities and metals were slightly irregular.

Homestake Mining got up 3 points in a small transfer. Case gained a point while issues unchanged to slightly higher included General Motors, United States Steel, American Telephone, Union Pacific, United States Smelting, Du Point, Allied Chemical and Canadian Pacific. Mild recessions occurred in United Aircraft, Cerro de Pasco, Consolidated Gas, American Smelting, American Can and Johns-Manville.

Although the RFC again held the domestic gold price unchanged at $33.76 an ounce, foreign exchanges displayed a steadying tendency at the opening. Sterling showed a gain of 1¾ cents at $5.19¾ and the French franc recovered .01 of a cent at 6.20 cents.

London boosted the gold price 5 pence to 126 shillings 6 pence an ounce. The American equivalent, based on the opening of the pound, was about $32.83.

The report of the Federal Reserve Board, showing a contra-seasonal decrease in the output of basic industries during October was being studied by industrial observers. The board's adjusted index declined from 84 per cent of the 1923-25 average to 77 per cent. This figure, however, compared with an index of 67 per cent in October of last year and a low mark of 60 last March. Although industrial production sagged, the board found that factory employment about held its own during the month.

In the two weeks ended November 7, the government's labor statistics bureau disclosed, food prices resumed their advance after a four-week decline from the high point reached September 6. The bureau's index number of the general level of retail food prices moved up two-tenths of 1 per cent in the two weeks to 106.7. The September peak was 107.4, while the low mark of 90.4 was recorded last April.

GRAIN MARKET TAKES DIP

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Setbacks in grain prices formed the rule early today. Continuance of monetary uncertainties was taken by numerous traders as an incentive to sell. Opening ¾ to 1¼ off, wheat later underwent additional downturns. Corn started at ⅜ to ¾ decline, and subsequently sagged further.

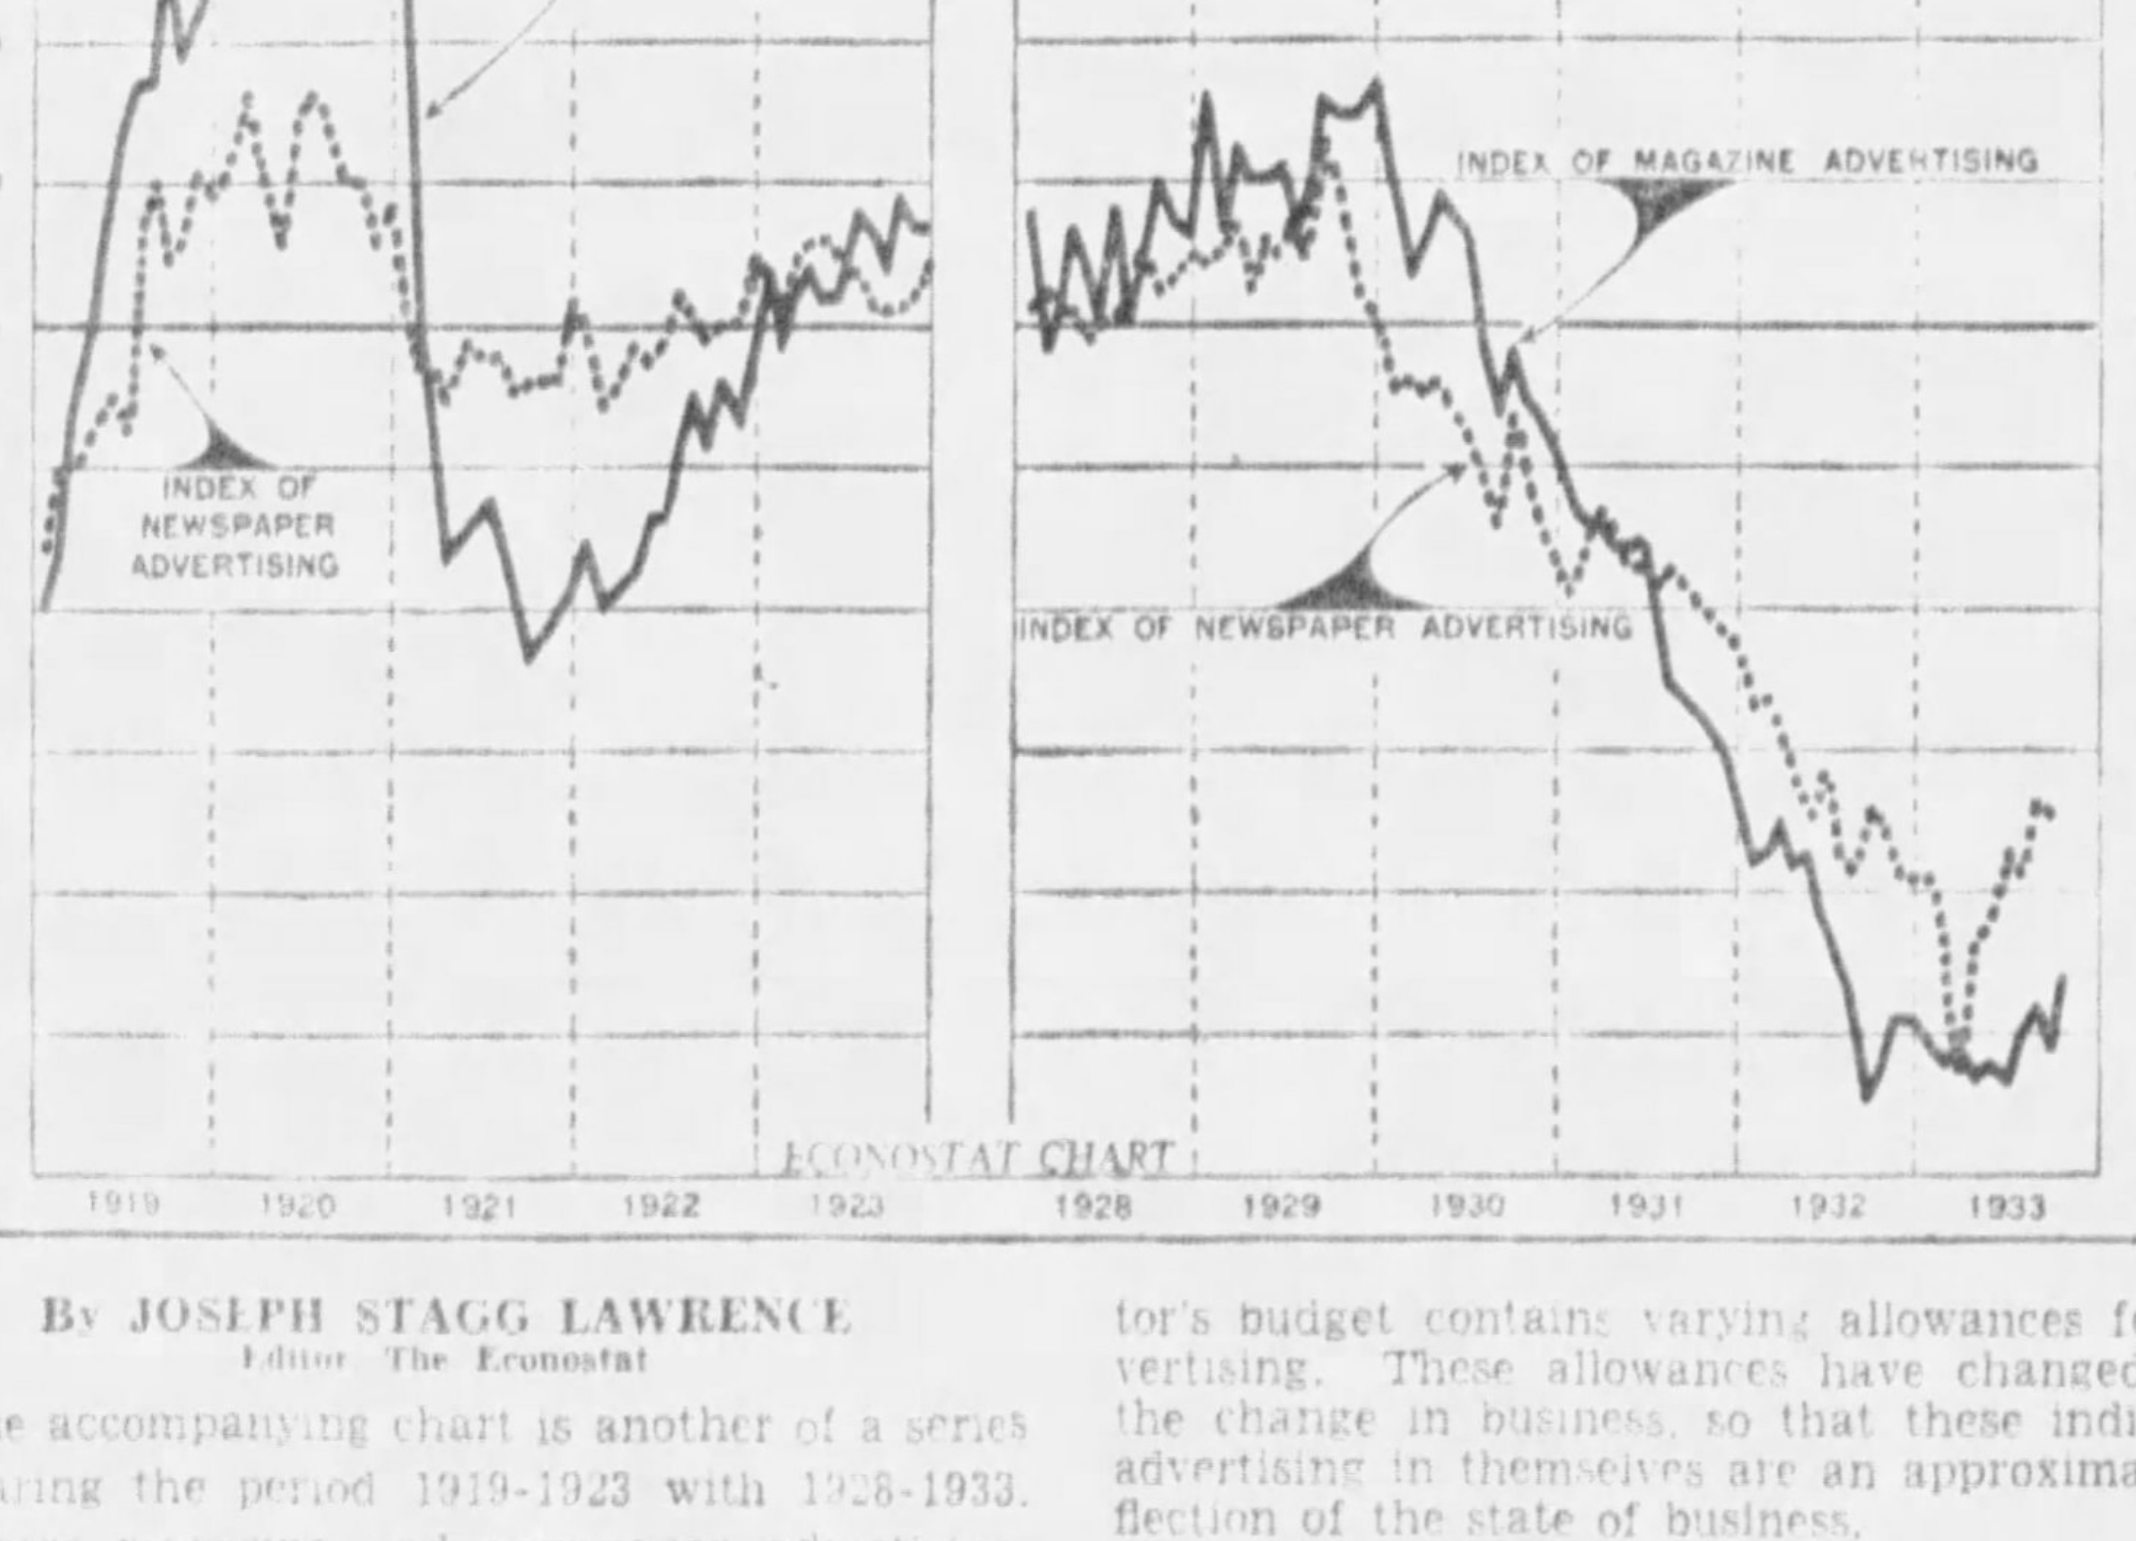
Newspaper Advertising Provides Barometer of Future Business

NEWSPAPER AND MAGAZINE ADVERTISING



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor The Econostat

The accompanying chart is another of a series comparing the period 1919-1923 with 1928-1933. It covers magazine and newspaper advertising. In each case an average for the period 1919-1931 is taken as the base. In computing the index an allowance is made for seasonal fluctuations, which in advertising are quite pronounced.

The magazine advertising index is based upon Printers' Ink compilation of national advertising appearing in all the leading periodicals. The newspaper advertising index is based upon the lineage in daily newspapers in 22 leading cities.

Advertising, as every producer knows, is an important item in the distribution of his products. It can no longer be said that the world will beat a path to the door of the man who can make the better mouse trap. It is necessary, in order to secure effective distribution, to advise the potential buying public of your wares. As a result of this merchandising necessity, every distributor's budget contains varying allowances for advertising. These allowances have changed with the change in business, so that these indices of advertising in themselves are an approximate reflection of the state of business.

They have this additional importance. Whereas freight carloadings, electric power production, steel operations, coal output and cotton consumption represent accomplished business facts, advertising is an estimate of the future. It expresses the prospects rather than actual business facts. Newspaper advertising may therefore be regarded as a barometer of business confidence in the future.

Viewing it in this light, it may be noted that magazine and newspaper advertising actually reflect the decline in business taking place during the years 1930-1931 and 1932. It should also be noted that newspaper advertising is a more sensitive and on the whole a more accurate barometer of business changes. The index of newspaper advertising has dropped in 1929 and has risen ahead of and more rapidly than magazine advertising during the present year.

Steel Stocks Holding Center of Market Interest

Persistent strength in the steel shares has continued to attract attention as the representative leaders have worked smartly ahead to new high levels for the move. Steel common has been in the van of the rise but has been hard pressed for leadership by other favorites, notably Bethlehem and National Steel. Traders visualize the steel industry as scraping bottom and are confident that with automobile companies getting into production rapidly on new models in the next few weeks a good lift from current level of operations is in prospect. Motor buying combined with railroad purchases which are believed in prospect for winter months could change the picture in that industry materially.

Rail shares displayed an undercurrent of strength suggestive of a rather good character of demand. The group was helped a bit by the relatively good showing of the weekly loading report which disclosed a gain of 21,600 cars over the preceding week. The total once more was approximately at the 600,000 car level and 1.8 per cent above the same week last year.

Sudden awakening of interest in the utilities featured early stock trading yesterday. Wall street was a bit puzzled by the active demand for the power and light shares. As a group those issues have been out of popularity for months, particularly since the outright offer of federal public works funds to municipalities to finance construction of publicly owned utility facilities. Boston interests are reported to have been quietly taking hold of power and light shares recently, but the reason for reported buying from that direction has not yet come to light.

The recent heavy speculation in silver is likely to come under the scrutiny of the Senate Finance Committee's investigators, according to reports heard locally. The silver market was a rather wild affair at times during the last two or three weeks. And the story has it that it appears that everybody of any consequence who has an idea of what the metal looks like, including not a few of the political world, were aboard for the ride.

New capital financing, as measured by registrations of new flotations at the Federal Trade Commission, continues to be small. While "wet" issues and new gold mining stocks continue to dominate the field, the list is becoming more broadened, it was learned at the commission, and covers many fields of endeavor. The amounts of the new offerings, however, as measured in dollars, continues low.

In addition to suspending their "open market" policy, the Federal Reserve Banks actually disposed of $1,000,000 in government bonds during the week ended November 22, the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Board revealed. On November 15 the 12 regional institutions were holding $2,431,000,000 of government securities, a loss of $1,000,000 compared with the previous week, but still $580,000,000 higher than for the same week of last year.

Borg-Warner Pays Common Dividend

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Warner Corporation has declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, payable December 8 to record December 6. This is the first disbursement on the common since April, 1932, when an annual basis of one dollar a share was terminated. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 was declared on the preferred stock, payable January 1 to record December 15.

Sugar Consumption Shows Drop in U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Sugar consumption in the United States during October amounted to 407,032 tons raw sugar value, as compared with 465,324 tons in the like 1932 month, a decrease of 12.53 per cent, according to B. W. Dyer & Co.

Consumption for the first 10 months of 1933 totals 4,898,395 tons, a decrease of 42,541 tons, or .86 per cent, compared with the corresponding period in 1932.

SWISS TO EXCHANGE BONDS

The Swiss government has formally announced its offer to exchange 4 per cent Swiss franc bonds dated December 15, 1933, and due on December 1, 1952, for its 5½ per cent dollar bonds due on April 1, 1946. The dollar bonds, outstanding in the amount of $30,000,000, are quoted around 162. They will become callable on April 1 next at 60 days' notice and are redeemable at par and interest.

SHOE SALES LOWER

Orders for shoes continued to fall this week, manufacturers reported, and a quiet period from now to the end of the year is expected. Producers have cut down production in order to work off existing stocks.

DRY GOODS ACTIVE

Dry goods wholesalers report a fair demand for merchandise from retailers, particularly in the South where stores are reported to be doing a brisk business.

FRISCO MERGER URGED BY RFC

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—As a solution of the financial problem of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad reorganization plan, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation recommended to a creditors' meeting of the Frisco that it should be merged with the Katy system.

The report of RFC also said the Frisco property is carried on the books at more than $100,000,000 in excess of its true worth.

It can be emphatically stated that the Frisco's difficulties are primarily the outgrowth of an unsound financial structure and secondarily the result of depression, according to the report. The physical property is well developed in relation to its requirements. It is in good condition and well operated.

Continental Can Reports Sales Gain

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The Continental Can Company announces that its dollar sales in the fourth quarter up to November 10 were about 30 per cent ahead of the same period last year.

Portugal May Join Sterling Faction

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Private advices from Lisbon are to the effect that Portugal from now on will link its currency, the escudo, to the pound sterling at the rate of 110 pesos to one pound.

LOCAL STOCKS SHOW FIRM TONE

Dullness marked trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. The apathy of traders closely paralleled the action of markets in other cities.

The local stocks were generally firm, but only four transactions took place during the first hour of trading.

Devonian Oil opened at 9, unchanged from its previous close. Lone Star Gas common opened at 5⅞, unchanged, and later rallied an eighth of a point.

A block of Harbison-Walker Refractories common appeared at 14¼. This was the first transaction in this stock on the local exchange in several weeks.

Sleuths Open War On Shoplifters

City magistrates downtown and detectives announced today that all shoplifter suspects would be held for court in a drive to break up the annual holiday wave.

And Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held for court, following a hearing, Eugene McKinney, 29, and Charles Smith, 32, both Negroes, of "city," accused of taking merchandise worth $15 from a downtown store.

Lindberghs Feted On Canary Islands

LAS PALMAS, Canary Island, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Residents of Las Palma abandoned everyday pursuits today to shower hospitality on Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, here on their latest stopover on a long survey of Atlantic Ocean air routes.

STEEL MARKET HAS SMALL GAIN

By R. E. V. LUTY

The general tone of the steel market has undergone a slight further improvement. The turn in sentiment appears to have occurred two or three weeks ago, expectation that the market would steadily grow duller, seasonally, to the end of the year being replaced by hope that there would be a little improvement.

In four successive weeks, including this week, production of steel ingots has been officially forecast at 26.1, 25.2, 27.1 and 26.9 per cent of capacity, indicating that tonnage output in the fortnight, now ending, is up 5 per cent from the preceding fortnight.

That passing of the low point of three weeks ago indicates a general long range swing is not certain for the late weeks of the year are in doubt. By precedent they should show a dip in production, but on account of the code, which prohibits extension of contract deliveries beyond December 31, there is possibility of sustained or even increased production at that time.

OUTLOOK BETTER

Prospects now are that production of ingots in the remainder of the year will average above 25 per cent of capacity. Three weeks ago the prospect seemed to be for an average between 20 and 25 per cent.

The increase in production in the last fortnight slightly raises estimates for the year. After adjustment for a difference of two in the number of working days, total ingot production in 1933 promises to be about 70 per cent above the 1932 total. Of more practical importance is another comparison. Early last April the rate of production passed above that of a year previous. From that time to the end of the year production is running about 124 per cent above production in the same period of last year, 226 working days to the end of the year being taken in each case. Few in the trade have realized that there was even a doubling. The present rate, about 18,000,000 tons of Bessemer and open-hearth ingots a year, is 46 per cent above the average rate last November, when the rate was 26 per cent above the low of the whole depression.

Buying of steel has been almost wholly by the smaller classes of consumers, the large consuming lines being almost entirely absent from the market. Such change as has occurred in the last two or three weeks has not been by the large lines entering the market, but by the smaller buyers placing individual orders a little more frequently, and occasionally for slightly larger tonnages. The improved tone lies less in the fact that there has been a little improvement and more in the fact that there has been no slipping, of seasonal or other character.

GAIN SEEN

The better year ending now promised adds little actual tonnage, greater importance lying in the fact that there is furnished a higher basis from which seasonal upturn should start after the turn of the year. Seasonal upturn, beginning in January, has occurred in each of the last 12 years, including both bad times and good times.

There are possibilities of a large increase in tonnage because at present building and the oil and gas fields are taking very little steel and the railroads and the automobile industry virtually none. If these four lines should do even half as well as the miscellaneous consumers there would be a large increase in total tonnage.

Price advances to become effective on December 1 are: Tin plate, 60 cents a base box to $5.25; wire rods, $1 a gross ton to $36; wire nails, staples and barb wire $5 a net ton, making nails $2.35; plain wire, $2 a net ton; boiler tubes, $4 to $6 a net ton. Bars, shapes and plates and semi-finished steel in billets, slabs and sheet bars will be unchanged. Sheet and strip prices are not yet announced. The tin plate price for this season, $4.25, was announced November 17, 1932. Since then pig tin, largely on account of the rise in sterling exchange, has advanced by an amount representing more than 50 cents in the cost of making a box of tin plate.

COKE DROPS

Connellsville crushed coke, prepared for domestic use, has been reduced from the original coke price of $4.00 per net ton at ovens to $3.50 for delivery in the immediate Pittsburgh district and $3.75 for delivery elsewhere. Standard blast furnace coke remains at $3.75 and standard foundry coke at $4.25.

Heavy melting steel scrap has held at $11.25 to $11.75 for two weeks after four weeks of declines at 25 cents a week. There is no consumer demand but buying is expected after December 15, to keep the material out of annual inventories.

NAME GRIGSBY RECEIVERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Le Roi Williams, general manager, and Thomas Marshall, attorney, were named co-receivers in equity for the Grigsby-Grunow Company, $14,000,000 refrigerator and radio manufacturing company.

The appointments were made by Judge John P. Barnes in United States District Court following the filing of a petition which alleged temporary inability to meet current cash obligations, but did not allege insolvency.

Judge Barnes took no action on an involuntary petition in bankruptcy which was filed after the equity petition by Joseph H. Tigerman, an inventor, who claimed the company owed him $26,000 in royalties, and by two merchandise claimants.

MONEY BATTLE HIDES HUMAN CONFLICT

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Behind the technical battle of economists over "sound money" is a still larger human conflict.

President Roosevelt represents a movement to extend self government beyond the political shadows to the economic realities.

There are those who believe that political democracy has been somewhat frustrated in the face of financial autocracy.

The final argument of the financial conservatives, as emphatically voiced by the intelligent James P. Warburg, is:

"If human intelligence and human integrity were unable in the past to manage the comparatively simple mechanism of the gold standard, I can see no reason to suppose that the same human intelligence and the same human integrity will be able to cope with the vastly more complicated mechanism of a managed commodity dollar."

But under the "new deal" a free people want to take a fling at managing their own affairs.

WEALTH TAKES REFUGE

Possibly they won't be able to do as well as their former financial guardians, but the experiment is already well under way.

From a practical standpoint, it is misleading to debate monetary theories in a vacuum without understanding the practical political force behind various schools.

Incidentally, without regard to the reasonableness of their arguments, it is helpful to remember that behind the redoubled "sound money" drive is the pocket book interest of intrenched wealth, whose position is tied up so strongly with those of high grade bonds—many of them in the tax exempt class.

To a degree, fluid wealth has already sought refuge from experiment through a capital flight into foreign countries. The United States government will have the say as to whether and under what conditions such funds may return. In France, after the flight in 1926, the government bought such foreign balances from its nationals, and ownership of them made it possible to manipulate the price of the franc and to build up gold holdings.

But there was risk in holding foreign balances, as was demonstrated when first England and then the United States departed from the gold standard.

Prof. James Harvey Rogers, Yale economist and adviser to the President, in alluding to the present gold policy, suggested that our government is wisely converting the foreign balances which it creates by selling dollars into gold, rather than foreign exchange.

CLOSE TO ROOSEVELT

As to the difficulty of federal financing amidst the program of dollar depreciation, Rogers points out that it will be perfectly feasible during the transitional period to feed out short term bills to the banks. Of course, in the emergency legislation, which makes the government bonds discountable at par, the banks may be protected from embarassment until stabilization comes.

One professorial critic of the President pointed out that the depreciation of the dollar has upset England's program for stabilizing the pound. But apparently he lacked the humor to realize that the earlier depreciation of currency by England and nearly all Continental European countries vastly upset the ratio at which the dollar exchanged with foreign currencies.

Apparently Rogers, who indicated that reflation was only one string in the bow which the President is playing, is closer to Mr. Roosevelt's views even than Prof. George F. Warren, who leans to the opinion that fixing the price of gold can restore good business of and by itself.

When and if the President is ready for stabilization, he will be favored by the potential strength of huge foreign balances waiting to return, and by the fact that the present policy has brought the dollar to a level at which France and England will be glad to consider stabilization on terms entirely acceptable from the American viewpoint. This was not the case in July when the dollar was higher, and when the first drive for stabilization was made.

BUSINESS HURT

The first point made by the Federal Advisory Council, namely, that a higher price level is beneficial only if accompanied by higher natural income, and that can only be brought about by increased volume of business and increased employment, is well taken.

The real need is to restore the business stimulating economies of mass production and distribution.

Business has been hurt by continuance of a fixed overhead amidst the drastic decline in dollar volume.

The great need is to raise the national income through building up gross volume of business.

This entails restoring buying power to groups that fared less well than the average.

Through the program of the AAA, entirely apart from monetary policy, the President is seeking to raise the buying power of 9,000,000 workers on the farms.

Through public works, the administration is dealing with unemployment in the depressed heavy industries.

EXPERT RANKS ECONOMIC FACTORS

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Four closely related questions confronted us all through this depression. They confront us today.

If we would look them frankly in the face we could hardly help but see the answers. Then we could think clearly about what to do.

COMMODITIES AHEAD

1—The first question is: Which comes first, money or commodities?

The answer is clear. Money is only a medium of exchange, helping us to trade commodities. Except in the most abnormal conditions, we want money only for exchange. Therefore, exchange of goods and services comes first.

But exchange is business. So we need more money after business has increased, and less money after business has decreased. The exchange of commodities or business must logically come first. Our currency should expand and contract according to business requirements.

BUSINESS BEFORE CREDIT

2—Which comes first, credit of business?

Credit consists of promises to pay money in the future, in return for things received now. Usually the things which the borrower gets with credit are capital. If the credit is used for productive purpose, it is good and the debt can be paid.

So we see that credit depends upon the condition of business. If the outlook for business is good, capital can be used profitably. Then lenders are willing and borrowers have no trouble.

If credits are extended when business prospects are poor, and before business requires them, credit is abused and losses result. (This is as true in a depression as at the peak of a boom.)

So business comes before credit.

PRODUCTION FOREMOST

3—Which comes first, wages or production?

Wages are the reward for labor. They must be earned by productive labor—labor which results in valuable products. Otherwise wage payments are doles.

It follows that before wages can be paid out of earnings, laborers must be employed, and must be working at the production of things which can be sold. The greater the value of the products, the higher the wages can be.

So production logically comes first. This is why we have found it so difficult to do things by putting wages first.

INCOME OVER PRICES

4—Finally, which comes first, prices or income?

Prices are the measure of values, in terms of money. If we try to put prices up by putting the value of money down, we find the more prices rise, the more money we need. The higher prices are, the more money we must have to buy things. The more dollars we have the less they are worth.

This means that we do not increase the real income of the nation by cheapening our money.

To increase income, we must increase production and the volume of business. It may be that more things can be sold and more people be employed when prices are low.

Clearly we should consider real income, or the quantity of necessaries and comforts which we can enjoy, as coming before prices.

CONUNDRUM SOLVED

All this is like the old conundrum, which comes first, the hen or the egg? The answer is not so difficult. At any given time, we must have hens to have eggs. We are not concerned at present with the origin of life or the remote future. The hens of today must lay the eggs of tomorrow.

Just so, you and I want commodities, business, production and income. If we have these things, the money, credit, wages and prices will result.

It is this sort of fundamental reasoning which shows how futile NRA is as a means of relieving our immediate wants and of pulling us out of the depression.

DOLLAR HOLDS EXCHANGE GAIN

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The United States dollar moved in a narrow range around last night's improved level on a quiet foreign exchange market and closed today at $5.20¼ to the pound, practically unchanged from its opening. The French franc showed a weaker trend, closing at 83.84.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The American dollar retained yesterday's gain today.

It opened at 16.13 francs (6.199 cents to the franc) and went to 16.15 francs (6.191 cents) on a quiet market.

The bourse's official rate at the end of the Saturday market was 16.07 francs (6.21 cents), banks meanwhile trading at 16.15 francs.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The RFC announces it will pay $33.76 an ounce for today's purchases of newly-mined domestic gold. This is the same price that has prevailed since Tuesday and compares with the London price today of $32.92, based on sterling at $5.20½.

Union Pacific May Build New Train

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Union Pacific Railroad plans construction of a six-car all-aluminum high-speed train to contain three sleeping car units and be used for transcontinental runs. The plans are still in the blue-print stage and construction is not likely to begin until the three-car train now being built has been tested in actual operation.

DEMAND PROBE OF FOX CHARGE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Thorough investigation of the startling charge by William Fox, former movie magnate, that Department of Justice records were changed in the early days of the Hoover administration, was demanded today as the Senate banking inquiry recessed over the week-end.

The Department of Justice was involved in Fox's sensational story when he said Louis B. Mayer, Californian movie magnate and Republican leader, told him the records had been changed after March 4, 1929, on a merger between Fox Films and Loew's Inc. Fox said Mayer boasted of having had a favorable report changed to an adverse decision.

Ferdinand Pecora, special Senate counsel, meanwhile reiterated his invitation to all persons named by Fox in his testimony to appear before the committee. This invitation included former President Herbert Hoover, to whom Fox appealed against the department's attitude on the Fox-Loew merger.

BUSINESS

Currency Inflation Major Political Question

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

SHARP LINES of cleavage are appearing over the question of the government's monetary policy. Stands taken by Bernard M. Baruch and Al Smith are dividing the country into two camps—those favoring the government's currency operations and those opposed.

Of course, there are many subdivisions of opinion. The number of monetary plans appears to be increasing daily. The administration has not made a specific explanation of its operations and aims since the act was put through Congress empowering the President to revalue the dollar in terms of gold.

The mystery surrounding gold and currency moves has tended to increase mental speculation and has encouraged the development of individual plans for solving the problems of prices, wages and the gold equivalent of money.

* * *

No Change Expected In Monetary Plans

IN SPITE OF the criticism of currency operations already made and the probability that there will be more in the future, now that issue between the administration and its critics is clearly drawn, well-informed individuals declare that no change in policy is planned.

Recent changes in the Treasury Department, including the resignation of Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, financial adviser, lend weight to this belief, since those who have stepped out are known to belong to the "sound money" school.

* * *

Policy Becomes Quite Plain

WHILE NO EXPLANATION of policy has been made, the program to be followed by the administration is becoming fairly plain. By raising the price of gold and correspondingly cutting the value of the dollar, it is hoped that the dollar value of commodities with a world price will be raised while the export of basic agricultural commodities will be assisted through the fact that the price of these commodities will be lower in terms of other currencies.

Apparently it is unlikely that the gold value of the dollar will be permanently fixed at a new level until the currency operations will have achieved some results and the entire recovery program will be working successfully.

HEARST STOCK YULE DIVIDEND DECLARED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—With dividends for the entire year fully earned in the first three quarters by a wide margin in excess of actual requirements, the board of directors of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., today declared the regular quarterly cash dividend disbursement on the Class "A" 7 per cent cumulative participating preferred shares.

The Christmas dividend, which is the fourth payment during 1933 and the fourteenth consecutive quarterly dividend since the original offering of these shares to the public and Hearst employes, is payable on December 15 to stockholders of record December 1.

AMONG LEADERS

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., stands out pre-eminently as one of the ranking industrial leaders of the nation through its impressive earning power displayed throughout the depression, coupled with an unbroken dividend record and capable management that has successfully surmounted the unprecedented economic problems that have confronted industry.

Hearst Consolidated will bring the current year's operations to a close equaling the splendid showing made in the previous year. Net earnings of Hearst Consolidated for the three depression years, 1930, 1931 and 1932, have averaged $7,737,217 or 2.21 times dividend requirements on the total authorized issue of 2,000,000 class "A" 7 per cent preferred shares.

Thousands of investors throughout the country, seeking a sound security and an assured income under any conditions, have been attracted in ever increasing numbers by the remarkable performance of Hearst shares.

NUMBER GAINS FAST

There has been a monthly average of 1,000 new investors in Hearst Consolidated since the offering of its stock, with a total number now of more than 40,000 shareholders.

Back of this investment stands a group of 12 successful and seasoned publishing enterprises, which supply nation-wide diversification and stability to Hearst Consolidated's holdings, including such well known properties as:

New York Evening Journal, Chicago Evening American, San Francisco Examiner, Los Angeles Examiner, Detroit Times, Oakland Post-Inquirer, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, San Francisco Call-Bulletin, Los Angeles Herald-Express, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, American Weekly Magazine and American Newsprint Corporation.

P. R. R. OCTOBER INCOME AHEAD

Pennsylvania Railroad October net operating income was $5,731,675, compared with $5,630,549 in October, 1932, and for 10 months amounted to $52,543,596, against $42,225,527 in the first 10 months of 1932.

Paramount-Publix Gets Tax Refund

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—An over-assessment of roughly $7,300,000 for the Paramount-Publix Corporation and subsidiaries of New York City is announced by the Treasury's Bureau of Internal Revenue. All but a few thousand dollars of this amount was credited as a tax abatement. The over-assessments covered the years 1929 to 1932 inclusive and were listed for the account of the Paramount-Publix and numerous subsidiaries.

BUY SEALS, PLEA OF BISHOP MANN

Bishop Alexander Mann of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh today indorsed the annual Christmas seal champaign of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, which opens Tuesday.

Urging support of the drive, Bishop Mann cited benefits derived by clergy and laity of the diocese from the organization, which depends to a great extend on the annual sale of seals for funds.

Mailing of seals to 102,000 families in Allegheny County begins Monday. Booths will be opened throughout the city after Thanksgiving.

Junior Patrol

More and more letters today, fellows!

We're falling back a little in our correspondence and so let's make up for some lost time today. We try to answer every letter we get as soon as possible, either here in the Mail Box or in a separate letter, so be watching for them, fellows! Keep the Mail Box full of news!

Here's the first letter, from Margery M. Vogt, of Box 114, 311 Depot street, Youngwood, Pa. She writes:

"I am sending in 10 names for which please send me the Junior Patrol arm badge. We have organized a club and we are trying to make it a success."

Fine, Margery, and you sent the pledges with your letter so we can send you cards and pins right away. Let us know how you get along and what you plan to do.

Loma Haser, of 614 Stanton avenue, Millvale, is a new captain today. She has 10 members in her Junior Patrol and they all live in Loma's neighborhood. They have all promised to read the Mail Box every day.

Virginia Ray, of 113 South Fifth street, Youngwood, Pa., doesn't send any pledges or copies of the pledge for her 10 members. She says in her letter:

"I couldn't find enough slips for the members in the paper so I will give you the names."

It isn't necessary to cut the pledge out of the paper, Virginia. You write it on a piece of paper—copy it—and sign it and that will be just as good. But be sure to write the names and addresses plainly.

Also, today, we received six new pledges for members joining Capt. Amelda Gilbert's patrol. The secretary, Christina De Shants, writes to tell us that all her members listen to the Junior Patrol radio program.

OBITUARY

Dr. Roger Williams

Funeral services for Dr. Roger Williams, 83, pioneer Pittsburgh physician, who died at his home in Upland, Cal., last Monday, will be held at the William Slater and Sons funeral home, Virginia avenue and Kearsarge street, Mt. Washington, at 2:30 p. m. Monday. The body will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow night.

Dr. Williams was born in old Manchester, April 22, 1850, and graduated from Bethany College in the class of 1874. In 1878 he was graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and the following year began practicing in East Liberty.

Fifteen years ago Dr. Williams retired from active service and went to California to live.

He was one of the founders of the old Pittsburgh Board of Trade, and was a member of the East End Christian Church, Duquesne Lodge No. 546, F. & A. M., and the American Medical Society.

He leaves a nephew, Roger I. Addy, and a niece, Miss Jennie Addy, both of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Margaret Stirling.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Anderson Stirling, 82, will be held at her home, 954 Bayridge avenue, Brookline, at 2 p. m. Monday. She died yesterday.

Mrs. Stirling was born in Coatbridge, Scotland, and came to Pittsburgh in 1880. She was a member of the Brookline Boulevard United Presbyterian Church.

She leave five sons, Thomas A., of San Pedro, Cal.; Russell, of Trenton, N. J.; James, of Ben Avon; John W., of Dormont, and Albert Stirling, of the North Side, and two daughters, Mrs. Mary S. Leitch and Mrs. Jean Hutchinson, of Brookline.

Minnie M. Miller.

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie M. Miller, 82, will be held in the Beinhauer funeral home, 2630 West Liberty, at 2 p. m., tomorrow. She died Thursday at her home, 1639 Edgebrook avenue, Brookline.

She was a member of the Overbrook Presbyterian Church. She leaves a son, Edward Miller, and four daughters, Mrs. Kate Dill, Mrs. Bertha Knetzer, Mrs. Clara E. Jones and Mrs. Carrie Frost.

Robert J. Battles.

Robert J. Battles, who made his home with a sister, Mrs. Gladys Demmel, of 3319 Latonia avenue, died Thursday in the Aspinwall Hospital.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Fisher and Owen funeral home, 126 Hazelwood avenue, following a service by Pittsburgh Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar.

Richard Gazal.

Funeral services for Richard Gazal, of 822 Cassatt street, were held this morning in St. Ann's Catholic Church. He died Wednesday.

Mr. Gazal was born in Syria and came to Pittsburgh 30 years ago. He leaves his wife, two sons, George and William Gazal; two daughters, Yvonne and Alice Gazal, and a sister in Syria.

Schondelmeyer Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Schondelmeyer, who died Wednesday, will be held from her home, 411 Josephine street, Avalon, today. She leaves two sons, Gustave and George, of Avalon, and two daughters, Mrs. L. L. Loufman, of Evans City, and Mrs. John H. Edinger, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Hanna Kenning.

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon for Hanna Kenning, 81, who died Thursday at the Home for Aged Protestant Women at 900 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Pretty House Frock

Pattern 1532

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Perhaps you haven't thought about it before but when you're working about the house, you should wear pretty frocks of the gayest prints and with really lovely details, to make the most irksome tasks seem lighter. We've sketched such a model for you today. The clever waistline treatment with sash in back is adjustable and will make you appear more slender, and we know you'll think the tiny revers and fetching sleeves too adorable for words. If you follow the Instructor given with the pattern the frock will fly together in a jiffy.

Pattern 1532 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3⅜ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE CURRENT EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK WILL HELP YOU SAVE MONEY. ORDER YOUR COPY TODAY! PRICE OF CATALOG 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to the PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH PATTERN DEPARTMENT,

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XLI.

Nollie sat in the firelight in Mrs. Judson's living room with Tony O'Brien.

Listening to an old and lovely story that only grew more wonderful in the telling.

Tony loved her. Had found the evening long. Had stolen away for an enchanted hour with the girl of his dreams.

And SHE was that. Life was no longer hard, prosaic. It was sheer Elysium.

He told her all about himself again. He told her all sorts of things she'd longed to hear . . . that her very soul had been parched for.

Gone was her jealousy of Rhoda Vane . . . her fear. Beyond a casual sort of a friendship, Rhoda meant nothing to Tony.

But stay! When Nollie mentioned her name just now, a queer look came on the young man's face. He seemed oddly embarrassed.

His mind had flown to the game of hide-and-seek tonight . . . to Rhoda's strange behavior when he found her in the clothes closet.

She had thrown her arms about him, had pressed her long, sinuous body against his, had startled him.

He had given Rhoda a light kiss, then, being a gallant Irishman.

The kiss hadn't meant a thing—to him—except to culminate the incident, and to dismiss Rhoda.

DISTURBING INCIDENT

She counted for little in his young life. It was Nollie he cared for.

But Rhoda had tried to kiss him back again—had made him feel a fool—or worse. He was ashamed of the happening.

He colored at her name, now, under his coat of tan.

He had had quite a difficulty in breaking away from Rhoda, who—judging by her conduct—was either very brazen, or very highly strung.

She had panted in his arms, had pushed closer and closer to him.

He had unwound her clinging arms by force. The whole incident was rather disturbing.

Why had Rhoda Vane come here at all, at the time he least wanted her intrusion?

It wasn't as though Mrs. Judson seemed to really like her. He had a shrewd idea that Rhoda had wished herself on her hostess.

Was it because he himself was here? He felt a vain cad . . . but it did seem rather obvious . . .

Rhoda had thrown herself at him ever since she had arrived. Not even Nollie knew to what extent, either.

Forget her now. Here was his little love beside him. He said, very gently: "Nollie, I'm crazy about you."

* * *

Rhoda was dancing with Jack Brilling in the wide, polished hall of the Galbraith hunting lodge.

MISSES TONY

There were others dancing too, at this party in honor of the daughter and son-in-law of Mr. Galbraith.

Rhoda missed Tony.

Where had he gone? Had she frightened him off? That was sheer nonsense, when tonight she was looking so beautiful.

And he had kissed her, too—though indeed the kiss had been little more than a peck in character.

Still, it gave her a sort of foothold with him. Meantime she would be charming to Jack Brilling.

The later didn't look too happy a bridegroom.

He had flirted with Rhoda, once upon a time. It was during one of her periodic flights abroad that he had entered the firm of Galbraith and Company.

Through the good offices of Madeleine, of course. Being the daughter of the head of the house, Madeleine had a lot of pull, naturally.

His promotion, he discovered, had been on the understanding that one day they would marry.

Well, he'd staved that off for long enough . . . but now Madeleine had forced his hand and here he was a Benedict!

It was a queer, hemmed-in feeling. He didn't think he liked it much.

Madeleine's jealousy over the little secretary girl had brought about this impasse.

A nice child, and very pretty, too. Quite innocent.

What was her name again? Miss Ray? Or Day? Too bad about her hasty exit from the office!

He had called Madeleine down over that . . . had told her bluntly she was insanely jealous.

But stop a bit! The Day young miss had been a regular spitfire at the end, and had turned on both of them with a great deal of spirit. "You don't have to fire ME, Miss Galbraith," she had cried. "I've already turned down your fiance's interesting offer! You can ask him what it was!—and I assure you I wouldn't return here for a million dollars!"

HAD BEEN GUILTY

It had taken all his resourcefulness to persuade Madeleine that this tirade had no basis in fact—that it had merely been an over-wrought girl's hysterical outburst.

"After what you said to her," he assured Madeleine, "you could hardly expect her to be lamb-like!"

Well, it wasn't likely that Miss Day would cross their path again. He had been very much attracted by her in a trifling sort of way. He forgave her her denouncement, darned awkward though it had been . . . because he really had been guilty . . . and he was sorry he had been the means of her losing her job.

Rhoda was dancing voluptuously with him. At the same time—(Jack was intuitive)—Rhoda was distraite.

The bride was in the dining room, and they were revolving past the front door. Suddenly he had a bright idea.

"My car's outside. What do you say we have a little spin in the moonlight, Rhoda?"

"Okay with me." They slipped out and off, hitting the broad asphalt highway.

Jack drove fast. After a quarter of an hour they were near Redwood.

"Couldn't we stop in for a minute," suggested the bridegroom hopefully, "and you could find us a drink?"

"Why, certainly! Bright scheme!" agreed Rhoda, in whose mind during the drive a suspicion had been gradually forming.

Had Tony slipped back here? Was he with the pretty little secretary?

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson. Rhoda visits the ranch. She is rude to Nollie, but plainly tries to gain Tony's favor. Tony confesses that he loves Nollie. Jack Brilling and his bride are on a honeymoon near the Judson place. Tony slips away from their party to see Nollie.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

The nervous person becomes still more nervous in the presence of those who frequently allude to the subject.

It is unkind to tell anyone that he would get along better if he would control his nervousness.

It is not the right system to employ with a nervous person.

Do not give a hint that you think they are nervous.

If anything, express confidence that they have the ability to carry on successfully.

Try to minimize obstacles.

Don't enlarge on serious consequences of certain procedures.

Be explicit in your directions or instructions, but calm in your suggestions when it comes time for immediate action.

Ground is always lost when a nervous person is censured for something which was poorly done due to a nervous tension.

The instructor and adviser of a nervous person must be patient and not show irritation.

The one whose nerves are on edge is anxious to do things right.

That very anxiety may be the cause of failure.

Custer's Last Stand Against Sioux

Painting after Alfred R. Waud

In 1876, parallel to the peaceful fight for the presidency of the United States (from which emerged the compromise President Hayes, Republican), a bloody campaign against the Indians came to its climax. Gen. George A. Custer, with 264 troops, was massacred at the Little Big Horn River, Montana, by the Sioux Indians, in their fight against the expansion of the "pale face," encouraged by the railroad constructions. Not until 1887 (Dawes Act), making citizenship, homesteads or maintenance on reservation available to the Indians, were these peoples pacified. (U. S. History)

Bismarck and the Captive Napoleon III at Sedan

After a Painting by Camphausen.

Bismarck, after increasing the strength of the German confederacy, was ready for a test with France. Opportunity arose when unpopular Queen Isabella of Spain abdicated and Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern declared his willingness to take the Spanish crown. Napoleon III, French Emperor, rebuked him and with him the Prussian dynasty. Bismarck published this in the spirit of challenge and Napoleon III, to "save the national honor" declared war on the Germans in 1870 (the Franco-Prussian War). France lost, Napoleon III was taken prisoner (1871). (World History)

Blast Furnace with Air-Preheaters

Iron is won largely from its oxides (mostly hematite) freed from oxygen by carbon monoxide and from most of the impurities by limestone (the flux), which fuses with them to a glass, the slag. This process is carried out in the blast furnace, giving pig-iron as product.

Sand is used as flux if ores are basic; carbonate ore (siderite) is converted first into oxides by roasting.

Blast furnace is a round, tall, firebrick structure in a steel shell. Main parts: Crucible (holds molten iron, has tuyeres, tap hole and cinder notch); bosh (hottest part for combustion and fusion); stack (for fill of coke, flux, ore); charging floor (for receiving and dumping material).

Combustion gases of blast furnace contain CO; they are led into stoves with checker brick work, burned with air to heat bricks; then air is pumped through, preheated, to furnish the hot blast of the tuyeres into the furnace. (Chemistry)

Shakespeare's Drama, "The Tempest"

Prospero, Duke of Milan, is forced to flee in a boat with his little daughter, Miranda, before the murderous plot of Antonio, his brother. Shipwrecked, he lives with Miranda on an enchanted island, whose inhabitants, Ariel, a benevolent spirit, and the malevolent, deformed Caliban, serve him by his magic spell. A tempest, arranged by Ariel, casts ashore Antonio, his friend the King of Naples, and the latter's son, Ferdinand, who is charmed by beautiful Miranda.

Reconciliation of the brothers follows, Prospero is restored to his duchy and the party is ready to set sail for Naples where Miranda and Ferdinand are to be married.

Hot air heating system consists of a furnace, a larger stove surrounded by a metal covering, from which ducts—ending in registers—lead the convection air currents into the room. It draws air from outdoors; utilizes 50-60 per cent of heat, is simple, inexpensive to install, but if it becomes leaky, dust is carried into rooms. (Gen. Science)

STARFISH
STARFISH FEEDING ON A CLAM

Courtesy of McGraw-Hill Book Co.

Echinoderms (about 4,000 species) form the th animal phylum. They are marine animals, ncluding starfishes, sea urchins, sea cucumbers, etc. Starfishes (Asterias) have 5 "arms," each carrying many tube-feet and an eyespot on the top with which the animal distinguishes light from dark. It feeds on clams; Pulling the valves slowly apart, then turning its own stomach wrongside-out, it wraps around the soft part and digests the clam (above). The starfish is able to regenerate lost parts.

Over-Indulgence and Under

The pendulum of public opinion swings from reform by amendments. That doesn't mean anything except that things run in cycles.

The seventh wave of remorse is always larger than the other jolly six. We have proof that you cannot enforce abstinence by contract. And we will discover that you cannot legislate temperance by legal postscripts.

Among the early settlers of all our towns you will find the village rummy got there as soon as any of 'em. And you will also find that all the pleadings and browbeatings in the world changed him not one well-seasoned iota. Your threat was about as good as his promise. He was born to be the hamlet swigger and he swigged. The Eighteenth Amendment didn't change his locality, his habits or his jitters. Now, his capillary tremors are legitimate again. He can shake, shiver and stagger within the law and overlap a bit.

We can say that there must be personal liberty. But that freedom is strait-jacketed by habit. When Crusoe escaped to his cave he was still on the island.

No man ever got so far away from himself that he threw two shadows. And, while a fearful thing to realize, a certain proportion of human beings are born to be scrapped. All the laws in the world won't save 'em and all the lecturers will bark in vain.

I'M OFF TH' DRINKS NO MORE FOR ME!
YEAH - I KNOW, THAT'S WHAT Y' SAID EVER SINCE I'VE KNOWN YOU!

We are asking for temperance now. Such a request wouldn't have astonished Mr. Beadle more if Oliver Twist had asked for less. We have found that the best liquor reformer in the world is whisky. There is no purer citizen in the land than a Saturday night bender on Sunday morning. He is off it for life, never wants to see it again and will wear the narrow shoes on the straight path. His tongue is white with remorseful pollen, his eyes look like holly berries and his nerves are strewn on the ground like wires in a blizzard.

He has taken his fun where he found it and lost it again. One Saturday night with the boys is enough. He is cured from then on until further notice subject to change. Rattlesnake virus is antitoxin for diamond-backed venom.

We will guarantee his good intentions pack more mileage than other people's amendments. Every man has to think out his own gadgets for he knows what it does to him. It has got to get worse before it gets better. And the double clincher for temperance is that if liquor is legal it ain't any fun.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Interlacing fibers of the human phiz tighten when the head is held up, do a slump when the chin drops. If one's occupation happens to be sewing or typing, with more down looking than up looking, fibers are bound to lack tone. Having little or nothing to do they lose interest in the job, go soft. The typist can learn to sit up straight, keep the chest lifted; the expert doesn't need to look at the keys, so can avoid muscle havoc. Not so easy for the sewer of seams, who should rest now and then, lift the chin, turn the head from side to side with a strong muscle pull. Local treatment for sagging muscles consists of the applications of heavy massage cream, brisk tapping and slapping, ice rubs, plenty of cold water rinsings to follow the warm soapy cleansing.

Oily dandruff can oftimes be eliminated by the use of hot oil, unbelievable as that treatment may seem to be. The lubricant softens deposits of skin scales which have picked up sebaceous exudations. The shampoo removes them. Hot oil should remain on over night to be effective. Olive or mineral oil will serve, and there are proprietory articles that combine tonic elements with the oily substance

Girls who are afraid to get their heads harnessed up to permanent wave machines can have the work done without electricity. Some magic lotion is applied to the strands after each one is wound around a metal rod. No heat is required.

175 Years Old

Pittsburgh, Though Great, Is Still a Young City—Brief Comment on Local News.

One hundred and seventy-five years ago today an army of Americans and English under command of Gen. John Forbes took possession of the smouldering ruins of Fort Duquesne, from which the French had fled, named the place in honor of William Pitt, and Pittsburgh was born. It is fitting that this momentous anniversary should be celebrated.

Impressed by the greatness of Pittsburgh, we sometimes fail to appreciate how young a city it is. One hundred and seventy-five years seems a long time, but Pittsburgh was a frontier post for many years after the capture of Fort Duquesne. At as late a date as 1789 white men were killed by Indians within two miles of what is now the downtown section of the city.

The Indians made bloody raids near Pittsburgh, massacring men, women and children indiscriminately, until 1794. You will find many of these raids described in detail in C. Hale Sipe's "Fort Ligonier and Its Times." The stories are heart-rending, but are worth reading, if for no other reason because of the light they throw on the heroism and hardships of the pioneers who brought civilization to Western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Sipe tells of a man named Peter Henry who died in Butler County in 1857 at the age of 88 years; there may be people still living who knew him. In 1779, when Peter Henry was 10 years old, Indians attacked his parents' home in Hempfield Township, Westmoreland County, during his father's absence. They tomahawked and scalped his mother, dashed out the brains of a baby and carried him and another child into captivity, from which they were later rescued.

All through the Pittsburgh district atrocities like this occurred. We mention this particular one merely because of the probability it creates that there are still some old people among us who were personally acquainted with pioneers who participated in those savage scenes. It helps to illustrate how young Pittsburgh is, and how marvelous are the changes that have been produced by a few generations of brave and enterprising men and women.

Another anniversary of interest to Pittsburgh is being celebrated today—the birthday of Ethelbert Nevin, the gifted composer of music, who was born at Edgeworth, November 25, 1862, and died November 17, 1901. He was one of Pittsburgh's most distinguished sons. In what appreciation the world holds him is indicated by the fact that a Nevin memorial program will be broadcast over a nationwide NBC network from the home of Thomas A. McGinley, in Sewickley, from 6:15 to 6:45 tonight.

For years the operators of "captive" coal mines have told us that only a minority among the miners insisted on recognition of the union. The majority, we were informed, were dragooned into a semblance of favoring unionism, but really preferred the open shop, independence, and "rugged individualism." The union officials maintained, on the other hand, that if freed of coercion the miners would declare almost unanimously for unionism. At last, thank goodness, we know.

A showdown has been obtained through the elections conducted by the National Labor Board, and we learn that the miners in a large majority of the "captive" mines in this district desire to be represented in collective bargaining with their employers by officers of the United Mine Workers of America. But the miners in a few of the H. C. Frick mines prefer company unions to the national body. It is to be hoped that both sides will bow gracefully to the decision, and that we shall hear no more of this dispute.

You may not know who your true friends are or how deep their friendship is until you have experienced failure or disgrace. And by the same token it is difficult to appraise the esteem in which public institutions and public policies are held until they get into trouble. We have a good illustration of this in the local controversy over the schools.

The hue and cry that has been raised against the public schools in Pittsburgh by certain taxpayers who find the support of our public educational system burdensome has served the useful purpose of revealing who the friends of the schools are. And it is gratifying to be able to report that their name is legion. The executive board of the Pittsburgh branch of the American Association of University Women is the latest to rally to the schools' defense.

The University Women oppose any curtailment in the curriculum of the local public schools and present some excellent reasons why it should not be curtailed. Women's organizations, bless them, have been very conspicuous in the defense of public education. With such staunch defenders the schools should be able to weather the storm.

The Civil Works Administration's local program for putting jobless men to work seems to be progressing satisfactorily so far as manual laborers are concerned, but "white collar men" do not appear to be receiving the attention to which they are entitled. It has been suggested that some of the latter might be given employment in public libraries, community centers and other institutions which have been forced to reduce their staffs.

The annual sale of Christmas Seals for the support of the Tuberculosis League begins next Tuesday. The league depends on this money for the care of the sick and for educational and preventive work. Thanks to this work, the death rate from tuberculosis has been brought down from 201 per 100,000 of population in 1904 to 61 per 100,000. It is to be hoped the public will buy Christmas Seals generously and help to continue this excellent work.

Because of long delay in attacking the problem, Council has found it necessary to make the term of the garbage removal contract only one year, thus, we suppose, again discouraging competitive bidding. We can see little excuse for Council's putting off consideration of the matter until it was too late to change the procedure. The next administration will be expected to do better.

"Trying Wholesale Marriages to Bring Back Prosperity" is the title of a timely and interesting article in the American Weekly, the magazine which will be distributed tomorrow with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It tells of the theories of the Italian and German governments that commerce will be helped by encouraging Cupid and the stork.

George McManus recalls scenes and customs of "the good old days" in "Bringing Up Father" in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Grown-ups will get a lot of entertainment out of these pictures, and so will children. Puck will have many other pages of funnies by the foremost cartoonists and humorists.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Purely personal piffle: I cannot read Vicki Baum and am always trying to introduce people who room together or live in the same block. No odor so mellow as that of old rye. The best written book in three months: "Testament of Youth." I have relatives named Ginglebaugh.

I'm crazy about Josephine Hull on the legitimate stage and, if nobody is looking, chew a whole pack of gum at a whack. The crack city editor of the town is James Barrett. Somehow—and I'm genuinely sorry—the theater has lost its wallop for me. Alexander King is writing the smartest of the sophisticated stuff.

No one gives such appearance of indolence and turns out so much stuff as Alexander Woollcott. I went to see "Three Little Pigs" seven times and can imitate the one who built his house with bricks swell. No male attire so neat as blue serge, white shirt and polka dot four-in-hand.

I read book catalogues from cover to cover. A neighbor lady's idea of meeting the depression is substituting peanuts for almonds in nut dishes. Joe Moore has the most infectious laugh in town. Gene Crawley the most perfect teeth and Fannie Hurst the most individual gowns.

* * *

First time I saw my name advertised was on front of St. Louis street cars. I've never owned a camera. Two friends have broken resolutions against smoking after reading Barrie's brochure on delights of nicotine. The best thing ever in Punch was the suggestion to placard Trafalgar lions with "Please don't shoot!" when Theodore Roosevelt visited London.

* * *

The only editor discourteous to me was Frank Harris, and a single bit of acting that left the most lasting impression was Louis Wolheim in "The Hairy Ape." I like to breakfast at a Michigan avenue window at the Chicago Congress. Keep an eye peeled for a writer named Thames Williamson. I've traveled to and from the coast several times with Sam Goldwyn and never heard him pull one of those lingual monstrosities. For years I pronounced viscount as spelled. I can't do a nip-up over Dorothy Parker's poetry but her short stories are cheerio.

* * *

Perfect description of a town: Morley's of Dover, England—"the chalky forehead of Albion." Aroma of banana oil makes me think of hospitals. My enthusiasm for trivial accomplishments, such as ordering correct wines for various courses, is colossal. The silkiest voice I ever heard is Erskine Gwynne's. Goloshes as a name makes me chuckle, and I can go for a gob of home-made vanilla ice cream any time of day. The most vividly remembered hotel is Shepherd's at Cairo.

* * *

I'd rather wanh-wah-wah like a Minnevitch harmonicist than author an Edna Millay poem. My grandfather once banged the kitchen door shut with a cough. They were giants in those days! Despite snide revues, Radio City will be the municipal garden spot of the world. I wish Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., would quit prattling about horrors of the rich. When I pat my Boston, the Sealyham streaks under the bed and whimpers. Green-eyed monster stuff!

* * *

Only people I've seen relax in airplanes are stews. Most tolerant man of criticism I know is Will H. Hays. Gertrude Atherton has one of the most appealing feminine writing names. No prizefighter interested me so little as Carnera. Or so much as Dempsey. My wife can make me ikkipikki threatening to pull a slate pencil through clenched teeth. Jim Woods, of San Francisco, is the best informed man on New York of the 80's. I'm a set-up for corn pone, and the acting of Kay Francis leaves me cold.

* * *

Much boyhood loafing around a Chinese laundry, and I love eavesdropping on Negroes. Not once have I addressed John Anderson, the critic, as "my jo John." Rudy Vallee puts the most feeling into "The Last Roundup." And just recently I understood why he has lasted much longer than rest of the crooners. An expert manicure girl can always be judged by neatness of her tray.

* * *

A year's confinement in the room of a cheerless hotel. Et voila! That's how this column was born. I'm fed up on Mae West's hangy whine. But it took a lot of punishment. Someday I'm going to bust out in a wide black Stetson hat and a shoestring tie.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Would You Use a Fresh Start If You Had One?

Looks as if Depression were really shoving along, doesn't it? Good Times, at last, coming around the corner. Then what? Then, chances are, you'll get that Fresh Start you've been crying for.

BUT WILL YOU USE IT WHEN IT COMES?

Now wait a minute—wait a minute! Don't start getting sore, or sorry for yourself. I know as well as you do what a tough time you've had. (Maybe I haven't had a picnic myself!) I know how hard you've tried to make the grade and what Bad Breaks you had against you.

I've no illusions about those Bad Breaks, either. I know they weren't your fault. They were the fault of a few thousand Greedy Swine who didn't give a grunt what happened to the rest of the world as long as they got all their feet in the trough. And no matter how hard you tried, you couldn't buck a combination like that.

Yet, in spite of all this-n'-that, I'm asking you again—

WOULD YOU USE A FRESH START IF YOU HAD ONE?

You've had such chances in the past. Not absolutely "fresh starts," of course. Always a few old debts to be carried over. Yet, in spite of that, there was the chance you'd been asking for to make a new beginning.

DID YOU TAKE IT? DID YOU MAKE IT?

Yes, you said you would. You thought you did. You went through the motions.

But did you go through ALL the motions?

Did you really do your best to start fresh—yank yourself free of the past and all the old weaknesses that had made it such a muddle? Or did you try to "hold out" on Life?

Did you say to yourself, "Yes, I'd like that new chance. And I'm willing to work hard and make a lot of sacrifices. But—there are certain things I don't want to do. I don't want to leave home, for instance. I've always been a great fellow for home. I hate strange places, strange people. So I'll have to fix things so I can still live here.

"And I'm not going to have any boss running me ragged. I'll work as hard as the next one, but I won't stand for abuse. Or meddling in with my private affairs. I'm going to live my own personal life as I want to. I've got a right to choose my own interests and pick my own friends."

So on, and on, and on. Haggling, bargaining—trying to fix things according to your notions. Was that what you did when Life offered you a new start before? Dollars to doughnuts it was—for that's what most of us do.

Then we whine because we have bad luck, and try to put the blame on the other fellow. But, of course, it's our own fault. Fate didn't two-time us. We two-timed ourselves.

We asked for a fresh start, and a fresh start was what we needed. We needed the danger and discomfort of a fresh start. We needed to be yanked out of our old ruts, our old notions, and thrust violently into new conditions, new challenges. It would have been mighty unpleasant, but it would have given us a new lease on life. We'd have been reborn.

But we couldn't take it!

WE WANTED TO GO AHEAD WITH THE NEW, YET HANG ON TO THE OLD—HAVE OUR CAKE, YET EAT IT, TOO. IT CAN'T BE DONE!

Life has offered you fresh starts in the past. Life will offer them again. But they'll never do you a particle of good unless you'll accept them, as offered. If you'll really begin again with Life, Life will begin again with you.

But if you aren't really-willing to begin again with Life—if you're only 75 or 50 per cent willing—then you're just out of luck!

LIFE HAS NO FRESH STARTS FOR THOSE WHO WON'T START FRESH.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Just Little Things

In these days, when marrying men are as scarce as gold, it seems like sheer wanton waste to shoot your husband, instead of passing him along to some nice girl who could make use of him.

BUT I THOUGHT YOU LOVED ME!
NOT WITHOUT ANY MONEY!

The shorter work-day won't help much, if it merely gives a woman more time to look at the clock and wonder where her husband is.

* * *

Realism—especially in love-making—has been very much overrated. Long after a woman has forgotten a man's kisses, she can remember the caress in his eyes.

Women are more reasonable and intelligent, today, than ever before in history; but some of them will always be silly or selfish. And those are the ones that man will fall in love with, get tired of and then hold up as examples of "the weaker sex."

It's hard to convince a middle-aged Casanova that no amount of "sex-appeal" will offset a flat pocketbook, and that, next to consomme, nothing cools so quickly as a gold-digger's heart.

Marriage is like gambling. It's foolhardy to call for another deal, when you've already had two bad ones and you know that the luck is running against you.

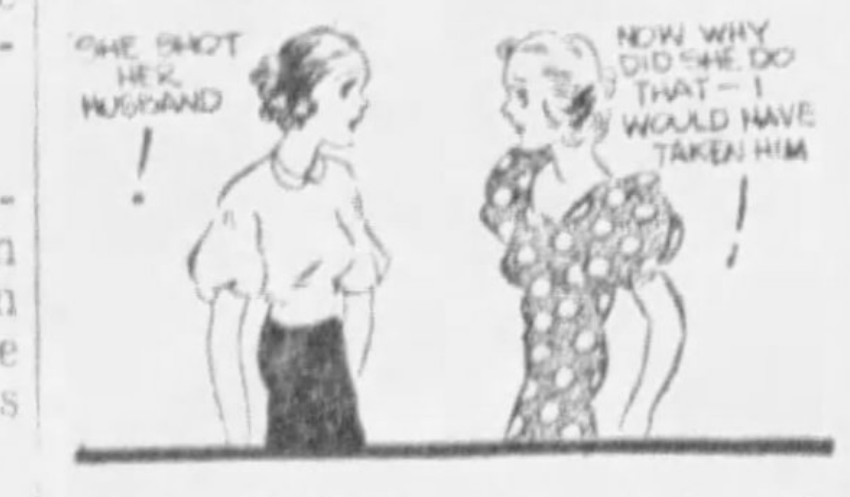
Many a girl wonders after a quarrel why the scientists and chemists have invented everything to make a woman lovely and lovable, except a maxim-silencer for her tongue.



SHE SHOT HER HUSBAND!
NOW WHY DID SHE DO THAT—I WOULD HAVE TAKEN HIM!

Four-flushers are people who keep themselves constantly broke in the frantic effort to avoid LOOKING that way.

Divorce is rapidly becoming just the little intermission between honeymoons.

Wise Words

To be suspicious is to invite treachery.—Voltaire.

Happy the man who has been able to learn the causes of things.—Vergil.

Man spends his life in reasoning on the past, complaining of the present, and trembling for the future.—Rivarol.

I follow nature as the surest guide, and resign myself with implicit obedience to her sacred ordinances.—Cicero.

Text for Today I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.—Luke, xv:7.

The Machine in Your Head

The Study of Its Working Is Called "Psychology."

"WHAT is man, that thou art mindful of him? And the son of man, that thou visitest him?"

David asks the question in the eighth Psalm.

Whatever else man may be, he is a complicated, strange being "fearfully and wonderfully made," as the Bible says.

Such a creature "crowned with glory and honor" ought to be interested in himself, and investigate and try to understand the queer thinking apparatus inside his skull.

In other words, he ought to interest himself in psychology, which is the study of the spirit, the thinking processes and all that goes to make up a human being, apart from his physical body.

A GOOD book for those that would like a condensed presentation of psychology is published by H. Holt & Co. called "A Text-Book of Psychology," written by William James, greatest American psychologist.

Also, you will be interested in William James' book, "Talks to teachers on psychology; and to students on some of life's ideals."

Psychology assures you that the theories of communists, however beautiful, however unselfish in theory, can never be permanently established, at least until human nature shall have changed completely.

Men's desire for private individual ownership of individual things begins when the child is two years old, sometimes earlier, and ends when he is being dressed for the coffin.

WILLIAM JAMES tells teachers and parents that it is a mistake and injurious to the child not to insist on much of the old-fashioned "learning by heart."

What merely enters the mind through the ears for a moment we do not possess. When we learn it "by heart" we actually have it. The finest samples of good poetry should be thus learned and also some good prose. But the poetry especially.

Some teachers believe that "learning by heart is out of date." Nevertheless they compel children to learn the multiplication table by heart and recite "thirty days hath September, April, June and November" when they want to remember the number of days in a month.

PSYCHOLOGY tells you that the three emotions that have greatest power over men are fear, the weapon used by rulers and by some teachers that do not understand any better method; love, through which mothers have brought men from cannibalism to their present state of civilization, and curiosity, that makes us all endeavor to explain to ourselves whatever we do not understand, and thus increase our knowledge.

To the three you might add IMAGINATION, that carries us forward into new worlds and new possibilities, and then AMBITION, which, fortunately, makes us forever dissatisfied with what we have. Without ambition we should still be riding in oxcarts or, rather, we wouldn't even have oxcarts. Like monkeys and other animals, we should still be satisfied to run around on our own feet.

WILLIAM JAMES tells you that to make life happy and useful the most important thing is to establish good habits and get rid of bad habits and conquer unwise impulses.

James tells of a wise Austrian who advertised in a newspaper that he would pay 50 gulden to anybody who should find him in a certain wine shop. His advertisement kept him out of the wine shop and helped him to break a bad habit.

"The more of the details of our daily life we can hand over to the effortless custody of automotism, the more our higher powers of mind will be set free for their own proper work.

"There is no more miserable human being than one in whom nothing is habitual but INDECISION, and for whom the lighting of every cigar, the drinking of every cup, the time of rising and going to bed every day requires a special effort of the will."

William James put it in psychological language, "express volitional deliberation."

It is said of Lord Macaulay and the late Theodore Roosevelt that both could read with extraordinary rapidity, taking in the meaning of half a page at a glance. That is exaggeration.

At a glance you may see whether quotation marks or names on a half page might interest you. But no man reads half a page at a glance.

James says:

"Some take four times as long as others to absorb the paragraph, and the swiftest readers are as a rule the best immediate recollectors, but not the most intellecually capable. Several highly distinguished men in science and literature turned out to be slow readers."

THE business of the mind is to take impressions through eyes, ears and the written word, then think and do something.

Our use of will power decides our destiny.

One man who would stop drinking would always find a reason for more drink, says James. It is "a case of not wasting good liquor already poured out, or a case of not being churlish and unsociable when in the midst of friends, or a case of learning something at last about an interesting brand of whisky, or celebrating a public holiday, or getting strength enough to form another good resolution against drink."

Such a man will not stop drinking.

You should have as many different interests in your life as possible. Such interests are openings into the mind, letting in happiness.

Darwin regretted that he allowed himself to lose all interest in poetry after the age of 30 years.

"Even as a schoolboy I took intense delight in Shakespeare, especially in the historical plays. But now for many years I cannot endure to read a line of poetry. I have also lost my taste for pictures or music."

The great naturalist declared that his mind became "a kind of machine for grinding general laws out of large collections of facts."

Beware of letting one particular interest destroy all others. For, as Darwin said, "the loss of artistic taste is a loss of happiness." Men interested entirely in money making can testify to that.

William James' book on psychology for teachers and students is reviewed at length, with numerous quotations, in an article by Arthur Brisbane, on the editorial page of tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

ISN'T IT SO?

With many people charity is a fad instead of a virtue.

The ardent lover is all at sea when his best girl throws him overboard.

Don't you believe that it's hard to be poor. It's the easiest thing in the world.

A woman thinks keeping a secret untold is as silly as keeping a box of candy uneaten.

Nothing warms a girl's heart more than to have a boy say he will go through fire for her.

There are few pay days f th man who is his own boss.

Lots of divorce suits that pressed should have gone to th cleaners first.

Enthusiasm sometimes carri people away only to leave them return in disgust.

Women, as a rule, are bett than men and some of them see to regret the fact.

Marriage depends on the fusi of two lives, but it often ends wi confusion of them.
